Catholic Bishops' Chief Urges Constitutional Abortion Ban

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's Roman Catholic bishops were told today that "the will of God and the law of reason" demands an unrelenting fight against abortion.

Conference of Catholic Bishops. The address by Archbishop Bernardin, president of the conference, opened a four-day annual meeting attended by 250 bishops, the overseers of the 48.5 million American Catholics.

The bishops were presented with a plan for a concerted attack on legalized abortion and mercy killing, aiming eventually for a constitutional amendment to bar the practice in America.

"We do not seek to impose our moral teaching on American society," said the introduction of the plan. "But as citizens of this nation we find it entirely appropriate to ask that the government and the law be faithful to its own principle — that the right to life is an unalienable right given to everyone by the Creator."

Archbishop Bernardin, who is from Cincinnati, spoke in a similar vein. "It is essential that we continue to express and act upon our commitment to the defense of all human rights, particularly those most threatened in our society and our world today," he said.

"In this connection we must and will affirm in season and out our determination to speak and act in defense of those who are perhaps the most defenseless, the most voiceless among us: the unborn."

He also called on the bishops to address themselves on the role of women in the church, but said any action on the ordination of women must be "consistent with the teaching of the church and the will of Christ."

Archbishop Bernardin said the Catholic leaders must be realistic and acknowledge there are problems for which there are no solutions that will accommodate all views.

"I am thinking, for example, of some solutions advocated for the plight of people who find themselves in broken marriages," he said. "I am thinking of arguments put forward by some who would have us acknowledge with approval life-styles which are inconsistent with our Judeo-Christian heritage."

An 11-item agenda awaited the bishops, including the anti-abortion drive, a statement on Catholic-Jewish relations, a statement on better housing for the poor and a major revision of the training program for future priests.

The bishops at the four-day meeting will discuss reports on women, the black community and problems in international justice, including the arms race.

Archbishop Bernardin, 47, was presiding over his first conference since his election last year. He has spoken for the need to continue to study the conflict within the church over prohibitions against married priests and the ordination of women. But he has said he sees no way currently to resolve the issues.

The program being considered by the bishops says: "We commit ourselves to the establishment of a system of law that will provide legal protection of human life from conception to natural death. We feel morally impelled to pursue whatever course of action is required."

It calls for a mobilization of all Catholic groups, priests as well as lay people, to work for a change in what the authors called a danger to the value of human life brought by the 1973 Supreme Court decision that made abortions legal in the early stages of pregnancy.

"Although these decisions deal primarily with abortion laws, implicitly they touch also on euthanasia," the plan said.

It urges meetings with non-Catholics, a public relations effort with leaders in business, government and the professions and especially efforts with the judicial and legislative segments.

The program says that, although the Supreme Court is firmly committed to the abortion decision, efforts should be made to persuade the court to reconsider its decision.

"We must not allow ourselves to be intimidated by the Supreme Court," the plan said. "We must continue to speak and act in defense of the unborn."

U.S. Crime Increase 18 Per Cent In 1974

By MARGARET GENTRY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Criminals killed more than 20,000 people and stole property worth $2.6 billion as crime in the United States increased 18 per cent last year, the FBI said today in its final 1974 report on crime.

Teen-agers were arrested for nearly one-third of the 10 million crimes reported to police, although persons from 10 to 17 account for only 16 per cent of the nation's population.

About half of all those arrested for burglaries, motor vehicle thefts and larcenies were teen-agers, the report said.

Firearms were used in 68 per cent of all murders, 44 per cent of the robberies, and 25 per cent of the serious assaults, the report said.

The grim statistics emerged from the FBI's annual report and analysis of the number of offenses and arrests reported to virtually all state and local law enforcement agencies. The FBI and other experts say many more crimes are never reported to police.

The FBI earlier had estimated there were 17 per cent more crimes committed in 1974 than a year earlier. The final report showed the increase actually was 18 per cent.

The crime rate is the number of offenses per 100,000 citizens. "These final figures merely underscore what we already know. The problem of serious crime is immense," said Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi. "A coordinated national response by all segments of the criminal justice system and at all levels of society is vital if we are to bring this problem under control."

There were 4,821 crimes per 100,000 citizens in 1974, the report said.

He fled the United States in 1968. He has lived in Cuba, Algeria and France and visited North Korea.

Cleaver has been talking for four years about his desire to return to the United States, but has always postponed a final decision.

Teens Are Losing Ability To Write In Coherent Manner

By JUDY STOWELL HERB
Associated Press Writer
DENVER (AP) — A study released today indicates American teen-agers are losing their ability to communicate clearly through written English.

But 9-year-olds tested in similar fashion wrote better in 1974 than their counterparts four years earlier, the NAEP said.

Females wrote better essays than males at all three ages, the study found.

The NAEP is a project of the Education Commission of the States, an organization to which 45 states belong. Based in Denver, it conducts periodic tests in various subject fields to measure the relative skills of students from year to year. It is funded by the National Center for Education Statistics, a federal agency.

In a survey of writing skills taken first in 1970 and repeated in 1974, the NAEP tested 80,000 students in three age groups — 9-year-olds, 13-year-olds and 17-year-olds who were still in school. The test involved writing essays to answer questions.

The survey showed the writing of 17-year-olds declined in quality between the two assessments. The 1974 students showed an increase in awkwardness and run-on sentences and a tendency to write as they would speak, the report said.

Writing performance for the 13-year-olds also declined. On the average, the NAEP found the 1974 essays shorter, less sophisticated in expression and more awkwardly written than the 1970 essays.

Only the papers from the 9-year-olds showed an improvement, with the proportion of good writers rising in 1974, the report said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's Roman Catholic bishops were told today that "the will of God and the law of reason" demands an unrelenting fight against abortion.

"We know well that we are today witnessing a growing, frightening callousness toward the sanctity of unborn human life," Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin told the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

U.S. Crime Increase 18 Per Cent In 1974

WASHINGTON (AP) — Criminals killed more than 20,000 people and stole property worth $2.6 billion as crime in the United States increased 18 per cent last year, the FBI said today in its final 1974 report on crime.

Thieves made off with loot valued at more than the Justice Department's annual budget and more than twice what it takes to run the city of Chicago for a year.

Teen-agers were arrested for nearly one-third of the 10 million crimes reported to police, although persons from 10 to 17 account for only 16 per cent of the nation's population.

About half of all those arrested for burglaries, motor vehicle thefts and larcenies were teen-agers, the report said.

"The national crime rate, or the risk of being a victim of one of these crimes, has increased 32 per cent since 1969," it noted.

Increases were recorded for all sections of the country and for all seven crime categories measured — murder, rape, robbery, assault, burglary, larceny and vehicle theft.

The violent crimes of murder, rape and assault account for hardly more than a half-million of all reported offenses. The far more numerous cases of robbery, burglary, larceny and vehicle theft cost the nation an estimated $2.6 billion. The report said police recovered loot valued at $821 million, about 31 per cent of the total.

But police have made little if any headway toward improving their record of solving crimes and arresting the suspects.

The report showed that an arrest was made in only about one of every five reported crimes in 1974, a performance virtually unchanged in five years.

The statistics showed that arrests were made for 80 per cent of the murders, 51 per cent of the rapes, 63 per cent of assaults, 27 per cent of the robberies, 18 per cent of the burglaries, 20 per cent of the DENVER (AP) — A study released today indicates American teen-agers are losing their ability to communicate clearly through written English.

Compared with students tested in 1970, students 13 and 17 years old tested last year wrote a greater number of incoherent paragraphs and wrote in a shorter, "primer-like" style, said a report from the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP).

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Kiss And Tell: Books About Politicos Are Selling Well

Measured by payroll costs, Washington's largest businesses are government and tourism in that order. Since New York City's cafe society has fallen into the same limbo as its finances and the Hollywood star system has gone somewhat blotchy, the nation's capitol is emerging as a major exporter of titillating inside information on the famed and infamous.

Watergate has been and still is the prime mother lode of gossip ore refined into literary output that is handsomely rewarding its authors and publishers.

Richard Nixon is reputed to be receiving up to $400,000 from a TV syndicate headed by David Frost soon to take to the airwaves to explain the former President's position in that embarrassment.

John W. Dean, III, Nixon's private lawyer who spent a year in the pen for his part in the caper, is said to have received a $300,000 guaranty from Simon & Schuster, Inc., the publishers, for a book on Watergate.

His wife, Maureen whom her friends call Mo, is touring cross country to promote her book, "Mo, A Woman's View of Watergate." Presently on the best seller list is Benjamin Bradlee's book, "Conversations With Kennedy." Its listing attests to the public's continued fascination with the most glamorous in that heady clan.

Publications on Lyndon Baines Johnson so far have proven duds. However, Doris Kearns' widely publicized personal memoirs of LBJ may become an exception. While there was no love lost between JFK and LBJ, they had one common denominator: Both were, euphemistically speaking, ladies' men.

Traphes Bryant, who was the White House dogkeeper for Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon, has a lightly veined edition in print entitled "Dog Days at The White House." He writes of the change from Kennedy to Johnson in these words: "The days of transition from Kennedy to Johnson were as hard on me as they were on anyone else — harder. I was losing a dog and gaining a President I didn't know."

A recent publication by Joseph Lash may catch on for the Christmas trade. It is styled "From The Diaries of Felix Frankfurter."

Frankfurter, a distinguished Harvard law professor, was the first New Deal appointee to the Supreme Court. He held successor FDR selections, particularly Hugo Black and William O. Douglas, in low esteem. In one passage he dismisses a Black opinion at a court conference as "hogwash, with fantastic disregard of the truth of the cases and statutes which he threw together haphazardly without relevance and without meaning except generally to create an atmosphere of confusion and intensity of conviction."

Tomorrow the University of Iowa is opening the diaries of the most controversial figure in government since Huey Long. Excerpts published a few years ago by Professor John Morton Blum of Yale University are certain to whet the appetite for the complete revelation.

The diarist is Henry Agard Wallace who died ten years ago.

Roosevelt named him as Agriculture Secretary in 1933 and from that office Wallace framed the production control-price support plan which has enraptured American farming until only a few years ago.

Over the protests of many party leaders, FDR insisted upon him as a Vice Presidential running mate in the 1940 election. Wallace spent most of the war years telling our South American neighbors how to raise more coffee and sugar and to dig up more oil and minerals.

Criticism against Wallace's handling of the Vice Presidency reached such a pitch that Roosevelt dumped him for the 1944 campaign in favor of Harry Truman. FDR did, though, toss Wallace a bone of sorts by making him Commerce Secretary in the following year.

Truman correctly sized Wallace as a liability and upon assuming the Presidency after Roosevelt's death, he forced Wallace out.

Wallace ran in 1948 as the Progressive party's candidate for President. Neither he nor the dissident Dixiecrats, however, enabled Tom Dewey to beat Truman.

Prof. Blum's publication contains many tidbits from the Wallace diaries which insure a large attendance for Tuesday's full disclosure at Iowa City.

He relates that FDR once told Chaim Weizmann, the Zionist leader, that King Ibn Saud of Arabia was "for sale." In another section Wallace pens that for $15 million Roosevelt "could get the Jews the opportunity they needed in Palestine."

Since Wallace was ever so much more explosive than the scholarly Frankfurter, his opinions of others in coterie should be juicy indeed.

It would be a job, though, for the editors to put the Wallace memoirs in shape for the Christmas best seller trade.

A Lesson From History

An individual does not have to be a professional historian to recognize that history has much more to tell us than where we have been. It also can give us a good hint where we are going under a given set of circumstances.

Knowing what that path could be gives us the power to change the direction if we do not like it. Chief Justice Warren Burger had some thoughts along these lines in his speech before the Connecticut Bar Association.

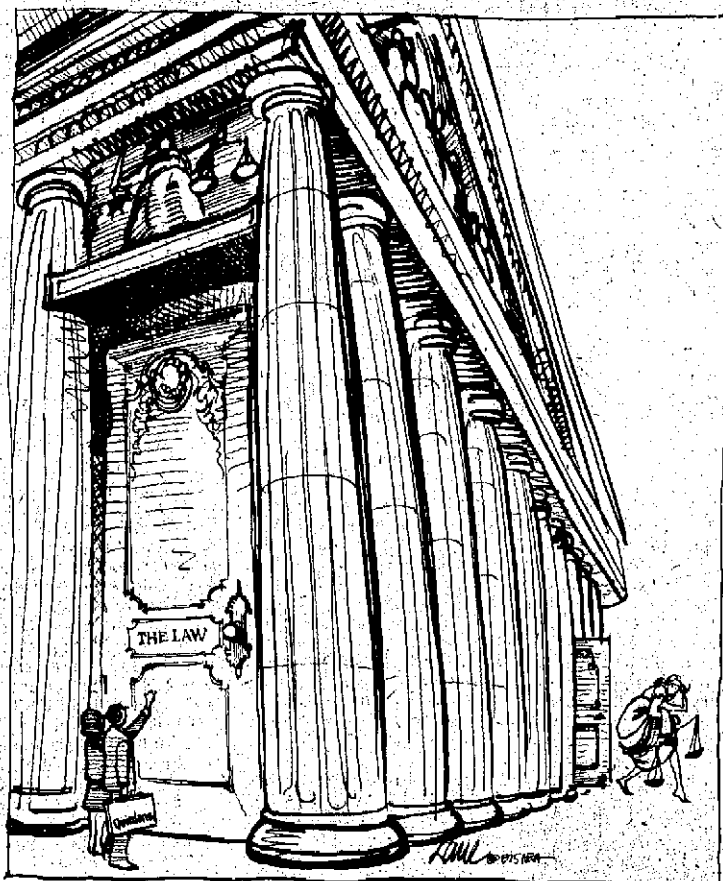

Noting that Russia, China and the United States all began with large land masses rich in natural resources and that China and Russia had cultural traditions preceding those of the U.S. by centuries, Burger asked how it was that after only 200 years the United States had built a far higher living standard for its inhabitants than the other two?

The answer, Burger believes, lies in the degree of individual freedom enjoyed by the citizens of the three nations. That intangible and elusive thing known as freedom is not easily achieved, as a review of the current world will confirm, and once attained it is not easily kept.

There is no more powerful incentive to progress, nor an easier path to improvement, once a high degree of freedom has been obtained. That is a fact that history tells us time and again if we will but listen.

WANTS ADMINISTRATORS AT SJ MEETINGS

Editor,

It is quite apparent, as evidenced in the recent meeting of the St. Joseph Board of Education last Monday evening, of the age old problem of "lack of communication" between board, administrative personnel, and parents. The issue relating to the discontinuance of certain intramural athletic programs due to budget cuts, indicated this ever more so.

Unfortunately, somewhere in the channel of communication, the dissemination of information fell down; this lack of correct information causes not only many questions in the mind of parents but also causes much suspicion and unnecessary interpretation as to what the "score really is."

By making a quick survey of the audience, it was observed that some of our elementary and junior high school administrative personnel were absent that evening. I hope that this is not true for the rest of the year's meetings. If on the other hand it is, then could this possibly be a strong negative factor in this problem of communication?

It would only seem logical that in the whole process of administration, that those in supervision capacity of our schools would make this a priority in their busy schedules and thereby regular attend all board meetings thus becoming thoroughly conversant with all the issues of the school system. A well informed administration will then be able to contribute positively to the concerns and questions of the people.

AN OPEN LETTER TO COLOMA SCHOOL BOARD

Editor,

The article, "Coloma Aid Loss Could Hit $86,000" in this paper, 11-11-75, prompted this letter. In my opinion, the district property owners, and voters, have the right to have some questions answered, as we always bear and read of the financial problems our school system is in.

Referring to the 1974 and 1975 financial report of the schools as of 6-30-75, as published in the Watervliet Record on 10-30-75: The General Fund Equity was $243,356 and the building and site fund had an equity of $312,393 for a grand total of $555,656 of taxpayers money.

What are and what is the value of the fixed assets that are not published in the C.P.A.S. report?

How come the report was not published for eleven weeks after the report was dated? Was there a purpose for not publishing prior to the October 6 millage election, which was seven weeks after the 8-15-75 date on the report?

Per the Superintendent's figures, the anticipated income for the '75-76 school year is $3,482,088 and the expenditures are estimated at $3,526,086, or an operational loss of $44,011. But, what happened to the General Fund equity of $243,356

Defense Post Hardens Softies

WASHINGTON — When James Schlesinger arrives at work each morning, according to confidants, he lights his pipe and begins to read an accumulation of intelligence reports, position papers, analytical matter and news accounts of world military activity. As he reads, the associates say, Schlesinger's pipe eventually burns with an intensity that covers his head with a glint of smoke that resembles nothing so much as the nuclear cloud on which much of the printed material inauspiciously dwells.

Such is the nature of the defense job that those who hold it ultimately become so much a part of it that they take on some of the physical characteristics of its demands. Melvin Laird, it is remembered, had a bald head shaped like an artillery shell, and Robert Strange McNamara had the personality of an ABM operating manual. Part of this is in the imagination of the beholder, certainly, but it serves to illustrate an absolute truth of Pentagon room 3E 880: In the end it dominates the man, rather than vice versa.

This circumstance is worth remembering as Schlesinger prepares to vacate his position for yet another fresh face. In his wisdom President Ford feels one-time naval aviator and full-time political manipulator Donald Rumsfeld can do a better job, or at least a job more in keeping with what passes for the administration's daily domestic and international policies. Old Pentagon hands sigh at such expectations.

Indeed the Pentagon post does tend positively to turn even the best of the intentions of its occupants into a kind of Attila the Hun conformity. McNamara wanted an efficient organization, but could never get the services to agree even on a universal belt buckle. Schlesinger wanted to reduce the nuclear rhetoric, but instead has lifted it to the level of official U.S. offensive strategy.

The edges, actually, seem to grow more pronounced at the Pentagon with each decade. Though at peace, the U.S. military is not at ease. Few in it are comfortable with the increasing condition of restraint. The armed forces now employ 3,175,000 people, but this is a decline of more than a million in five years. The military budget has grown to some $3 million an hour, yet generals grumble that this is only 7 percent of the gross national product, as compared with 9 per cent of short years ago. They are being defeated, the soldiers say, "without a shot being fired."

The fear, of course, is that defense — on a cheap will allow the nation's old enemy a clearer field to military superiority. Already, Schlesinger has warned, the Soviet Union is outspending the U.S. by as much as 50 per cent on defense conditions, and has stockpiled twice the throw weight in nuclear weapons (4 million pounds vs. 2 million).

Sadly, the risks are all too apparent for any defense secretary embedded in the quagmire. Even the Yankee soldier, once the jewel of national defense, is in today's volunteer force, more mercenary than menacing. Generals say publicly their boys are in fighting trim, but sergeants invariably insist the boys are just boys. Crime was up 15 per cent on military property last year, polls in some Army units indicate 70 to 85 per cent of the troops use booze or drugs.

Small wonder then that secretaries harden. If they remain out of the political package, that is. As a close aide to the sobered James Schlesinger says it convincingly: "People wonder why the hell we spend so much and do so little. Well, you get a different perspective from inside the gun barrel. If George McGovern became defense secretary, he'd cry for more powder like everybody else."

Old Watergate Figure Surfaces

WASHINGTON — Informed sources within the Central Intelligence Agency report that the real reason President Ford was forced to ask CIA chief William Colby to hang around a while longer after he was fired is named Gen. Vernon A. Walters — the Agency's deputy director.

Allowing Walters to become acting chief could have proved to be very embarrassing. Walters is the only major participant in the Watergate scenario still to be in his original powerful position. He survived, in part, by going underground.

But as acting director he would have had to surface to testify in the coming weeks before the continuing House and Senate probes into the Agency's illegal abuses of power. His role as CIA spokesman might well have prompted awkward questions as to why President Ford had allowed him to stay.

In addition, Walters' testimony might have opened up a whole new line of Congressional inquiry. Both the Senate and House committees have thus far concentrated upon Colby and virtually ignored Walters.

Yet he was regarded at one time as such a good friend of President Nixon that high-level White House aides considered him their best link to the Agency. Indeed, testimony before a House subcommittee indicated that John Dean and others at the White House had dealt with Walters during the Watergate crisis rather than then-director Richard Helms because they assumed that as a military man close to Nixon he would respond with unquestioning compliance.

Walters is also believed to be privy to the most sensitive CIA secrets. He has had a long background in intelligence work, much of it unofficial but most of it involving coordinating extremely sensitive material. "He's been a high-class messenger boy," one source said.

CIA sources are divided as to his ability, but they agree that it might not be helpful to President Ford if he testified. For one thing, he would be under great pressure to be truthful as Colby is credited with being. Telling lies is not as fashionable as it used to be during the Nixon Administration. Helms, for instance, is being investigated by the Justice Department for possible perjury.

"This association with Nixon might catch him between Kissinger and Schlesinger," a CIA official observed. "He knows a lot."

"Ford wouldn't dare let Walters testify about the Agency," another official said. "It would be ruinous." He refused to explain the basis for this potential ruin, however.

"After Watergate, I am amazed that he was able to stay on," observed another agent.

Walters was a prime witness at both the Senate Watergate probe and the court trial of Nixon's former White House aides. He testified that White House aides had asked him to lean on FBI Director Patrick Gray to stop a probe of Nixon campaign funds from Mexico which had turned up in the bank account of one of the men arrested during the Watergate break-in in June, 1972. He submitted memos he had written after his White House contacts describing the efforts to enlist both the CIA and FBI in the cover-up of the scandal.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Kiss And Tell: Books About Politicos Are Selling Well

Measured by payroll costs, Washington's largest businesses are government and tourism in that order.

Since New York City's cafe society has fallen into the same limbo as its finances and the Hollywood star system has gone somewhat blotto, the nation's capitol is emerging as a major exporter of titillating inside information on the famed and infamous.

Watergate has been and still is the prime mother lode of gossip ore refined into literary output that is handsomely rewarding its authors and publishers.

Richard Nixon is reputed to be receiving up to $400,000 from a TV syndicate headed by David Frost soon to take to the airwaves to explain the former President's position in that embarrassment.

John W. Dean, III, Nixon's private lawyer who spent a year in the pen for his part in the caper, is said to have received a $300,000 guaranty from Simon & Schuster, Inc., the publishers, for a book on Watergate.

His wife, Maureen whom her friends call Mo, is touring cross country to promote her book, "Mo, A Woman's View of Watergate."

Presently on the best seller list is Benjamin Bradlee's book, "Conversations With Kennedy." Its listing attests to the public's continued fascination with the most glamorous in that heady clan.

Publications on Lyndon Baines Johnson so far have proven duds. However, Doris Kearns' widely publicized personal memoirs of LBJ may become an exception. While there was no love lost between JFK and LBJ, they had one common denominator. Both were, euphemistically speaking, ladies' men.

Traphes Bryant, who was the White House dogkeeper for Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon, has a lightly veined edition in print entitled "Dog Days at The White House." He writes of the change from Kennedy to Johnson in these words: "The days of transition from Kennedy to Johnson were as hard on me as they were on anyone else — harder. I was losing a dog and gaining a President I didn't know."

A recent publication by Joseph Lash may catch on for the Christmas trade. It is styled "From The Diaries of Felix Frankfurter."

Frankfurter, a distinguished Harvard law professor, was the first New Deal appointee to the Supreme Court. He held successor FDR selections, particularly Hugo Black and William O. Douglas, in low esteem. In one passage

he dismisses a Black opinion at a court conference as "hogwash, with fantastic disregard of the truth of the cases and statutes which he threw together haphazardly without relevance and without meaning except generally to create an atmosphere of confusion and intensity of conviction."

Tomorrow the University of Iowa is opening the diaries of the most controversial figure in government since Huey Long. Excerpts published a few years ago by Professor John Morton Blum of Yale University are certain to whet the appetite for the complete revelation.

The diarist is Henry Agard Wallace who died ten years ago.

Roosevelt named him as Agriculture Secretary in 1933 and from that office Wallace framed the production control-price support plan which has encircled American farming until only a few years ago.

Over the protests of many party leaders, FDR insisted upon him as a Vice Presidential running mate in the 1940 election. Wallace spent most of the war years telling our South American neighbors how to raise more coffee and sugar and to dig up more oil and minerals.

Criticism against Wallace's handling of the Vice Presidency reached such a pitch that Roosevelt dumped him for the 1944 campaign in favor of Harry Truman. FDR did, though, toss Wallace a bone of sorts by making him Commerce Secretary in the following year.

Truman correctly sized Wallace as a liability and upon assuming the Presidency after Roosevelt's death, he forced Wallace out.

Wallace ran in 1948 as the Progressive party's candidate for President. Neither he nor the dissident Dixiecrats, however, enabled Tom Dewey to beat Truman.

Prof. Blum's publication contains many tidbits from the Wallace diaries which insure a large attendance for Tuesday's full disclosure at Iowa City.

He relates that FDR once told Chaim Weizmann, the Zionist leader, that King Ibn Saud of Arabia was "for sale." In another section Wallace pens that for $15 million Roosevelt "could get the Jews the opportunity they needed in Palestine."

Since Wallace was ever so much more explosive than the scholarly Frankfurter, his opinions of others in coterie should be juicy indeed.

It would be a job, though, for the editors to put the Wallace memoirs in shape for the Christmas best seller trade.

A Lesson From History

An individual does not have to be a professional historian to recognize that history has much more to tell us than where we have been. It also can give us a good hint where we are going under a given set of circumstances.

Knowing what that path could be gives us the power to change the direction if we do not like it. Chief Justice Warren Burger had some thoughts along these lines in his speech before the Connecticut Bar Association.

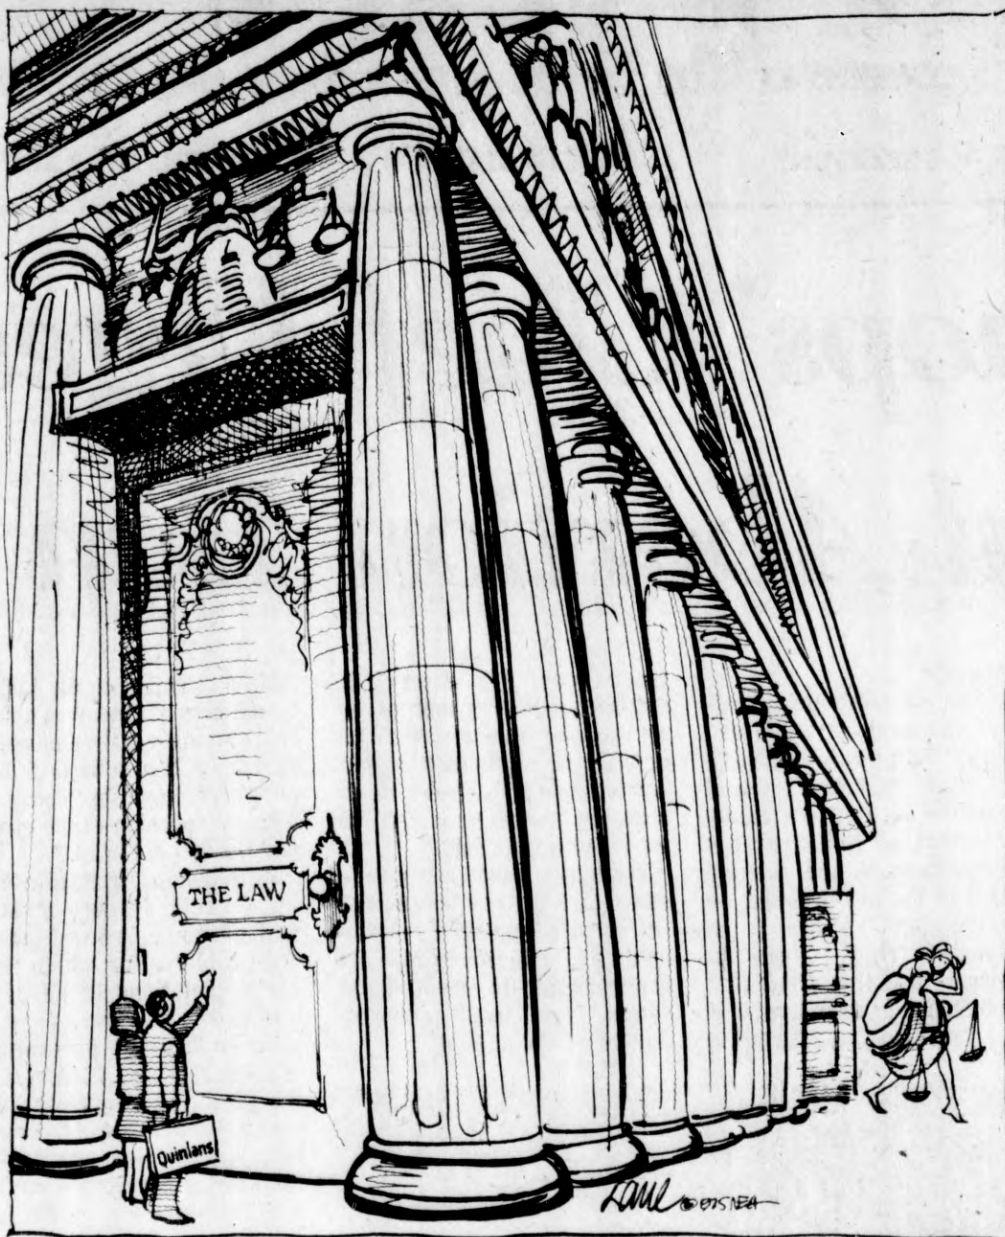

Noting that Russia, China and the United States all began with large land masses rich in natural resources and that China and Russia had cultural traditions preceding those of the U.S. by centuries, Burger asked how it was that after only 200 years the United States had built a far higher living standard for its inhabitants than the other two?

The answer, Burger believes, lies in the degree of individual freedom enjoyed by the citizens of the three nations. That intangible and elusive thing known as freedom is not easily achieved, as a review of the current world will confirm, and once attained it is not easily kept.

There is no more powerful incentive to progress, nor an easier path to improvement, once a high degree of freedom has been obtained. That is a fact that history tells us time and again if we will but listen.

WANTS ADMINISTRATORS AT SJ MEETINGS

Editor,

It is quite apparent, as evidenced in the recent meeting of the St. Joseph Board of Education last Monday evening, of the age old problem of "lack of communication" between board, administrative personnel, and parents. The issue relating to the discontinuance of certain intramural athletic programs due to budget cuts, indicated this ever more so.

Unfortunately, somewhere in the channel of communication, the dissemination of information fell down; this lack of correct information causes not only many questions in the mind of parents but also causes much suspicion and unnecessary interpretation as to what the "score really is."

By making a quick survey of the audience, it was observed that some of our elementary and junior high school administrative personnel were absent that evening. I hope that this is not true for the rest of the year's meetings. If on the other hand it is, then could this possibly be a strong negative factor in this problem of communication?

It would only seem logical that in the whole process of administration, that those in supervision capacity of our schools would make this a priority in their busy schedules and thereby regularly attend all board meetings thus becoming thoroughly conversant with all the issues of the school system. A well informed administration will then be able to contribute positively to the concerns and questions of the people.

AN OPEN LETTER TO COLOMA SCHOOL BOARD

Editor,

The article, "Coloma Aid Loss Could Hit $66,000" in this paper, 11-11-75, prompted this letter. In my opinion, the district property owners, and voters, have the right to have some questions answered, as we always hear and read of the financial problems our school system is in.

Referring to the 1974 and 1975 financial report of the schools as of 6-30-75, as published in the Watervliet Record on 10-30-75: The General Fund Equity was $243,356 and the building and site fund had an equity of $312,303 for a grand total of $555,659 of taxpayers money.

What are and what is the value of the fixed assets that are not published in the C.P.A.S. report?

How come the report was not published for eleven weeks after the report was dated? Was there a purpose for not publishing prior to the October 6 millage election, which was seven weeks after the 8-15-75 date on the report?

Per the Superintendent's figures, the anticipated income for the '75-'76 school year is $3,492,085 and the expenditures are estimated at $3,526,096, or an operational loss of $34,011. But, what happened to the General Fund equity of $243,356

The fact that the ghost was not seen last night in no way proves that it doesn't reside in the neighborhood, perhaps between the covers of some copy of Hamlet. Defense Post Hardens Softies

WASHINGTON — When James Schlesinger arrives at work each morning, according to confidants, he lights his pipe and begins to read an accumulation of intelligence reports, position papers, analytical matter and news accounts of world military activity. As he reads, the associates say, Schlesinger's pipe eventually burns with an intensity that covers his head with a glut of smoke that resembles nothing so much as the nuclear cloud on which much of the printed material inauspiciously dwells.

Such is the nature of the defense job that those who hold it ultimately become so much a part of it that they take on some of the physical characteristics of its demands. Melvin Laird, it's remembered, had a bald head shaped like an artillery shell, and Robert Strange McNamara had the personality of an ABM operating manual. Part of this is in the imagination of the beholder, certainly, but it serves to illustrate an absolute truth of Pentagon room 3E 880: in the end it dominates the man, rather than vice versa.

This circumstance is worth remembering as Schlesinger prepares to vacate his position for yet another fresh face. In his wisdom President Ford feels one-time naval aviator and full-time political manipulator Donald Rumsfeld can do a better job, or at least a job more in keeping with what passes for the administration's dainty domestic and international policies. Old Pentagon hands sigh at such expectations.

Indeed the Pentagon post does tend positively to turn even the best of the intentions of its occupants into a kind of Attila the Hun conformity. McNamara wanted an efficient organization, but could never get the services to agree even on a universal belt buckle. Schlesinger wanted to reduce the nuclear rhetoric, but instead has lifted it to the level of official U.S. offensive strategy.

The edges, actually, seem to grow more pronounced at the Pentagon with each decade. Though at peace, the U.S. military is not at ease. Few in it are comfortable with the increasing condition of restraint. The armed forces now employ 3,175,000 people, but this is a decline of more than a million in five years. Sadly, the risks are all too apparent for any defense secretary embedded in the quagmire. Anti-Spending Mood Cited By Hutchinson

U.S. Representative Edward Hutchinson of St. Joseph has said that grass roots support appears to be building for a constitutional amendment that would force the federal government to operate on a balanced budget.

In a statement to the news media, Hutchinson pointed out that it was just such a provision in Michigan's constitution that has prevented the state from plunging into deficit as the federal government has done.

The full text of Hutchinson's statement:

"With a large Federal budget

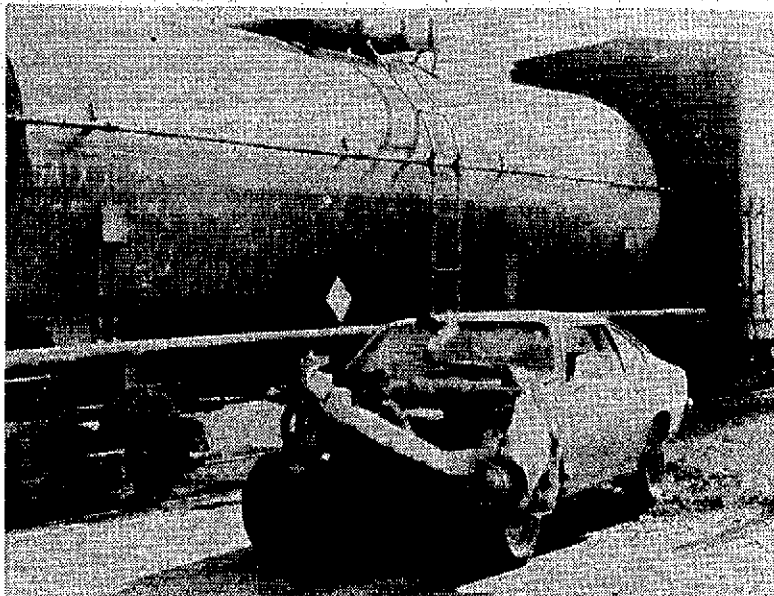

deficit predicted for next fiscal year and government spending seemingly ever increasing, there seems to be developing across the United States a consensus that a balanced Federal budget is required. This idea would require the Federal government, the U.S. Congress, agencies, and boondoggles alike to expend only what revenues are generated by taxes and other sources.

"Several polls are showing grassroots support for a possible constitutional amendment to legislate a balanced budget. This would not be anything new to residents of Michigan; Lansing has had to walk a thin line to keep out of the red for some time now. And it is only the State's provision in the Michigan constitution which prevents it from plunging into deficit.

"The Federal government has not had a balanced or surplus budget two years in a row for 20 years. Since 1957 the only year to even show a sizable surplus was 1968, and Federal spending has greatly increased in the 70's.

"Recently a large metropolitan newspaper asked its readers if they would favor a constitutional amendment which would require the United States Congress to balance the Federal budget. Accompanying the survey were articles explaining how deficit spending encourages inflation and increases interest rates and prices. People from all walks of life were interviewed and only 3 percent responded, 'no' on the question. Other surveys have had similar results.

"Congress should take notice that wasteful spending practices are out. Spending as a solution to the nation's problems has been proved ineffective. Problems do not disappear because of more government, more regulations, or more money. These 'Solutions' have helped to create the double-digit inflation we are presently fighting. A new approach is needed, and a balanced budget should only be the beginning."

Burglary Loot Over $1,000 At Benton Minister's Home

The Rev. Coleman Gray, pastor of St. Mark Baptist church, told Benton township police Saturday that personal property, valued at some $1,076, was stolen during a burglary at his home, 405 Walnut street.

Stolen items were listed to include two television sets, two sewing machines, a tape recorder and silverware. The house also was ransacked, police said. The burglary was reported at 8:46 p.m.

Break-ins at two neighboring restaurants in Benton township were believed to be related, according to township police.

Police said $50 in change was stolen from two vending machines at the Pizza Hut, 1941 M-139, and an undetermined amount of change was stolen from a vending machine at Burger King, 2055 M-139. The thefts were reported when the establishments were opened Saturday morning.

A 15-year-old Benton township boy was arrested Sunday by township police on a charge of larceny over $100, a garden tractor from the home of Ken Ashley, 820 Milo street, Benton township.

Police said the tractor was found in the garage of a township home early Sunday and subsequent investigation led to the arrest. The boy was turned over to the custody of his parents pending petitioning to juvenile court.

Thefts reported to Benton Harbor police over the weekend were:

—A stereo combination, valued at $250, from the apartment of David Cryer, 387 North Stevens street.

Two separate stabbing incidents were investigated by Benton township police, Saturday night and early Sunday morning.

Lacy Clark, 46, was treated for a cut over the eye at Mercy hospital and released, after being stabbed with a paring knife during a quarrel with a man at her home, 232 Walnut street, about 3 a.m. Sunday. No arrest was made, pending further investigation.

Police said J.T. McIntosh, 29, address not reported, was treated and released from Mercy hospital at 4:45 p.m. Saturday after being stabbed in the leg on Highland and Crystal avenues. McIntosh did not give any details, police said.

Benton Officer Bags Deer The Easy Way

Benton township Patrolman John Murphy bagged a deer the first day of the firearms season Saturday — and he didn't use a gun, travel north or even leave his job to do it.

Murphy was on duty and driving a patrol car on Paul avenue near Highland avenue, when a young buck darted in front of the auto about 7 p.m., according to Berrien sheriff's deputies who investigated the accident.

Deputies said Murphy, 30, was unhurt and damage to the patrol car was limited to a dented right front fender. Murphy was reported traveling about 35 miles an hour. No summonses were issued. But deputies issued Murphy a highway killed deer permit, good for one deer in Murphy's freezer.

Anti-Spending Mood Cited By Hutchinson

U.S. Representative Edward Hutchinson of St. Joseph has said that grass roots support appears to be building for a constitutional amendment that would force the federal government to operate on a balanced budget.

In a statement to the news media, Hutchinson pointed out that it was just such a provision in Michigan's constitution that has prevented the state from plunging into deficit as the federal government has done.

The full text of Hutchinson's statement:

"With a large Federal budget

deficit predicted for next fiscal year and government spending seemingly ever increasing, there seems to be developing across the United States a consensus that a balanced Federal budget is required. This idea would require the Federal government, the U.S. Congress, agencies, and boondoggles alike to expend only what revenues are generated by taxes and other sources.

"Several polls are showing grassroot support for a possible constitutional amendment to legislate a balanced budget. This would not be anything new to residents of Michigan; Lansing has had to walk a thin line to keep out of the red for some time now. And it is only the State's provision in the Michigan constitution which prevents it from plunging into deficit.

"The Federal government has not had a balanced or surplus budget two years in a row for 20 years. Since 1957 the only year to even show a sizable surplus was 1969, and Federal spending has greatly increased in the 70's.

"Recently a large metropolitan newspaper asked its readers if they would favor a constitutional amendment which would require the United States Congress to balance the Federal budget. Accompanying the survey were articles explaining how deficit spending encourages inflation and increases interest rates and prices. People from all walks of life were interviewed and only 3 percent responded "no" on the question. Other surveys have had similar results.

"Congress should take notice that wasteful spending practices are out. Spending as a solution to the nation's problems has been proved ineffective. Problems do not disappear because of more government, more regulations, or more money. These "Solutions" have helped to create the double-digit inflation we are presently fighting. A new approach is needed, and a balanced budget should only be the beginning."

New Twist With Grocery Bags For Holiday Table

SIMPLE IDEA: The simple things of life can take their place on festive tables when they're served with flair. And that goes not only for the glossy fruit and glowing leaves, but the impressive cornucopia, too. It's put together with brown paper bags and glue. Another simple idea transforms the leaves into jewel-like ornaments. Each is backed with aluminum tape, while the front is sealed behind clear plastic.

When the crowd gathers at your house for fall festivities — be it an after-the-game party or Thanksgiving dinner — you want your table to look as enticing as the food.

Well, even if party-making has left your pocketbook as flat as a crepe, you can still have a sumptuous centerpiece.

How? Just buy a bag of fruit — and turn it, bag and all, into that traditional harvest symbol, the cornucopia. The secret: the brown paper bag itself becomes the cornucopia, and making it is as easy as apple pie.

The "recipe" comes from a school art teacher, who has learned to be ingenious with everyday materials — and one of her favorites is the brown paper bag.

The cornucopia couldn't be simpler. All it takes is a few grocery bags, some newspapers and white household glue to put it all together.

BROWN BAG CORNUCOPIA
Several brown paper bags
Newspaper, cut into strips
Glue

Take a large bag and shape it into a cone by squeezing bottom end; tape to secure. Turn bag open end of bag, forming a two-inch deep collar. Make "roping" to cover bag, using strips of newspaper as filling. Cut brown paper into long strips, three-inches wide. Put a few layers of newspaper strips in the center, then fold brown paper around filling and glue. (Keep "roping" fairly flat, so as to be easy to handle.) Now wind brown paper rolls around shaped bag, starting at tip and gluing as you coil until bag is covered. Refine the shape of the cornucopia as you go. Finally, cut three by five-inch strips of brown paper, fold in thirds lengthwise, and glue. Use these to wrap around turn-back at open end. Let cornucopia dry overnight. Serve as a centerpiece — or mantel or coffee table decoration — overflowing with burnished apples, nuts and other fruits.

And that's not all — the teacher has also found a way to turn fall leaves into an elegant jewel-bright mobile. She backs each leaf with aluminum tape — that's the shiny, real metal tape that's normally used for such unglamorous jobs as

overnight. Serve as a centerpiece — or mantel or coffee table decoration — overflowing with burnished apples, nuts and other fruits.

And that's not all — the teacher has also found a way to turn fall leaves into an elegant jewel-bright mobile. She backs each leaf with aluminum tape — that's the shiny, real metal tape that's normally used for such unglamorous jobs as repairing mufflers or patching downspouts! In this case, though, it makes a silvery backing and border for the leaves. Over the front of each leaf goes a piece of thin, clear plastic, which seals in the color — almost forever! She hangs the leaves from a pretty twig to make a mobile, but saves a few to use as napkin rings — formed just by bending the stems around.

Honor Women Astronomers In Planetarium Exhibit

EAST LANSING — "If the earth had waited for a precedent, it would never have turned on its axis," said Maria Mitchell, a 19th century American astronomer who saw no reason why a woman shouldn't be elected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Miss Mitchell, the only woman scientist in the Hall of Fame for Great Americans, was, indeed, the first woman elected to the academy, but as far as precedents go she by no means was the first woman to make major contributions to astronomy.

A new exhibit in Michigan State University's Abrams Planetarium, designed by IBM in recognition of the United Nations General Assembly's declaration of 1975 as International Women's Year, honors 45 women who have discovered comets, classified stars or theorized on the nature of the universe.

As far back as 400 B.C. a Thessalonian woman named Aganice "understood eclipses," Plutarch wrote. "She made other women think it was she, who unhinged the moon from the sky."

Plutarch, it seems, was not the first man to comment on women and celestial phenomena: the famous 16th century astronomer Tycho Brahe said that "women possess great gifts due to the influence of the moon and Mercury, which likewise causes most of them to become excessively talkative."

Brahe made the remark in relation to his sister Sofia, who helped him in his pioneer studies of planetary motion, and Voltaire sniffed a little when he commented further on the "marvel" that Isaac Newton had written the scientific treatise "Principia."

"It's a marvel that a woman translated and elucidated it," added the philosopher about Gabrielle-Emilie du Chatelet, the woman who introduced Newtonian science to France.

The planetarium exhibit, which features replicas of woodcuts, engravings and old photographs of women old and young, prim and smiling, reveals that men also sought out women astronomers for help or honored them with complimentary epithets.

An 18th century French woman Nicole Lepaute, consulted for aid on computing the path of the returning Halley's Comet in 1757, was known as "The Learned Calculator," and Englishwoman Mary Somerville, an expert on magnetic properties of solar spectrum violet rays, was called the "Queen of 19th Century Science."

Prize-winning Sonya Kovalevsky of 19th century Russia, honored by France for her study of the rotation of a solid body around a fixed point, was called "Muse of the Heavens" in a British algebraist's sonnet.

"The Witch of Agnesi," however, refers not to a woman but to a mathematical curve — named for Maria Agnesi who wrote on universal gravitation and celestial mechanics in the 18th century.

Nineteenth century notables include Caroline Herschel who discovered three nebulae and eight comets; Maria Mitchell who discovered a comet and won a gold medal from the King of Denmark, and sunspot expert Elizabeth Brown.

And to combat the notion that "women originate almost nothing" in science, Prof. E.C. Pickering of Harvard began in 1882 to encourage women to go into astronomy, with the result that 30 years later 40 women had arrived at improved understanding of stars, larger estimates of the size of the universe and new concepts of its birth.

One of these women pioneers, Annie Jump Cannon, discovered a way to identify stars by the kind of light they gave off and another, Henriette Leavitt, discovered a law used in more accurate estimates of the size of the earth's galaxy.

In the sophisticated 20th century, it was a woman, Jocelyn Bell, who in 1967 first detected a pulsar, a star that gives off steady radio signals, and a woman, E. Margaret Burbidge, who became the first director of the Royal Greenwich Observatory in its 300-year history.

"In husband-wife teams of astronomers, it's now frequently the wife who is better known," said Abrams director Lee Shapiro.

Experts in photometry, spectroscopy, the structure of galaxies, and such phenomena as nuclear synthesis in stars, individual modern day women include the coordinator of the earth monitoring stations for Sputnik 1, the discoverer of double stars, and international comet expert Elizabeth Roemer who commented frequently on comet Kohoutek.

The Abrams exhibit, which points out that a female, the muse Uranis, presided over astronomy in the eyes of the ancient Greeks who deemed it the "Queen of Sciences," will be displayed through November.

'Fatproof' Children

Fat-proofing their children against becoming fat adults is a job all parents must undertake. In the last few years we have discovered that fat adults learned to be fat when they were children.

"Today we know that the only way to prevent the inevitable psychological, physical and social problems of overweight that can blight your children's lives is never to let them get fat in the first place," comments Alvin Eden, M.D., a professor of pediatrics at New York University School of Medicine and director of pediatrics at a Brooklyn hospital.

Which children are destined to grow up fat? He answers: "An infant who is overfed with milk; The baby who is fed solid foods much too early; The toddler who is incarcerated in a playpen or a stroller or is bribed with cookies to finish his lunch; The preschooler who is encouraged to watch TV to give his mother some peace and quiet; The school-age child who is driven to and from school; The adolescent who actually becomes malnourished because he seldom eats with the family; He never walks when he can sit and never runs when he can walk."

A thin child almost always grows up to be a thin adult. A fat child almost always grows up to be a fat adult.

"So don't tell your child to finish everything on his plate. He may not be hungry, he may not need it. By forcing him to eat you may be starting him on the path of putting on extra weight," Dr. Eden states in his new book "Growing Up Thin" (McKay, $7.95). He quotes leading nutritionists and pediatricians, all of whom agree that fat is not beautiful, that it may be a physical handicap and a social hindrance.

"What a lovely thin baby," he says, "should become the modern form of praise. But so many mothers still think fatness, not normal leanness, is the sign of health." "A nice fat little baby" — we must disabuse parents' minds of that unfortunate cliché. Leanness, not fatness that will probably last throughout the infant's life, must become the new understanding.

He suggests no special diets, no crank diets, nothing harsh or painful and humane attitude practiced with love. The infant or the toddler knows how much food he actually wants. Mother's fear that he will starve is silly and dangerous. He won't starve, Dr. Eden reminds us.

He also points out that even infants need exercise to prevent getting overweight. As toddlers, they need to stretch their arms and legs, climbing and striving to walk, to discover their own strength. School children need to walk to school, if possible, to play games and to do errands. These activities will help keep their weight normal.

They need to cut down on so-called junk foods, too, because these are mostly sugar and carbohydrates and fairly useless nutritionally. Children grow fat nibbling, remember.

"Growing Up Thin" is an important book for parents. It will startle many parents who think fatness in an infant is a sign of God's favor. It is not, according to doctors and nutritionists.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Nobodys Really Somebodys

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a faithful reader and so are most of the kids I know at school.

I'm a sophomore this year and very unhappy about the way the students around here are divided into three groups. There are the Jocks, the Hoods and the Nobodys.

The Jocks are the popular good-looking athletic kids — both boys and girls. They win all the elections and everybody looks up to them.

The Hoods are the smokers, drinkers and make-outs. They have trouble with teachers but stick together and seem to have fun.

The Nobodys are the friendly and most decent, but they don't rate with the other groups. I'm a Nobody and it bugs me. I just don't fit into the other two categories. Any suggestions? — Raytown Blue-Jay.

Dear Jay: Sounds as if the last two categories are misnamed. The Hoods should be the Nobodys. And the Nobodys should be the Somebodys.

Being good-looking or athletic are accidents of fate. The Jocks may appear to have it all together but let me assure you they are just as insecure and unsure of themselves at times as you are. What's more, decency and friendliness are by far the greater virtues. In the long run you'll do better than most of the others. So rise and shine, Blue-Jay.

Don't Push

Dear Ann Landers: Since the death of his wife, Uncle Bo has taken "Mrs. Companion" (she's a widow) to all family gatherings, picnics, parties — everywhere. We like her and are pleased that Uncle Bo has found a compatible friend, but...

Problem: There are many functions where the number of guests must be sharply limited. This sometimes means leaving out a cherished friend or a favorite (but not so close) relative. Uncle Bo never consults anyone. He simply returns his acceptance with "and guest" written in.

We wish he'd make it "and wife" but we suspect he has no intention of taking that step. What can we do about it? — Turmoil in Newark

Dear T.: You can accept the fact that it's double or nothing. If push comes to shove, Uncle Bo will tell you they are "a couple" and if his companion is unwelcome he won't come either. So, unless you want to face the choice, simply assume that his Lady Fair is a permanent attachment and be as gracious as possible.

Beautiful Family

Dear Ann Landers: I've just met the most beautiful family and I'd like to share them with you.

I'm an R.N. in the cardiac care unit of a large hospital. Mr. K. came into my ward after suffering from a severe heart attack. I have never seen a closer family. They were by his side the 48 hours he lived. I would have given my own life if it meant Mr. K's widow and those twelve kids could have had their dad back.

When Mr. K. died the nurses wept in each other's arms. But we know this wonderful woman and her children will make it. They can't fail with so much love.

On the day Mr. K. passed away, the nurses on the floor received six red roses and a thank-you card from that wonderful family.

Please print this letter, Ann. Maybe they will recognize themselves and realize they are something special. — Touched

Dear Touched: Thank you for telling us about that beautiful family. They ARE something special, and could serve as a model for us all.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Jim: "There is an opening lead made on every hand. Sometimes it doesn't make any difference what you lead. On other occasions it means the difference between making and losing the contract."

Oswald: "Against a slam contract your first decision must be whether or not to attack; your second, where to attack if an attack appears to be called for."

Jim: "Now take a look at the West hand. You hold the king of trumps and two queens, yet your opponents have galloped into a slam. You expect your king of trumps will be a winner. South has bid two, three and six spades. Where is the other trick going to come from?"

Oswald: "The answer is that if it is going to come from diamonds your partner will have a diamond trick that will keep. If it is going to come from hearts or clubs, then you had better lead one of those suits right away."

Jim: "The suit to attack in is clearly your short one. You only have three hearts. There is a good chance that you will score a heart trick if your partner holds the king. You lead it and North-South complain of bad luck. Lead anything else and they score the slam."

Ask the Jacobys

A Florida reader has two questions about the Jacoby Transfer Bid. We will answer one today and one tomorrow and will discuss the bid at length early next year. The first question is: "How do you transfer to the minor suits?"

The simplest way is to use the two-spade response to one notrump as a transfer to clubs and the three-club response as a transfer to diamonds.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Dr. Lester Coleman

My son had a separation of his collarbone from his shoulder, while playing football. He is 15 now. Will he be left with a tendency to tremble when he gets older?

Mrs. N.N., La.

Dear Mrs. N.: Shoulder separations are probably the most common injury to football players.

Fortunately, good equipment protects them so that these injuries have been markedly reduced.

With a severe injury, ligaments between the collarbone and the shoulder are torn or stretched. These painful problems are recognized easily. In most instances, adhesive tape dressings and slings put the shoulder at rest, allowing healing to take place rapidly.

When the ligaments are torn away, surgery may sometimes be necessary. Special wiring techniques are used to insure that the tissues will be reunited.

With rest, recovery is almost always complete. In most instances, patients can return to full activity. They must remember, however, that this area of weakness must be respected. When he grows older, there is no reason to suppose that your son will show any after-effects of this injury.

Is there any special meaning if an infant is born with swollen breasts?

Mrs. G.A., Maine

Dear Mrs. A.: This is a rather common observation in newborn babies, both boys and girls.

Occasionally, associated with the swelling there may be discharge of a milky substance. This is of no importance and quickly clears up without any treatment.

The reason for the swelling and the secretion of milk is that the unborn child is affected by the increase of hormones that are circulating in the mother's blood during pregnancy.

Is there any danger to piercing ears?

Miss T.C., Calif.

Dear Miss C.: The only obvious danger, of course, is the possibility of developing a local infection in the area of the ear lobe.

Very recently, some reports in the medical literature indicate that cases have been reported of hepatitis following piercing of the ears with infected instruments.

I believe that it is imperative that anyone who pierces ears should use disposable sterile instruments and needles. These should be used for one person and then discarded.

DR. LESTER COLEMAN has prepared a special booklet entitled "Alcoholism — A Family Disease." It probes this grave problem and offers hopeful advice. For your copy, send 25 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed stamped envelope to Lester L. Coleman, M.D., (Alcoholism booklet), P.O. Box 5178, Grand Central Station, New York City 10017. "Of course I realize my body talks," I giggled. "Just yesterday my feet said, 'You can't see me, turkey, but I'll keep tap dancing until you find me.' That's a joke, Mayva."

"It's not funny," she said. "Belly dancing would improve your posture, enhance your frame, coil your vertebrae and lift your rib cage. Just think, you could wear bells again."

"Don't promise me a rose garden, Mayva. Besides, I'm not ready to see hipbones again. It's too traumatic. I saw Cher's hipbones the other night and got panicky. I thought it was a growth. Also, I have nothing to wear."

"That's the beauty. You don't have to wear much. Only some chiffon here, some sequins there, some strategically placed tassels and you're in business."

I told Mayva I'd think about it. Last night I came out of the shower, whipped a towel around my hips and shimmied and swayed in a sensuous motion in front of the bathroom mirror. Maybe Mayva was right. It did relax you and...

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Avoid chumming around today with a friend who is too set upon having his own way. You're in no mood to be dictated to.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't look for anything to be handed to you on a silver platter. It won't be. If you want something done, do it yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll find that ideas you thought others were in accord with will be challenged today. Try not to force compliance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be careful today not to be pressured into parting with something you like by a super salesman type. You know how to say "No" — and mean it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're going to have to deal with some people today you're not overly fond of. Skirt touchy issues.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This will be a day when things you've left undone pop up to haunt you. Hope you didn't sweep too much under the rug!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be careful today not to do something thoughtless that could create ill-will between you and a friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Things aren't likely to be very placid on the home front today because of outside issues dropped on your doorstep.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Usually you keep your temper but today you could blow very easily over something you've tolerated before.

TIME RUNNING OUT FOR CONGRESSIONAL AID TO NYC

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time pressures are building in Congress for a decision on federal aid for New York City. The lawmakers are taking next week off for Thanksgiving and some say the city risks default soon after.

A compromise aid program, said to have the support of House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona, is up for a vote today in the House Banking Committee. Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the panel, said the compromise could come to the House floor Tuesday.

Because the current $2.3 billion New York state financing plan for the nation's largest city expires Dec. 1, some financial experts say the city risks default after that when some debts come due.

Meanwhile, the state legislature continues meeting to adopt a plan that Gov. Hugh Carey and other New York officials are banking on to encourage the Ford administration to support some form of assistance for the city. Tax hike proposals for the state and city are on the agenda today.

In sessions over the weekend, the New York legislature voted a debt "moratorium" that calls for the city to try to pay off about $1.05 billion of its $7 billion short-term debt with securities of the state's Municipal Assistance Corp., instead of cash.

The MAC securities would carry long-term maturities and lower interest rates. For those noteholders who reject this trade-in, the city would declare a moratorium on the principal and pay only interest due for up to three years. In the view of some financial specialists, this refusal to pay in cash would amount to default by another name.

The Rhodes-Reuss plan amends a bill now pending in the Banking Committee by reducing the amount of federal loan guarantees from $7 billion to $4 billion, cutting the duration of guarantees from 19 years to five years, and clarifying that a federal board of city officials would not involve itself in New York's day-to-day activities.

In other congressional business:

—House tax bill battles this week are likely to center on the issue of revenue-raising and controversial tax revisions in a tax cut bill headed for the floor.

—The Senate is hoping to finish work Tuesday on a bill appropriating $112.6 billion for defense for the 15-month period that began July 1.

A final version of compromise energy legislation is being drafted. President Ford is reserving judgment until the details are written. The plan is expected to come to floor votes in early December.

On taxes, the Ways and Means Committee-approved general tax cut extension and tax revision bill — titled "Tax Reform Act of 1975" — was ready for review by the Rules Committee today. Rules clears bills by recommending legislative ground rules and, in this case, specific amendments that may be debated by the full House.

Liberals are pushing for some major amendments to key parts of the package, mainly because they claim conservatives on Ways and Means weakened the original proposals. Conservatives charged that liberals hit some areas too hard.

These arguments involve such major features of the bill as proposals to curb so-called tax shelters in real estate and efforts to raise taxes wealthy Americans who have found ways virtually to avoid taxation.

Report Says 25 Firms Made Overseas Payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-five large U.S. corporations have been accused of or have admitted engaging in "questionable business practices" in paying $306 million overseas, says a Library of Congress analysis.

Most of the 25 corporations listed in the analysis, compiled at the request of Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., were defense contractors or oil firms.

All of the accusations and admissions came in the first 10 months of the year and were reported previously in the news media, said Pat Smith, the Library of Congress foreign affairs analyst who compiled the list.

In many instances, the investigations have yet to be fully concluded and therefore allegations of criminal activities are unproven unless admitted by the companies," the report said.

The report consisted of a series of newspaper reports of allegations and admissions by the 25 companies.

They included: —A statement by Gulf Oil chairman Bob R. Dorsey to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that Gulf made about $5 million in illegal political contributions abroad.

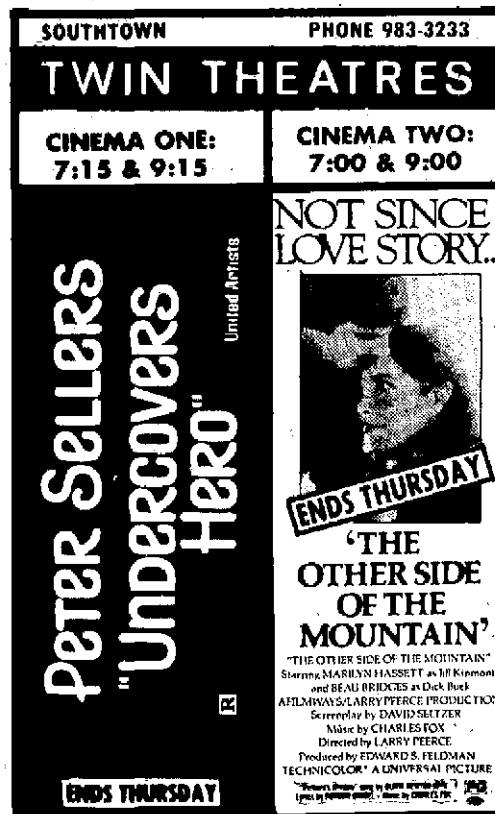

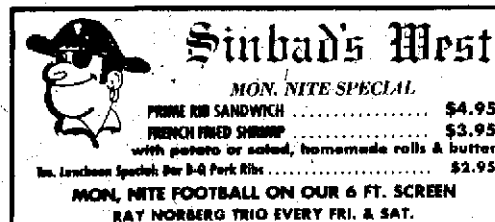

—An I.T.T. official, Frank Peppermans, stated that he gave cash to the general manager of Belgium's state-operated telephone company, Germain Baudrin, the Belgian manager, was found guilty of accepting over $1 million in bribes from various companies for negotiating inflated contracts. Peppermans and I.T.T. were fined $500 and warned not to undertake such business practices again.

—Northrop Corp. reported $30 million in overseas payments under investigation by the Securities and Exchange Corp.

—An SEC investigation showed that Phillips Petroleum has maintained a $1.4 million "secret slash fund" for payments for business interests. "No names or countries were cited."

—The Pentagon disallowed a $300,000 reimbursement to Raytheon for payments made to negotiate an Israeli arms contract.

Memo Shows Ex-FBI Chief Wanted To Spare Atom Spy

NEW YORK (AP) — Government documents show the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and other top law enforcement officials favored sparing the life of convicted spy Ethel Rosenberg.

The documents, revealed Sunday, showed that Hoover, then U.S. Atty. Gen. J. Howard McGrath and James Bennett, director of the Bureau of Prisons, all opposed her execution in 1952.

Mrs. Rosenberg and her husband Julius were put to death at Sing Sing prison after they were found guilty of supplying atomic secrets to the Soviet Union.

The Rosenberg papers were made public as the result of a suit filed under the Freedom of Information act by the couple's sons, Michael and Robert Meeropol, who have launched a campaign to prove their parents innocent.

Among the documents was a memorandum from Hoover to McGrath dated April 2, 1951.

"This woman is the mother of two small children," Hoover said of Ethel Rosenberg. "As the wife of Julius Rosenberg she would, in a sense, be presumed to be acting under the influence of her husband."

Hoover recommended that she receive a 30-year prison sentence.

In a 1957 memo, a Justice Department official said:

OPEC Eying Oil Price Cuts For Poor Nations

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Central bankers and finance ministers of the major oil exporting countries meet here today to discuss ways to ease the burden for poor nations resulting from the five-fold rise in oil prices in the past two years.

A split on the issue reportedly has developed between Saudi Arabia and others in the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

McGrath had told him he had recommended a life sentence for Mrs. Rosenberg, "purely on humanitarian reasons, she being the mother of two small children."

The same document said Bennett "was of a similar view."

Other declassified documents alleged that Julius Rosenberg confessed his guilt to a cellmate whom he had tried to recruit for a Russian spy ring. Rosenberg publicly maintained his innocence.

Expect Food Prices To 'Gyrate'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although food prices have slowed from their rapid climb of the past two years, consumers can expect them to gyrate widely for many years because of weather and Soviet Union grain imports, an Agriculture Department economist said today.

"The events of the last few years emphasize what we have tended to forget, that a major source of price instability is natural disaster — droughts, floods, too much rain, early frosts, insects and diseases," said Kenneth R. Farrell, deputy administrator of USDA's economic research service.

Retail food prices, which rose 4.5 per cent in 1972, soared 14.5 per cent in each of the following two years.

Department experts, including Farrell today, said those will average about 9 per cent for all of 1975 and slow down further to an annual rate of 4 to 5 per cent in the first half of next year.

Food-price instability will be "one of the major characteristics of the next decade" and much of the roller-coaster effect will be "tied to weather, both here and abroad," Farrell said in remarks prepared for USDA's annual National Agricultural Outlook Conference.

"The emergence of the USSR as a participant in the world market means that the instabilities of grain production in that part of the world have become a part of our uncertainties," Farrell said.

Stricken by drought, Russia's grain harvest this year fell far short of needs. Consequently, the Soviets have bought heavily from other countries, including about 13.2 million metric tons of wheat and feed grains from the United States so far this season. A metric ton is 2,204.6 pounds.

A huge export flow the past three years, including massive sales to other countries as well as to Russia, have drained once-large U.S. grain reserves. During the previous two decades, the U.S. stockpile and similar supplies in Canada and Australia served as a buffer against soaring food prices, Farrell said.

Another element affecting food prices in the future is what the USDA economist termed an "inflationary psychology" in commodity prices.

"With the kind of commodity markets we have around the world, there is a very strong tendency for rapid price increases which are initiated by natural disaster or actions such as the oil embargo to be translated into a much greater runup of prices than any economist can find a basis for in the underlying supply and demand relationships," Farrell said.

But, once food products leave the farm, the elements of price instability "are less and largely man-made," he said. Those involve so-called middleman costs for getting food from farms to consumers.

During the previous two decades, the U.S. stockpile and similar supplies in Canada and Australia served as a buffer against soaring food prices, Farrell said.

Another element affecting food prices in the future is what the USDA economist termed an "inflationary psychology" in commodity prices.

"With the kind of commodity markets we have around the world, there is a very strong tendency for rapid price increases which are initiated by natural disaster or actions such as the oil embargo to be translated into a much greater runup of prices than any economist can find a basis for in the underlying supply and demand relationships," Farrell said.

But, once food products leave the farm, the elements of price instability "are less and largely man-made," he said. Those involve so-called middleman costs for getting food from farms to consumers.

TO BE ARRAIGNED: Darryl E. Wilson, 22, (left) and Clinton Williams, 19, are to be arraigned today in Detroit in the abduction of a son of a General Motors executive last week. Kidnap Suspects To Be Arraigned DETROIT (AP) — Two young men who have admitted abducting the son of a General Motors executive for $150,000 ransom were expected to be arraigned today on state charges of kidnapping, authorities said.

Clinton Williams, 19, and Darryl E. Wilson, 22, both of Ann Arbor, confessed after their arrest Friday that they abducted 13-year-old Timothy Stempel, whose father, Robert, is chief engineer at Chevrolet.

Williams and Wilson were arraigned Saturday on a federal charge of extortion which interferes with interstate commerce. The U.S. attorney's office said the charge was invoked because the ransom money was put up by GM, which is involved in interstate commerce.

Police said they recovered all but $11,000 of the ransom, which Stempel paid Wednesday night for the safe return of his son.

Wilson had just been recalled to his job at the GM Hydramatic plant near Ypsilanti, west of Detroit. Williams is unemployed.

In a complaint filed with U.S. Magistrate Paul J. Kornives at the pair's Saturday arraignment on the federal charge, Wilson admitted to a State Police officer that he kidnapped young Stempel last Monday night and that the ransom money was in his Ann Arbor home.

The statement filed with Kornives also said Williams admitted the crime and that Wilson's Cadillac was used in the abduction.

At a news conference Thursday, following the safe return of his son, Stempel said he felt the abductors picked their victim "at random." Young Stempel was skateboarding near his home in the affluent Detroit suburb of Bloomfield Township when he was kidnapped late Monday afternoon.

He was released 54 hours later, unharmed except for a minor injury he sustained when one of his captors struck him on the head with a gun butt.

Wilson's parents sat in on the arraignment Saturday and Mrs. Wilson, who appeared distraught, apologized to the Stempel family for the incident. "We're sorry that it happened and if Darryl did it," she said.

Mrs. Wilson said her son never was in trouble with the law before the Stempel kidnapping.

Bond was set at $100,000 for each man. They are being held in Milan Federal Prison.

'LIBERTY' PUP GOING TO SCHOOL Kazoo Girl's Request Granted

ROCHESTER, Mich. (AP) — A puppy from President Ford's dog "Liberty" will grow into a proper leader dog for blind persons thanks, in part, to an etiquette book by Amy Vanderbilt.

Lisa Jensen, a 15-year-old sophomore at Loy Norrix High School in Kalamazoo, started the Presidential puppy on its way to the Leader Dog School even before the pup was born.

After reading news accounts that Liberty was expecting, Lisa wrote a letter to the President suggesting that he contribute one of the pups to the Leader Dog program.

"I got the President's address from an Amy Vanderbilt etiquette book," the fresh-scrubbed teen said modestly. "I didn't tell anybody I had done it. Not even my mother."

Two days later my mother answered the phone and it was Liberty's trainer, William Brockett. He said my letter was being considered by the President. Need as today, my mother was surprised.

The male Golden Retriever arrived Friday at the famous Leader Dog School and was promptly named "Jerry" by the school's executive director, Harold "Poc" Pocklington.

Lisa, who says she would like to become a veterinarian, became interested in the Leader Dog program through her 4-H Club.

She arrived early Saturday with Joan Hines, her 4-H leader, to pick up the puppy.

"Lisa's kind of an 'animal natural'," Mrs. Hines said. "Her voice and manner are gentle. She's already raised one dog for this program and she gained a lot of knowledge and confidence doing it."

"Both ends of the leash grow in this program."

The program of placing puppies in homes for a year is a relatively new one for the Leader Dog School, but it already has raised the success rate from 30 to 50 per cent for dogs who "graduate" and become useful, trained leader dogs.

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock called on Congress today to improve the food stamp program rather than accept President Ford's proposals to make cuts in the program.

Calling the present setup inadequate, Woodcock said it is time to expand the food stamp program to meet the needs of "the poor, the unemployed and the underemployed."

Lisa and her family, Jerry will be returned to the Leader Dog School and the dog's training will begin.

"The secret's in the training," Pocklington said. "We need dogs that have been raised around people, not in a kennel."

Susan Ford, the President's daughter, said in a letter to Pocklington, "We're already looking forward to the day when our puppy will graduate."

Miss Ford said she was pleased "... that one of Liberty's puppies will be serving in the highest and noblest canine post."

Despite a markedly Republican heritage, Leader Dog President Martin Hayden said he was sure Jerry would be "nonpartisan." Hayden is editor and vice president of the Detroit News.

"The dog showed what he thought of us right off," Pocklington laughed, "right in my front yard — three times."

In Kalamazoo, Lisa said Jerry would "learn the ropes" from Monty, the Jensen family dog, a Shetland Sheep Dog.

FIRST MEETING: Lisa Johnson, 15, of Kalamazoo, Mich., holds Jerry, one of the pups of Liberty, President Gerald R. Ford's family dog. Lisa wrote the President and suggested that he contribute the nine-week old dog to the Leader Dogs for the Blind school in Rochester, Mich. A Whiplash Injury Can Save Your Life!

Whiplash neck injuries are among the nation's fastest growing health problems. Why?

"The ever increasing number of automobiles rolling onto our congested streets and highways, the mass migration to the suburbs, the increased speed of our freeway system, power brakes and more powerful engines all contribute to the growing frequency - of the type of accidents that can result in whiplash neck injuries," says Dr. Ackerman.

Dr. Vince Ackerman, Chiropractic Center. "But in one sense," he goes on, "they can be a blessing in disguise."

"You see," says Dr. Ackerman, "a whiplash is by its very nature a problem for the modern doctor of Chiropractic. He best understands the whiplash injury and is best equipped to cope with it. Consequently we see many new faces who visit us because of our reputation in dealing with the whiplash. In our examination and care of these people we often discover that their whiplash is, but one of their problems. And proper treatment of the whiplash may well remove what might ultimately cause chronic migraine headaches, extreme nervousness or arthritis, although these problems may not have yet manifested themselves."

"Don't misunderstand me," Dr. Ackerman goes on, "the whiplash is in itself a most serious injury and is often itself the cause of arthritis, for instance in time."

"This of course means that the whiplash injury can't be left untreated. It will only be that 'blessing in disguise' if the person who sustains the whiplash comes in for a thorough examination and is treated effectively."

According to Dr. Ackerman too any people do, in fact, let whiplash injuries go untreated.

"A typical misunderstanding of the seriousness that a whiplash could involve, for instance, a young suburban housewife," notes Dr. Ackerman. "Let's say her auto is struck from behind as she is waiting at a traffic light. There is only minor damage to her car and at the time, no one seems to be hurt. However, later in the day she develops a headache and begins to notice a slight stiffness in her neck."

"The next morning she feels a bit worse, but since the headache is just a 'sight, pesky one' and the stiffness is not unbearable she decides in her own mind that 'these things take time.' However, the conditions persist and she becomes nervous and irritable." (A young husband once told me... "after our accident my wife changed from a pleasant young wife and mother into an irritable, nagging grouch").

"Hopefully," says Dr. Ackerman "our typical case" will decide that her self-recovery is taking too much time and will visit us."

"If our preliminary exam reveals the presence of pressure on the nerves in the upper part of the spine and the possible displacement of vertebrae we know that her condition will respond to the proper effective treatment."

"I might add," Dr. Ackerman continues, "that after the first effective treatment, a whiplash sufferer such as the our 'typical case' is virtually assured of a first restful sleep since an accident."

According to Dr. Ackerman every accident victim should have a thorough modern Chiropractic examination.

It is indeed apparent that a person who has had an accident owes it to himself and his family to find out for sure. Since every health problem has a cause it's obvious that the cause must be found before a person will get well.

Dr. Ackerman maintains offices at 2015 Red Arrow Hwy., St. Joseph (Telephone 428-1700).

Dowagiac Hunter One Of 6 To Die Throughout State

DOWAGIAC — Funeral services for Dan Schott, 82, Dowagiac, killed in a deer hunting accident Saturday, were to be held today at the First United Methodist church in Dowagiac. He was one of six men from throughout the state wounded fatally by gunfire during the first weekend of the state's firearms deer hunting season. The season opened Saturday morning.

Schott was killed when hit in the face by an arrow fired by another deer hunter about 7:30 Saturday morning south of Cadillac, according to state police at Cadillac.

Officers identified the hunter who fired the .30-30 caliber bullet as David Allen LeDuc, 18, Algonac.

LeDuc was with another hunting party and fired at and missed a deer, police said he told investigating officers.

State police said no charges have been filed, but that the shooting remains under investigation.

Schott was owner and operator of Schott Saw company of Dowagiac, and had been active in the Lions club and the Elks lodge 388 in Dowagiac.

Besides his widow Donna, other survivors include two sons, Randy of Dowagiac and Bruce of South Bend; two daughters, Mrs. Diane Clark of East Lansing and Miss Karen Schott of Battle Creek; and a sister, Mrs. Robert Koopman of South Bend.

Burial will be in Mission Hills Memorial Gardens in Cass county. McLaughlin-Clark funeral home of Dowagiac was in charge of the services.

Besides Schott, five others were killed by deer hunting gunfire, including two 15-year-old boys, and two men died of heart attacks during the season's opening weekend, according to Associated Press.

One of the heart attack victims, Harold Marmion, 65, of Indian River was stricken Saturday as he dressed a deer he had shot a short time earlier.

James E. Tubb, 42, of Saginaw, was killed after being shot in the chest by another hunter in Clement Township of Gladwin County.

Gladwin County Sheriff's deputies said Tubb's body was found in the woods by another hunter Saturday morning.

Thomas P. Gruenberg, 15, of Flushing, was found dead by another hunter in Missaukee County near Modersville. Authorities said Gruenberg was sitting in a lawn chair at a deer run when he was apparently shot by another hunter.

Joseph F. Ruelle, 51, of Detroit, died of a heart attack while hunting near Bear Lake Township in Kalamazoo County, according to State Police.

Roy Kotakowski, 46, of Detroit died Saturday night after he reportedly shot himself in the hip while hunting with his stepson in Backus Township, Roscommon County. Sheriff's deputies said the gun's safety apparently was defective.

Steve J. Gietzen, 15, of Bemus was found dead Sunday in Sheridan Township, Mecosta County. Deputies said the youth apparently fell on his gun sometime Saturday.

Carroll Shance of Vermontville was found fatally wounded Sunday near a relative's home in Tobacco Township, Gladwin County. State Police said Shance was shot in the back. They said the incident was under investigation.

Police also reported several injuries during the weekend. The firearms deer hunting season, which started at daybreak Saturday, ends Nov. 30.

James Johnson, 38, of Kincheloe Air Force Base, killed in a head-on collision.

larcenies, and 15 per cent of the vehicle thefts.

Most of those arrested were prosecuted, and 70 per cent of the adults who were prosecuted were convicted, the report said.

The statistics showed a marked increase in the number of teen-agers arrested for robbery and as well as for robbing and stealing. Ten per cent of the 16,000 persons charged with homicide were under 18.

During the past five years, the report said, "there was a 51 per cent increase in the number of persons under 18 years of age arrested for murder." By contrast, the number of adults arrested for murder increased only 28 per cent during the same period.

In all crime categories, there was a 9 per cent increase in the number of teen-agers arrested in 1974 compared with the previous years. There was only a 1 per cent increase in the number of adults arrested.

Teen-agers comprised 17 per cent of those charged with assault, almost 20 per cent of those charged with rape, nearly one-third of those charged with robbery, 33 per cent of those charged with burglary, 49 per cent of those charged with larceny, and 55 per cent of those charged with vehicle theft.

For those offenses and several others, ranging from vandalism to arson, police arrested a total of 1.6 million teen-agers in the United States in 1974.

"In the suburban areas," the report said, "the involvement of the young age groups in police arrests is markedly higher than the national figures. In the rural areas the distributions were lower for the younger age groups."

Quinlan Attorney Denies Reports Of Ruling Appeal

By STEPHEN M. BROWN
Associated Press Writer
MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — The attorney for Karen Anne Quinlan's parents today denied published reports that they had already decided to appeal a state court ruling preventing them from ordering their daughter's respirator disconnected.

Paul W. Armstrong, attorney for Joseph and Julia Quinlan in their request for court approval to let their 21-year-old comatose daughter "die with dignity," said Karen's parents were still considering whether to appeal the Nov. 10 ruling by Superior Court Judge Robert Muir Jr.

"No decision has been made yet," Armstrong said early today. However, he did not rule out the possibility that Muir's decision would be appealed. Armstrong had indicated previously that the parents would take their legal battle to higher courts.

He noted that more than a month remained for an appeal to be filed.

Muir ruled that the question of whether to remove the life-sustaining machine was "medical not legal" in nature, and that the courts should not supersede the decision of Miss Quinlan's doctors, who opposed the Quinlans' request.

The Washington Post reported that Armstrong said he would file an appeal in Trenton today based on the contention that Muir "erred in setting forth the maxim that 'there is no constitutional right to die.'"

In a week-long trial here last month, Armstrong argued that the Quinlan family's constitutional rights to privacy and freedom of religion would be violated if the court denied their request to have Karen's respirator disconnected.

Doctors at St. Clare's Hospital in Denville, Armstrong said, should have court approval to shut off the machine because Karen and her parents, as Roman Catholics, believe "extraordinary means" are not required to prolong the life of a hopelessly and terminally ill patient.

Muir's decision "catalogues or sets forth the status quo," The Washington Post quoted Armstrong.

According to the newspaper Armstrong said: "The opinion poses the questions without resolving them. It certainly doesn't resolve the questions as far as the Quinlan family is concerned, nor does it set forth guidelines for physicians and attorneys who turn to it for such. Therefore we have no course but to appeal."

Today, Armstrong said he didn't know when the Quinlans might reach a decision about appealing Muir's decision.

Pontiac Hospital Orderlies Stabbed

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Six orderlies at a state mental hospital here were injured Sunday when a 28-year-old patient attacked them with a hunting knife in one of the wards.

Pontiac police were called to the Clinton Valley Center shortly before 4 p.m. to subdue the patient. They took him under sedation to the Oakland County Jail, where police said he faces charges of attempted murder.

Police said one of the attendants, Robert Moore, was admitted to Pontiac General Hospital with stab wounds in the stomach. He was listed in serious condition and was to undergo surgery.

The other five orderlies received minor cuts. Four of them were taken to Pontiac General, where they were treated and released.

Police said they were called after an attendant saw the patient brandishing a hunting knife in a third-floor ward. The orderly went for help while several attendants tried to wrest the knife from him.

Police said the patient was admitted to the hospital a month ago on a court order at the request of his mother. They said they did not know where he got the knife.

made to reverse it and to restrain lower courts from going beyond what the high court envisioned.

In addition, the plan would urge appointment of judges who are "fairminded and objective on abortion," urge law professors and lawyers to write articles for law journals attacking abortion's philosophical basis and set up a hot-line in each state so that injunctions, court challenges or "prosecutions directed toward Catholic hospitals can be immediately and effectively met."

All dioceses would be urged to increase contacts with congressmen "urging positive support for a human life amendment."

Sentenced For Slapping

TOKYO (AP) — The Tokyo district court sentenced an ultra-rightist to two years at hard labor today for slapping Prime Minister Taken Miki during the national funeral service last June for former Prime Minister Eisaku Sato.

Presiding Judge Soiji Ueda said Hiroshi Fudeyasu, 35, had "insulted Miki and the people and greatly impaired Japan's international prestige."

Fudeyasu slapped Miki twice in the face and knocked him down but the prime minister was not injured.

A police report said the man also tried to hand Miki a knife and a note calling on him to commit suicide because "Prime Minister Miki is an enemy of the people and the nation for trying to force ratification of the nuclear nonproliferation treaty."

Dowagiac Hunter One Of 6 To Die Throughout State

DOWAGIAC — Funeral services for Dan Schott, 52, Dowagiac, killed in a deer hunting accident Saturday, were to be held today at the First United Methodist church in Dowagiac. He was one of six men from throughout the state wounded fatally by gunfire during the first weekend of the state's firearms deer hunting season. The season opened Saturday morning.

Schott was killed when hit in the face by an arrow fired by another deer hunter about 7:30 Saturday morning south of Cadillac, according to state police at Cadillac.

Officers identified the hunter who fired the 30-30 caliber bullet as David Allen LeDuc, 18, Algonac.

LeDuc was with another hunting party and fired at and missed a deer, police said he told investigating officers.

State police said no charges have been filed but that the shooting remains under investigation.

Schott was owner and operator of Schott Saw company of Dowagiac, and had been active in the Lions club and the Elks lodge 889 in Dowagiac.

Besides his widow Donna, other survivors include two sons, Randy of Dowagiac and Burce of South Bend; two daughters, Mrs. Diane Clark of East Lansing and Miss Karen Schott of Battle Creek; and a sister, Mrs. Robert Koopman of South Bend.

Burial will be in Mission Hills Memorial Gardens in Cass county. McLaughlin-Clark funeral home of Dowagiac is in charge of the services.

Besides Schott, five others were killed by deer hunting gunfire, including two 15-year-old boys, and two men died of heart attacks during the season's opening weekend, according to Associated Press.

One of the heart attack victims, Harold Marmion, 65, of Indian River was stricken Saturday as he dressed a deer he had shot a short time earlier.

James E. Tubb, 42, of Saginaw, was killed after being shot in the chest by another hunter in Clement Township of Gladwin County.

Gladwin County Sheriff's deputies said Tubb's body was found in the woods by another hunter Saturday morning.

Thomas P. Gruenberg, 15, of Flushing, was found dead by another hunter in Missaukee County near Moddersville. Authorities said Gruenberg was sitting in a lawn chair at a deer run when he was apparently shot by another hunter.

Joseph F. Ruelle, 51, of Detroit, died of a heart attack while hunting near Bear Lake Township in Kalamazoo County, according to State Police.

Roy Kolakowski, 46, of Detroit died Saturday night after he reportedly shot himself in the hip while hunting with his stepson in Backus Township, Roscommon County. Sheriff's deputies said the gun's safety apparently was defective.

Steve J. Gietzen, 15, of Remus was found dead Sunday in Sheridan Township, Mecosta County. Deputies said the youth apparently fell on his gun sometime Saturday.

Carroll Shance of Vermontville was found fatally wounded Sunday near a relative's home in Allegan Township, Gladwin County. State Police said Shance was shot in the back. They said the incident was under investigation.

Police also reported several injuries during the weekend. The firearms deer hunting season, which started at daybreak Saturday, ends Nov. 30.

larcenies, and 15 per cent of the vehicle thefts.

Most of those arrested were prosecuted, and 70 per cent of the adults who were prosecuted were convicted, the report said.

The statistics showed a marked increase in the number of teen-agers arrested for murder as well as for robbing and stealing. Ten per cent of the 16,000 persons charged with homicide were under 18.

During the past five years, the report said, "there was a 51 per cent increase in the number of persons under 18 years of age arrested for murder." By contrast, the number of adults arrested for murder increased only 29 per cent during the same period.

In all crime categories, there was a 9 per cent increase in the number of teen-agers arrested in 1974 compared with the previous years. There was only a 1 per cent increase in the number of adults arrested.

Teen-agers comprised 17 per cent of those charged with assault, almost 20 per cent of those charged with rape, nearly one-third of those charged with robbery, 53 per cent of those charged with burglary, 49 per cent of those charged with larceny, and 55 per cent of those charged with vehicle theft.

Quinlan Attorney Denies Reports Of Ruling Appeal

By STEPHEN M. BROWN
Associated Press Writer
MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) —

The attorney for Karen Anne Quinlan's parents today denied published reports that they had already decided to appeal a state court ruling preventing them from ordering their daughter's respirator disconnected.

Paul W. Armstrong, attorney for Joseph and Julia Quinlan in their request for court approval to let their 21-year-old comatose daughter "die with dignity," said Karen's parents were still considering whether to appeal the Nov. 10 ruling by Superior Court Judge Robert Muir Jr.

"No decision has been made yet," Armstrong said early today. However, he did not rule out the possibility that Muir's decision would be appealed. Armstrong had indicated previously that the parents would take their legal battle to higher

It certainly doesn't resolve the questions as far as the Quinlan family is concerned, nor does it set forth guidelines for physicians and attorneys who turn to it for such. Therefore we have no course but to appeal."

Today, Armstrong said he didn't know when the Quinlans might reach a decision about appealing Muir's decision.

made to reverse it and to restrain lower courts from going beyond what the high court envisioned.

In addition, the plan would urge appointment of judges who are "fairminded and objective on abortion," urge law professors and lawyers to write articles for law journals attacking abortion's philosophical basis and set up a hot-line in each state so that injunctions, court challenges or "prosecutions directed toward Catholic hospitals can be immediately and effectively met."

All dioceses would be urged to increase contacts with congressmen "urging positive support for a human life amendment."

A decline in writing skills among students entering college has been noted for several years. Scores in the verbal aptitude tests administered by the College Entrance Examination Board declined from 478 of a possible 800 in 1964 to 434 for 1975 high school graduates.

In the NAEP assessments, English scholars and teachers ranked essays into high, middle and low quality. In 1974, the NAEP reported, good writers were as good as in the 1970 assessment and wrote longer essays without losing coherence. But the poor writers were worse than in 1970, and there were more of them than in the earlier assessment.

The NAEP report said a majority of students at all three age-levels handled basic writing mechanics adequately. But there was a big drop in coherence between the two assessments and a trend toward more sentence fragments.

Sentenced For Slapping

TOKYO (AP) — The Tokyo district court sentenced an ultra-rightist to two years at hard labor today for slapping Prime Minister Takeo Miki during the national funeral service last June for former Prime Minister Eisaku Sato.

Presiding Judge Seiji Ueda said Hiroshi Fudeyasu, 35, had "insulted Miki and the people and greatly impaired Japan's international prestige."

Fudeyasu slapped Miki twice in the face and knocked him down but the prime minister was not injured.

A police report said the man also tried to hand Miki a knife and a note calling on him to commit suicide because "Prime Minister Miki is a enemy of the people and the nation for trying to force ratification of the nuclear nonproliferation treaty."

'Open Meetings' Bill Likely To Precipitate Fight

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Senate is scheduled to vote this week on an "open meetings" bill which permits closed-door sessions of public bodies in a variety of instances. The measure is hailed as the last step in a sweeping political reform package, but critics contend it legalizes "executive sessions" on the part of public bodies when they don't want their activities under public scrutiny. While the Senate and House return today for a week of normal activity, negotiations are slated to continue behind the scenes over the state's fiscal problems. Democratic leaders and Gov. William Milliken are still trying to reach an agreement on how large a deficit the state faces and what to do about it. Leaders reported last week the two sides still were $40 million apart on the size of the deficit. — Milliken maintaining it is $238 million; the Democrats insisting he has over-estimated welfare needs and arguing that some money owed Michigan by the federal government should be counted on the plus side.

Once a deficit figure is settled on, the two sides will start bargaining over how much and where to cut the state budget. The legislature has already rejected Milliken's first proposal to cut the deficit in half by spending cutbacks of $150 million.

The open meetings bill before the Senate, meanwhile, is somewhat weaker than a similar measure before a House committee. And a battle may develop between backers of totally open meetings and lawmakers who feel some official business must be done in secret.

The Senate bill generally requires that meetings of public bodies be open, that deliberations and decisions be made in public sessions, and that extensive notice of each meeting be given.

But the measure also approves executive, secret sessions for a variety of reasons — to consider employment matters, firing or disciplining of a worker, to discuss legal matters, or to talk about buying or selling property.

A public body could go behind closed doors during an emergency meeting if it believed there was a threat to the public safety that would be made worse if it were discussed publicly. And political caucuses of different parties within a public body are not covered, nor are meetings over collective bargaining activities.

"It's a closed-meetings bill," said Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, sponsor of a much stricter House bill which permits virtually no closed meetings. But he acknowledged there was little chance the legislature will approve such a drastic measure.

In other action slated for this week, the Senate is scheduled to discuss bills which require an extra worker to guard a manhole when another worker goes underground; which permit right turns on red lights; and which shift the fiscal year from July 1-June 30 to Oct. 1-Sept. 30.

The House meanwhile, is set to vote on a measure to protect Lake Michigan dunes by regulating sand mining companies.

Opponents of the bill said they would continue last week's narrowly-lost fight to reduce a proposed 1 1/2-cent per ton tax miners would pay the Department of Natural Resources for enforcement.

The bill would require sand miners working within two miles of any Great Lakes shoreline to get permits from the DNR. The three-year permits would not be granted until miners assured the DNR that excavation would not harm surrounding areas. When finished, miners would have to re-vegetate the land.

Six companies and two subsidiaries took 4.5 million tons of sand from along Lake Michigan last year, state officials say. The firms are regulated only by local zoning rules that are difficult to enforce, say bill supporters.

A final vote is also possible on an unemployment compensation bill which would permit some workers who voluntarily quit jobs to draw benefits.

Gov. Milliken has blasted the measure as giving coverage to persons never intended to be given unemployment aid. The bill would force businesses to pay far too many benefits and weaken their ability to compete with firms in other states, he said.

Action on the measure was delayed last week to gain time to persuade several Democrats that Milliken is wrong.

In other House action, debate may begin on bills to make major changes in the ways consumers can fight back at business cheats and to create a job development authority for recession-plagued Michigan.

Car Misses Deer; Two Men Hurt

MARCELLUS — Two rural Dowagiac men were injured in a one-car crash about a mile west of here at 1 a.m. Sunday morning when the driver swerved to avoid three deer according to Cass county sheriff's deputies.

BH School Hosting Open House Tuesday

Parents will have to put their thinking caps on when they come for the annual Open House at the Benton Harbor Seventh - Eighth Grade Center tomorrow at 7 p.m.

Principal Roy D. Norton and his staff have prepared an evening of demonstrations that do much more than simply ask parents to watch and listen — parents will be asked to join in to listen and learn.

For example, parents and students alike will tackle tough math problems using calculators and the latest approaches to learning basic math functions. Memories will come to the foreground when parents attend a social studies panel discussion with a historical perspective, telling "That's the Way It Was." Other classroom techniques will be reviewed, and students and teachers will be presenting "live" classroom demonstrations throughout the night.

"In our school, we'd like the parents to really know what's going on when they send their child to school each day," explained Principal Norton. "With a better understanding of what we are trying to accomplish, parents can join with us to provide each student with every opportunity to gain a useful and valuable education which will enable him to continue on in high school."

Gary Mitchell, 20, 121 Erie street, South Haven waived a preliminary examination on a charge of delivery (sale) of amphetamines. Bond was reduced from $10,000 to $500.

Randy David Lute, 19, route 1, South Haven waived a preliminary examination on a charge of delivery (sale) of amphetamines. Bond was reduced from $10,000 to $1,000 personal recognizance.

Dennis Hammond, 20, 300 Erie street, South Haven waived a preliminary examination on a charge of delivery (sale) of cocaine. Bond was reduced from $10,000 to $1,000 personal recognizance.

All three had originally demanded preliminary hearings, but then waived them.

The three men were arrested the same day at different locations as a result of a drug investigation by South Haven and state police.

In other court cases, three South Haven area men, William Dunning, 33, Lannie Springer, 21, and Albert Carr, 31, all waived preliminary examinations and were bound over when arraigned on charges of breaking and entering.

The three were arrested by Covert police in connection with an Oct. 2 break-in of a Covert township home.

Springer and Carr were released on $1,000 personal recognizance bond while Dunning was ordered held in lieu of $5,000 bond. Covert police said Dunning is wanted by authorities in Eugene, Oregon, on a charge of first degree assault and hit-and-run.

Harbert Wilkes, 34, Bangor was bound over to Van Buren circuit court on a charge of assault while armed. Wilkes, also known as James Harvey Wilkes, was arrested by Bangor police in connection with a Nov. 1 incident in which Miss Mary Comer, 18, of Bangor was shot in her home. Bond of $15,000 was continued.

DOCTORS LEASE BUILDING: Southwestern Medical clinic's new facility, adjacent to Berrien General hospital, was formerly county juvenile home. Structure was completely remodeled to house the central clinic and administration offices. Open house is scheduled next Sunday.

Remodeled Juvenile Home Rented By Physicians

BERRIEN CENTER — The Southwestern Medical clinic will hold an open house on Sunday, Nov. 23, between 2 and 5 p.m. at its new central clinic and headquarters near Berrien Center. The new facility is located in a separate building adjacent to Berrien General Hospital.

Donald Gast, clinic administrator, said county residents are invited to attend the open house. Staff members will conduct tours of the building and refreshments will be served.

The new facility is a 4,000 square foot, single-story structure which was previously the county juvenile home. The clinic, a professional corporation of 19 physicians, leases the building from nearby Berrien General hospital.

The building was totally remodeled and contains 11 private, completely equipped examination rooms, two consultation offices, two nurses' stations, the administration, billing and medical records departments, and a lobby and reception area.

The main clinic had been located in Berrien General Hospital since 1968. The clinic also operates branch locations in Berrien Springs and Bridgman.

Emergency treatment is provided 24-hours a day through the emergency room at Berrien General Hospital.

The clinic staff includes specialists in family practice, obstetrics, pediatrics, geriatrics, surgery, ophthalmology, radiology, and internal medicine.

Currently serving on the staff are: Herbert A. Atkinson, M.D.; Kenley F. Burkhardt, M.D.; Weldon J. Cooke, M.D.; John H. Edling, M.D.; Janet L. Frey, M.D.; Richard A. Hirschler,

M.D.; Hal L. Kime, D.O.; Helene M. Olson, M.D.; Robert S. Schindler, M.D.; Clarence A. Snyder, M.D.; Robert W. Wesche, M.D.; James L. Wierman, D.O.; Julia L. Wixted, M.D.; and Charles H. Rhodes, M.D.

Several of the clinic's staff members also serve tours as medical missionaries in various parts of the world. Currently serving overseas are: William F. Douce, D.O., Ecuador; David J. Drake, M.D., Africa; Roland R. Stephens, M.D., Rhodesia; Douglas H. Taylor, M.D., Africa; and E. Duane Silvernale, M.D., Haiti.

Economic Summit Seeks Tariff Cuts

RAMBOUILLET, France (AP) — The first international economic summit conference ends today with the United States and five other nations agreeing to press for new tariff cuts and more stable currency exchange rates.

President Ford and the leaders of France, Britain, West Germany, Italy and Japan reached tentative agreement Sunday. Their aides went to work on a final statement calling for a renewal of near-stalemated trade negotiations in Geneva and adoption of guidelines for currency exchange rates.

A conference spokesman said the negotiations which began Saturday at the 14th century chateau of Rambouillet, 28 miles southwest of Paris, were "precise, fruitful and in depth."

The agreement on exchange rates, aimed at ending a long dispute between the United States and France, was expected to establish limits within which currency values could vary in international money markets without the central banks buying or selling to control the rate of exchange.

President Ford said he was "confident we can find a way to wrap up this issue," his economic coordinator, L. William Seidman, told newsmen.

France wanted to return to a system of fixed exchange rates but recently relaxed its stand. The United States had held out for freely floating exchange rates, but Seidman said Washington would not object if other nations tried to keep the rates for their currencies within set limits "as long as we are free to follow floating exchange rates."

Ford told the other heads of government Sunday that the United States would welcome foreign investment in new U.S. energy projects and promised to export a portion of the output, wherever possible.

Seidman said there is no present barrier to members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries investing in American energy programs and claims of the payoff.

The conference also focused on ways to reinvigorate tariff-reduction negotiations now languishing in Geneva. Ford told the other government chiefs he felt the Geneva talks should be completed by 1977 and should produce tariff reductions on a scale at least as great as those agreed to during the Kennedy-Round talks in the 1960s.

Seidman said Ford also discussed New York City's financial plight Sunday. The White House aide gave no details but indicated the President talked about the conditions under which he would be willing to endorse federal aid for the city.

Asked if the other leaders of the other nations had mentioned the matter, he replied, "We have heard their expressions of concern in the past but they were more interested in listening to the President's views."

PAINT CANS, GLASS CAN KILL

Time To Inspect Pastures

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Fall is probably one of the best times to inspect pastures and fields for man-made livestock hazards which can injure or kill.

As grasses wither or are harvested, it's easier to spot things like paint cans and car batteries — sources of deadly lead — or small sharp objects like broken glass. "One paint can could fix up a number of animals," said John Quinn, state veterinarian in charge of the Agriculture Department's Animal Health Division.

"Cattle especially seem to have a craving for lead. Residues of lead-based paint inside an empty can are plenty to kill them," he said recently.

Paint on farm buildings should be lead-free, of course, Quinn said.

An abandoned car battery in a pasture junk pile killed several cattle earlier this year in Michigan, he said.

Such poisonings don't happen often anymore, Quinn said, but even a couple times a year is too much.

Field hazards which are not quite so dangerous, but can cut the feet of livestock include tin cans, wire, nails and broken bottles or glass, said Richard Dunn, a Michigan State University professor of animal husbandry.

"Broken-down fences may also injure animals," said Dunn, a specialist in horse care.

Horses tend to run into barbed wire when scared or may reach through it and catch their feet, Dunn said. The problem becomes worse if fences are loose.

Occasionally, livestock are sickened from eating poison plants.

Cattle sometimes find bracken fern while horses may reach over fences to nibble poison berries on decorative bushes.

"It's not much of a problem in well-managed pastures," Dunn said. "Nature's design is for animals to eat the safe plants first."

One plant livestock owners should get rid of is a wild cherry tree. Its leaves contain prussic acid, Quinn said.

Even wholesome foods can sometimes harm animals, he said.

In the early spring, horses sometimes become ill from eating lush new greens after a winter diet of dry hay. Quinn said. Horses also sometimes break out of stalls and overeat feed grains, which doesn't kill them but makes them very sick, he said.

In the summer, cattle have been known to break into cornfields and become ill or die from eating too many corn plants, Quinn said. In controlled amounts as silage, such food is fine, he said.

Milliken Is Miffed By 'Bottle' Report

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A member of Gov. William Milliken's administration, which has favored a ban on non-returnable bottles and cans, helped bury just such a bill last week.

While Milliken lobbyists were urging the House Consumers Committee to support the measure, Commerce Director Richard Helmbrecht was releasing a critical analysis of the "bottle bill," including a recommendation that it be defeated.

"I was not pleased with the timing," a miffed Milliken commented.

Milliken's lobbyists were basing their arguments on a 400-page Public Service Commission staff report which supported the bill. Helmbrecht's analysis was aimed directly against the contents in the report of the PSC, which is under Helmbrecht's supervision.

Two legislators said the findings in Helmbrecht's analysis helped convince them to vote to transfer the bill to the House Appropriations Committee for further study.

That committee, faced with the immediate need to cut $200 million out of the state budget, is regarded as unlikely to support any measure which might add to state costs.

The Helmbrecht analysis raised questions about the bill's implementation costs and contended that its passage would increase rather than reduce energy consumption in the state.

It also stated that jobs would be lost and damage would be done to long-range goals of reducing solid waste.

Milliken, who has taken positions on the bill which were rebutted in the analysis, said he had chastised Helmbrecht about the timing of the study's release.

"He and I did have a talk...he apologized for the timing. I do not think it was a deliberate thing on his part," the governor said.

Labor Department Director Keith Molin also has opposed the bill in the past.

George Weeks, Milliken's executive secretary, defended the internal dissent on the bill, saying Helmbrecht and Molin were appropriately sensitive to opposition from business and labor.

SUPERBOSS of New York City would be Treasury Secretary William Simon under legislation now under congressional consideration. Simon would head a proposed federal board with broad powers overseeing assistance to the financially beleaguered city.

NUMEROUS Americans in 1773 who opposed radicalism would have welcomed any reasonable solution to their grievances with Britain. The colonists were a pleasure-loving people, spoiled by living in the wealthiest (per capita), freest, lowest-taxed nation in the world. Most of them thought the cantankerous New Englanders had pushed the quarrel with the mother country too far. One witty Bostonian summed it up when he said he would rather be ruled by one tyrant 3,000 miles away than 3,000 tyrants three miles away. The World Almanac recalls.

Refugees Nearly Settled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Resettlement of Vietnamese refugees in the United States should be nearly complete by Christmas, but the director of the government's refugee task force says many of those who fled their homeland still are far from obtaining economic success. Julia Taft, director of the State Department refugee task force, said in an interview Saturday that 40 per cent of the Vietnamese have not found jobs and those who are working generally make low pay. That means, she said, about 14 per cent are receiving some sort of government assistance.

CARVES, COLLECTS DECOYS

His Duck Season Lasts All Year

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — In the early 1850s, Charlie "Charlie" Green says he found a way to make duck-hunting season last all year — he began carving decoys.

And that hobby, which he says is the only true American handicraft, since it was never practiced in Europe, has led him to pick up a number of ribbons in contest. His hobby has expanded to carvings of sea gulls, song birds and owls as well as ducks.

The local hardware merchant still makes decoys, but most of his spare time now is spent carving decorative pieces for walls and office desks. He also makes mobiles.

For the 28th Annual Midwest Decoy Contest, he fashioned a set of mergansers (fish-eating fowl). But he still spends plenty of cold, clammy autumn mornings crouched in a duck blind, looking out for rare species to provide him with new coloring patterns for his decoys.

He shoots the ducks, although not many in a season, then takes them home and skins them. His finished products each carry a price tag of $40 to $400.

Most of his carving is done in bass wood bought from home builders. He also scouts around for trees knocked down in storms. Then he stacks the wood, letting it air dry for three or four years.

He's also a decoy collector, owning samples of wooden fowl that date back to the days of the Civil War.

And his work extends to his artist daughter Mary Lou, often found painting water fowl in water colors and ink in the shop behind Green's Hardware. Son Chuck, 24, also carves. As for Green's wife Frances, "she just puts up with us," says her husband.

Want Woman Justice

DETROIT (AP) — The lone female vice president in the United Auto Workers union and three female state representatives have urged President Ford to appoint a woman to the U.S. Supreme Court seat vacated by retiring Justice William O. Douglas.

Odessa Komer, director of the UAW's women's department, said there is an abundance of female candidates including former Michigan Congresswoman Martha W. Griffiths, Judge Shirley Hufstader of the 8th U.S. Court of Appeals in Los Angeles and Judge Constance Baker Motley of the U.S. District Court in New York.

The three lawmakers introduced a resolution calling on Ford to appoint either Judge Cornelia Kennedy, a U.S. District Court judge in Detroit or Justice Mary Coleman of the Michigan Supreme Court. Urging the appointments are Reps. Connie Binsted of Maple City; Colleen House Engler, Bay City; and Ruth McNamee, Birmingham.

Competency Ruling Due For Mrs. Moore

CARVES, COLLECTS DECOYS

His Duck Season Lasts All Year

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — In the early 1950s, Charlie "Charlie" Green says he found a way to make duck-hunting season last all year — he began carving decoys.

And that hobby, which he says is the only true American handicraft, since it was never practiced in Europe, has led him to pick up a number of ribbons in contest. His hobby has expanded to carvings of sea gulls, song birds and owls as well as ducks.

The local hardware merchant still makes decoys, but most of his spare time now is spent carving decorative pieces for walls and office desks. He also makes mobiles.

For the 28th Annual Midwest Decoy Contest, he fashioned a set of mergansers (fish-eating fowl). But he still spends plenty of cold, clammy autumn mornings crouched in a duck blind, looking out for rare species to provide him with new coloring patterns for his decoys.

He shoots the ducks, although not many in a season, then takes them home and skins them. His finished products each carry a price tag of $40 to $400.

Most of his carving is done in bass wood bought from home builders. He also scouts around for trees knocked down in storms. Then he stacks the wood, letting it air dry for three or four years.

He's also a decoy collector, owning samples of wooden fowl that date back to the days of the Civil War.

And his work extends to his artist daughter Mary Lou, often found painting water fowl in water colors and ink in the shop behind Green's Hardware. Son Chuck, 24, also carves. As for Green's wife Frances, "she just puts up with us," says her husband.

Want Woman Justice

DETROIT (AP) — The lone female vice president in the United Auto Workers union and three female state representatives have urged President Ford to appoint a woman to the U.S. Supreme Court seat vacated by retiring Justice William O. Douglas.

Odessa Komer, director of the UAW's women's department, said there is an abundance of female candidates including former Michigan Congresswoman Martha W. Griffiths, Judge Shirley Hufstetler of the 9th U.S. Court of Appeals in Los Angeles and Judge Constance Baker Motley of the U.S. District Court in New York.

The three lawmakers introduced a resolution calling on Ford to appoint either Judge Cornelia Kennedy, a U.S. District Court judge in Detroit or Justice Mary Coleman of the Michigan Supreme Court. Urging the appointments are Reps. Connie Binsfeld of Maple City; Colleen House Engler, Bay City; and Ruth McNamee, Birmingham.

Franco's Surgeon Is 'Satisfied'

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco's chief surgeon said today he was "satisfied" with the condition of his 82-year-old patient following his third major operation three days ago.

Dr. Manuel Hidalgo Huertas said the 82-year-old dictator passed a quiet night without further complications.

Hidalgo Huertas first operated on Franco two weeks ago to repair a punctured artery and stem internal hemorrhaging. He operated again four days later, after the hemorrhaging resumed, and removed two-thirds of the stomach.

Last Friday, the sutures from the second operation broke, and Hidalgo Huertas operated for the third time to repair the damage.

Madrid newspapers acknowledged the need for the operation but they questioned the morality of the team of 26 doctors keeping Franco alive with machines working for his vital organs — heart, lungs and kidneys. But the rightist newspaper Arriba commented: "Franco is suffering so that Spaniards will not have to suffer when he disappears."

Leftist Rally In Lisbon Fails To Produce Coup

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portugal's moderate government has survived another leftist rally which Socialist leaders predicted would launch an attempt at a coup.

More than 30,000 persons, called out by ultra-leftist trade unions, filled Lisbon's biggest downtown square Sunday. They called for the return to power of pro-Communist Premier Vasco Gouveia, who was ousted two months ago and replaced by Premier Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo, a moderate.

The crowd also cheered Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho, the national security chief, who sent the rally a message that said: "I salute the glorious demonstration of the real working people. ... Otelo is with thee."

Socialist leaders, whose party dominates the government and the elected constituent assembly, charged that the left-wing extremists would use the rally to attempt to set up a revolutionary regime in Lisbon. But the crowd dispersed peacefully after chanting, "Vasco! Vasco! Vasco will return!" and singing the Portuguese national anthem and the Communist Internationale.

Socialist party spokesmen said their party's call to its supporters for a national mobilization against the expected coup forced the Communists to call off their plans.

Nearly 200 anti-Communist members of the 250-member constituent assembly spent the weekend in Oporto, in conservative northern Portugal. They met at the local Socialist party headquarters to discuss events in Lisbon.

Azevedo canceled a speech in Viseu, 150 miles northeast of Lisbon, and went to Cascais, on the coast 15 miles west of Lisbon. Aides said his doctors had ordered him to rest.

Meanwhile, in the Azores islands in the Atlantic, the con-

South Africa Clash Leaves Eleven Dead

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — South African troops clashed with African guerrillas fighting for independence for South-West Africa, and one soldier and 10 guerrillas were killed, the government's defense headquarters reported today.

It said guerrillas from the South-West African People's Organization (SWAPO) attacked a South African camp in the "operation zone" of South-West Africa last Tuesday, and the troops counterattacked. The location of the action was not given.

SWAPO has made a number of attacks from bases in southern Angola on South African positions in the territory. South Africa rules South-West Africa under a League of Nations mandate which the United Nations no longer recognizes.

Leftist Rally In Lisbon Fails To Produce Coup

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portugal's moderate government has survived another leftist rally which Socialist leaders predicted would launch an attempt at a coup.

More than 30,000 persons, called out by ultra-leftist trade unions, filled Lisbon's biggest downtown square Sunday. They called for the return to power of pro-Communist Premier Vasco Goncalves, who was ousted two months ago and replaced by Premier Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo, a moderate.

The crowd also cheered Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho, the national security chief, who sent the rally a message that said: "I salute this glorious demonstration of the real working people. ... Otelo is with thee."

Socialist leaders, whose party dominates the government and the elected constituent assembly, charged that the left-wing extremists would use the rally to attempt to set up a revolutionary regime in Lisbon. But the crowd dispersed peacefully after chanting, "Vasco! Vasco! Vasco will return!" and singing the Portuguese national anthem and the Communist Internationale.

Socialist party spokesmen said their party's call to its supporters for a national mobilization against the expected coup forced the Communists to call off their plans.

Nearly 200 anti-Communist members of the 250-member constituent assembly spent the weekend in Oporto, in conservative northern Portugal. They met at the local Socialist party headquarters to discuss events in Lisbon.

Franco's Surgeon Is 'Satisfied'

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco's chief surgeon said today he was "satisfied" with the condition of his 82-year-old patient following his third major operation three days ago.

Dr. Manuel Hidalgo Huertas said the 82-year-old dictator passed a quiet night without further complications.

Hidalgo Huertas first operated on Franco two weeks ago to repair a punctured artery and stem internal hemorrhaging. He operated again four days later, after the hemorrhaging resumed, and removed two-thirds of the stomach.

Last Friday, the sutures from the second operation broke, and Hidalgo Huertas operated for the third time to repair the damage.

Madrid newspapers acknowledged the need for the operation but they questioned the morality of the team of 26 doctors keeping Franco alive with machines working for his vital organs — heart, lungs and kidneys. But the rightist newspaper Arriba commented: "Franco is suffering so that Spaniards will not have to suffer when he disappears."

NBC To Give Its Version Of Famed Sheppard Case

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — George Peppard, the star and chief neurosurgeon of NBC's "Doctors: Hospital," plays a different kind of medicine, man tonight in NBC's "Guilty or Innocent: The Sam Sheppard Murder Case."

He portrays Sheppard, the Ohio osteopath whose famous trial and conviction for the murder of his pregnant wife in 1954 led to a landmark U.S.

Supreme Court ruling that "virulent publicity" had denied him a fair trial.

In throwing out the conviction, the high court in 1966 placed the responsibility for preventing "trial by newspaper" on public officials, not the press, and put most of the blame for what it called the "carnival atmosphere" of Sheppard's trial on the presiding judge.

Sheppard, who died in 1970 at age 46, claimed both during the trial and his nine years in prison that he was innocent. A Cleveland jury agreed and acquitted him at his second trial in October 1966.

His case and how it affected his life made for absorbing drama, but tonight's three-hour dramatization is anything but that.

It follows Sheppard's account of the summer night his wife was slain in the upstairs bedroom of their suburban Bay Village home fronting Lake Erie west of Cleveland.

A sequence of blurred still photographs, made for the NBC show, are used to recreate Sheppard's contention that an intruder had knocked him unconscious after having beaten Mrs. Sheppard to death.

Then come various phases of the osteopath's ordeal — the media clamoring for his arrest, the "carnival atmosphere" of his heavily-publicized first trial, his life in prison, the arrival of a young lawyer, named F. Lee Bailey to win his acquittal and Sheppard's troubled life as a free man.

To move the show along, actors cast as key figures in Sheppard's life — a newspaperman, Bailey and a wrestling promoter — periodically precede various scenes with comments about what they'd thought and felt.

But the show just doesn't move along. It seems oddly flat, uneven and occasionally mawkish, largely because of the directing and acting.

One of the supporting players is Nina Van Pallandt, whose chief claim to fame is her friendship with Clifford Irving, who got in a lot of trouble a few years back with a book concerning Howard Hughes.

In NBC's show, she's woefully miscast as the German divorcee who became Sheppard's pen pal while he was in prison and his second wife (she later divorced him) when he was freed.

But the biggest disappointment is Peppard, who turned in a brilliant acting job in a 1969 war movie called "The Victors" and hasn't seemed able to rouse himself to that level since.

His effort tonight appears a mixture of ham and Banacek. Save for a prison scene where he bolls an inmate who wants him to get drugs from the prison hospital, he just doesn't seem believable.

Which is a pity, not only for Peppard but also for a show that should have proved engrossing, considering the subject matter.

KISS OF LIFE

Florida skies are overcast on a muggy day, July 17, 1967, as the linemen report for a routine morning job in a Jacksonville suburb. The power lines are dead, they're told. Except one. And lineman Randall Champion hits it and is knocked unconscious. Other linemen, a block away, race down their poles to help.

Jimmy Thompson is first up the pole where Champion is hanging upside down. He begins mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to his stricken buddy who has turned blue. Another lineman follows Thompson up and together they bring him down. He regains consciousness halfway down the pole and is sped off by ambulance. He will be out of work a few months for skin grafts on his feet, where the electricity burned out.

It's a routine morning for Rocco Morabito, too. In fact, a slow day. The veteran photographer for the Jacksonville Journal is in the same neighborhood on another assignment and passes the men working on the lines on his way. He finishes his assignment and decides to swing by the linemen again for whatever they might be worth in the rest of his film pack.

People are shouting as he pulls up. He looks up and sees Champion, upside down, unconscious. Morabito shoots one quick picture, feeling helpless as he races to the car-telephone. "Get help," he tells the office, not knowing a distress call is already out. When Morabito returns, Thompson is up the pole, supplying the "kiss of life."

Morabito shoots again and again. He races back to the office and hand-develops the film — three minutes past deadline but the paper is holding for these pictures, which will earn him a Pulitzer.

Pulitzer Prize Winner, 1968.

ATTORNEY SEEKING UNIQUE TASTE

Minnesota Wine Being Developed

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Wines should reflect the character of a region in which they are produced and Minnesota needs a wine, like those produced elsewhere, a Minneapolis attorney believes.

So David Bailly is planning to open a small commercial winery at Hastings — the first in Minnesota — within the next few years. He said he hopes to have enough locally-produced grapes to begin operation in 1977.

"What we need is a wine that is palatable and pleasant, yet different, unique," Bailly said.

"Why should we try to be California or France? I don't know if we'd be successful if we produced another inexpensive California or French-type wine," he added.

"Minnesota is a harsh, strong country and its wines should reflect it," Bailly said. "I want to produce a wine that speaks to Minnesota."

"We will be producing high-acid wines that are heavily-flavored. Our wines will have a higher acid-content than most of the others in the world."

Bailly, in his third year of grape production on an eight-acre field near Hastings, said he has been a wine fancier for 15 or 20 years, from the drinking end.

Growing grapes in a northern climate is not a major problem, Bailly said, because several varieties have been developed that grow in the state and make reasonably good wine.

"Our major problem is having people grow grapes and make wine who have never done it before," he said. "We need experienced people. People here are learning how to do things others already know how to do well."

Bailly said he has been making wine for several years, producing several different varieties in 1973 and 31 varieties in 1974. He said he eliminated several varieties that he had found undesirable this year, and he made about a dozen different types of wine.

Bailly said he has worked more with red wines than white wines, but does not plan to limit production at his winery to wines made from grapes.

"We will use nothing but Minnesota agricultural products, but our winery won't be able to produce enough wine just from grapes. We'll also make wines from apples and honey," he said.

"There's no reason why the grape has any particular corner on the market," he added.

However, Bailly said his vineyard and the nearby five-acre vineyard of Jerry Elser have the combined potential to produce as much as 30,000 bottles of wine at full production.

Bailly also said he plans to double the size of his vineyard within the next five years. He currently has 4,500 vines planted.

The Bailly winery will be a simple structure, with a basement and a first floor, and Bailly said he hopes to age all the wines in oak barrels.

The wines will be made to be drunk young, he added. Current plans call for pressing the grapes in September and bottling the wine the following May. Bailly said the wines would be ready to drink as soon as they had been bottled.

"Minnesota has an unbelievable climate for wine making," Bailly said. "Our falls are nice and cool and the winters are beautiful for working with wine."

"At a temperature of 40 degrees you have absolute freedom for moving wine around and transferring it from one container to another with a minimum chance of contamination or oxidation."

Engineering Study Fostered

Dr. E. A. Bailiff, vice president of research and engineering for Whirlpool Corporation, has been named to the board of governors of CIC+MPME, a new organization to motivate and prepare minority high school students for college engineering study.

The (CIC+MPME) board of governors consists of engineering deans of 14 participating universities and 10 prominent lay members from industry, labor, education and minority organizations. "CIC" stands for the Committee on Institutional Cooperation, the academic consortium of the Big Ten universities and the University of Chicago. The "+" indicates the participation of two non-CIC universities, the Illinois Institute of Technology and Notre Dame university. The MPME stands for Midwest Programs for Minorities in Engineering.

Objectives of the organization will be fourfold: — Identify at an early age talented minority students who can be motivated toward and prepared for entrance into an engineering school.

— Inform students, parents, teachers, advisors and school administrators about opportunities in engineering.

— Conduct programs both on campus and in the high schools to upgrade student competence in mathematics and math-based sciences.

— Involve industrial laboratories and other consumers of engineering talent in work-study programs which can increase student and teacher awareness of engineering.

The million dollar CIC+MPME is being partially supported for its first two years by a $750,000 grant from the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation. Dr. William Thomas, assistant professor of education at Purdue university, is the executive director of the new organization.

Dr. Bailiff, with 22 years in the appliance industry, joined Seeger Refrigerator company, a Whirlpool predecessor company, in 1953. He was named chief engineer of Whirlpool refrigerator in 1957. From 1960 to 1963 he was director of engineering for Whirlpool's St. Paul (Minn.) division at which time he was named general manager of the company's laundry group engineering function in St. Joseph. He became director of corporate engineering in May, 1967, was elected vice president in February, 1968, and appointed vice president of research and engineering in 1970.

Dr. Bailiff has a Ph.D. in mechanical engineering from the University of Minnesota, where he also earned three other degrees. He has been active in the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers and served as chairman of that organization's Select Committee on Appliance Industry Energy Policy and as a member of the Consumer Affairs Board. He is a member of the board of directors of Heit-Quaker corporation, a Whirlpool subsidiary, and serves on several educational institutions' technical and engineering advisory boards.

Movies Shaped Us, Author Says

HOLLYWOOD "the beautiful new book, "Life Goes To the Movies," says that movies are probably the most important aspect of American popular culture.

"The motion picture," Scherman says, "gave us our ideas of right and wrong, good and bad. Movies shaped America, whether we like it or not."

That's why the book was put together, culled from Life's 1,884 issues, from 1936 to 1972. Scherman had edited "The Best of Life," and, after that, he suggested this second volume because, he says, people are more nostalgic about old movies than anything else.

"Movies are coming back. And there are indications, I think, that the star system is coming back, too. It will never be the same as it was, of course. The studios will never again be able to tell the stars who to sleep with."

Many of the photographs in the book were taken by Alfred Eisenstaedt, one of Life's original photographers. Easy first came to Hollywood on assignment during Life's first year, 1936.

"You could get seven dozen oranges for fifteen cents then," he says. "I photographed Cecil B. DeMille on that first trip."

Since then, he's photographed most of them — even up to the present. He just shot Cloris Leachman for a TV Guide cover. His memories of the stars are vivid, sometimes very biting.

"Lamarr gave me a hard time," he says, "and Streisand didn't even say hello when I met her."

Just back from Africa is Daniel Ben-Av, with the inside story of the latest Elizabeth Taylor-Richard Burton wedding. Ben-Av and his associate, Steve Peyton, are promoters, and put together a celebrity tennis tournament in South Africa.

Just before the tournament, Ben-Av was in London where someone approached him.

"Would you like to have the Burtons?" he was asked.

The story was that Liz and Richard wanted a place to get married. They had gone to Israel, found it too crowded for their purposes. They thought maybe in South Africa they would find some seclusion for their wedding. So Ben-Av, naturally, agreed.

Liz and Dick showed up in Johannesburg and were the hit of the show. (Liz even gave Richard Barrett, the black manager of The Three Degrees, a public embrace, which shocked South Africa).

Ben-Av and Leyton took their celebrities to the Chobe game preserve, and Liz and Dick decided that was the place to be married. Nobody was there. There were only four people at the wedding, including the bride and groom.

Alabama Again In Forefront Of Major Bowl Spotlight

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
As usual, Alabama is in the forefront of the post-season bowl spotlight. And as a result of the Crimson Tide's decision to play in the Sugar Bowl against Penn State, either Nebraska or Oklahoma will be shut out of the five major bowls.

The surprising beneficiary of all the weekend's wheeling and dealing, which saw 20 of the 22 major berths unexpectedly filled, could be the newest of them all, the five-year-old Fiesta Bowl, which might have a Top Ten match-up of unbeaten and eighth-ranked Arizona State — provided the Sun Devils defeat Arizona for the Western Athletic Conference title — against the loser of Saturday's Big Eight Conference showdown between second-ranked Nebraska and No. 6 Oklahoma.

The Alabama-Penn State Sugar Bowl pairing was reported by The Associated Press Sunday night and was to be officially announced in New Orleans at 1 p.m., EST, today. With one game left for both teams, fifth-ranked Alabama has a 9-1 record following a 27-6 triumph over Southern Mississippi, to 8-2 for 11th-ranked Penn State, idle over the weekend.

The only vacant bowl berths are one in the Tangerine Bowl against 10th-ranked Miami of Ohio and another in the Peach Bowl against North Carolina State. With some pairings still to be announced officially, The AP has come up with the following bowl line-up:

—Rose Bowl: Big Ten champion (Ohio State or Michigan) vs. Pacific-8 champion (UCLA, California or Stanford).

—Orange Bowl: Nebraska-Oklahoma winner vs. Ohio State-Michigan loser.

—Sugar Bowl: Alabama vs. Penn State.

—Cotton Bowl: Southwest Conference champion (Texas A&M, Texas or Arkansas) vs. Georgia.

—Gator Bowl: Florida vs. Maryland.

—Liberty Bowl: Southern California vs. Arkansas, if the Razorbacks don't win the Southwest Conference title and thereby go to the Cotton Bowl, or Texas A&M. —Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl: Colorado vs.

Texas A&M or Texas.

—Fiesta Bowl: Western Athletic Conference champion (Arizona State or Arizona) vs. Nebraska-Oklahoma loser.

—Sun Bowl: Pitt vs. Kansas-Missouri winner.

—Tangerine Bowl: Miami of Ohio vs. opponent to be selected.

—Peach Bowl: North Carolina State vs. opponent to be selected.

The rash of bowl invitations and the cries from the powerful Big Eight Conference that Alabama is ducking a match with a Big Eight opponent overshadowed a weekend in which nine of the Top Ten teams posted victories while the other, ninth-ranked Notre Dame, dropped out of the bowl picture by losing to Pitt 34-20 as Tony Dorsett romped for 303 yards and scored twice.

After Saturday's 52-0 rout of Iowa State, Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne told Sugar Bowl executive secretary John Barr, "Tell that son of a buck (Bear Bryant) not to duck us."

Osborne was alluding to off-repeated charges that Bryant, who hasn't won in his last eight bowl trips, decides where he wants Alabama to play and also hand-picks the opponent. Bryant has repeatedly said he wanted to play in the first Sugar Bowl in New Orleans' new Superdome, but also said he would rather play for the national championship.

It would take a far-fetched, unlikely series of developments for Alabama to win the national championship by defeating Penn State.

Big Eight Commissioner Charles M. Neinas, confirming the Sugar Bowl had rejected the Nebraska-Oklahoma loser, said, "The only explanation I received was 'local considerations.' I asked for a further explanation and I didn't get one."

Asked why the Sugar Bowl invited Penn State rather than the Nebraska-Oklahoma loser, Clifford H. Kern Jr., president of the sponsoring New Orleans Mid-Winter Sports Association, said, "If I answer that question I'll be confirming something I don't want to confirm."

In Tuscaloosa, Ala., assistant athletic director Charley Thornton confirmed Alabama

had received a bid to the Sugar Bowl, adding: "It's no secret we'd rather go to the Sugar Bowl this year, but it's not true we ducked the Orange Bowl. We never told the Orange Bowl we wouldn't go there. The Orange Bowl passed us by."

Nick Crane, chairman of the Orange Bowl's team selection committee, said Alabama wasn't invited "because both Big Ten teams (Ohio State and Michigan) are ranked higher than Alabama and our tradition is to take the highest-ranked teams on the pick 'em date."

On the field, No. 1-ranked Ohio State pounded Minnesota 38-6 and fourth-ranked Michigan downed Illinois 21-15, setting up next week's annual showdown.

Nebraska thought it might it to make the Orange Bowl before its meeting with Oklahoma but the Sooners, after blowing a 20-0 halftime lead, rallied to nip No. 18 Missouri 28-27 on Joe Washington's 71-yard fourth-down touchdown dash and twopoint conversion run with 4:20 remaining.

The three Southwest Conference challengers all remained in contention — third-ranked Texas A&M with a 33-14 victory over Rice; No. 7 Texas, which turned back winless Texas Christian 27-14 despite the loss of star quarterback Marty Atkins with an early knee injury; and Arkansas, which thumped Southern Methodist 35-7.

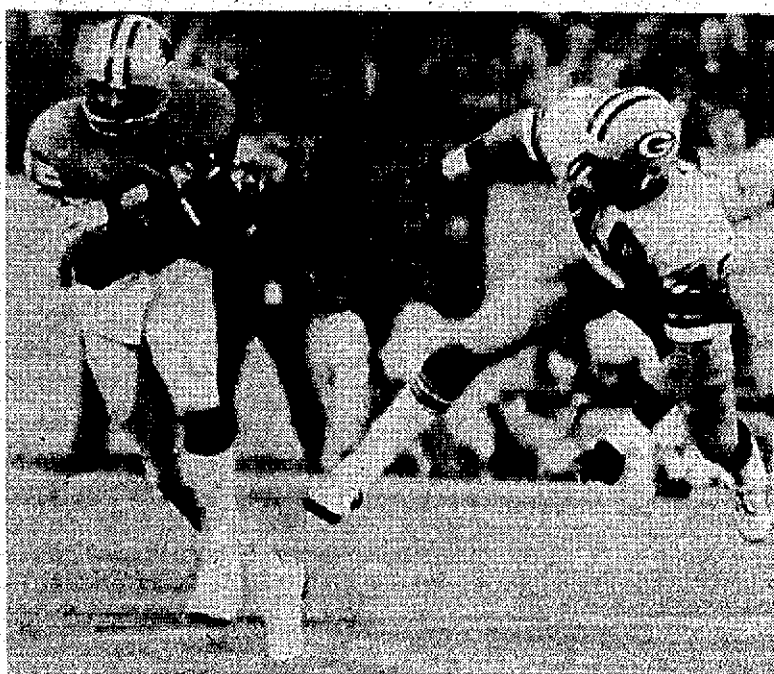

The host team in the Fiesta Bowl will be decided Nov. 29 when Arizona State, which routed Pacific 55-14, meets No. 12 Arizona, which trimmed Colorado State 31-9. Tenth-ranked Colorado shaded No. 17 Kansas 24-21.

Southern Cal, ranked 13th, lost its third in a row since Coach John McKay announced he was leaving for the pros at the end of the season, bowing to Washington 8-7 on Greg Martin's fourth-quarter 12-yard touchdown run.

No. 18 UCLA remained in the Pacific-8 driver's seat by whipping Oregon State 31-9 as John Scaria passed for 247 yards. UCLA can clinch the Pac-8 crown by defeating Southern Cal on Nov. 28. No. 15 California, a 31-14 nonleague winner over Air Force, and Stanford, which outlasted Oregon 33-30, also are in the running but next week's loser will be eliminated.

Florida, No. 14, walloped Kentucky 48-7. Miami of Ohio, ranked No. 16, set a record with its 16th consecutive Mid-American Conference triumph, a 27-8 whipping of Kent State. No. 20 Georgia beat Auburn 28-13.

North Carolina State, trailing Duke 21-7 after three periods, rallied to salvage a 21-21 standoff, enough to earn a bid to the Peach Bowl. Maryland virtually nailed down the Atlantic Coast Conference title by defeating Clemson 22-20.

KEY CATCH: Detroit Lions' Ray Jarvis (45) takes a pass from quarterback Joe Reed, one step ahead of Green Bay Packers' Ken Ellis (48), and runs 48 yards to set up the Lions' game winning field goal in the fourth quarter of Sunday afternoon's game in Pontiac Stadium. Late FG Keeps Playoff Hopes Alive

Mann Bails Out Lions

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The Detroit Lions have managed to get out on ball for another week.

The Green Bay Packers, meanwhile, can't seem to arrest their losing ways.

It might all seem kind of criminal to Packers fans, but Lions supporters can't kick.

Errol Mann can, however, and that's why Detroit took a 13-10 National Football League victory Sunday in a tight battle of National Conference Central Division rivals.

Mann booted a 23-yard field goal with 13 seconds left to prevent a possible overtime game and send the Lions to their third straight triumph since Joe Reed took over at quarterback. It raised Detroit's record to 6-3 and bolstered its wild card playoff hopes, while the Packers saw their almost impossible dream of a 500 season end as they fell to 1-8.

This marks the first time since 1970 that the Lions swept both season games from Green Bay.

"To win in this league your defense has to bail you out," said Detroit coach Rick Forzano. "In every game someone has to bail you out. We're not the Pittsburgh Steelers. We're struggling and fighting. I never worry about how we win as long as we win, baby."

True, it wasn't an artistic success for Detroit, whose triumphs have come against teams that have won a total of only eight games. But it wasn't any success at all for new coach Bart Starr's Packers.

"We weren't very efficient in what we were doing, but everyone is trying hard to win," Starr said calmly.

His quarterback, John Hadl, said: "We're suffering through a tough year. We feel we could have won any of the last four games. This organization is going to win again. It's going to take two or three years, but Bart Starr is doing a hell of a job since he was left with a lot of inexperienced people."

Detroit moved 67 yards in nine plays to score on its first possession as Reed hit tight end Charlie Sanders with a 9-yard touchdown pass. It looked like it would be easy.

But Dexter Bussey lost a fumble to linebacker Fred Carr at the Green Bay six to ruin another possible Detroit TD soon afterwards and not much went Detroit's way thereafter.

"I think the momentum changed when we gave them encouragement," Forzano said. "All of a sudden the game goes the other way...they (Packers) had an excellent game plan. They tried to make us make mistakes and capitalize on them and they did that very well."

Steve Odom returned the second half opening kickoff 49 yards and an added face mask penalty gave Green Bay the ball on the Lions 42. The Packers went on to score on a 28-yard field goal by Joe Danelo to narrow Detroit's lead to 7-3.

Safety Dick Jauron intercepted a Hadl pass and returned it 38 yards to set up a possible Mann field goal, but the veteran kicker — who once belonged to the Packers — missed on a 30-yard attempt.

However, Jauron gave him another chance by picking off another Hadl pass late in the third quarter which led to a 28-yard field goal by Mann.

The Pack wasn't ready to fold, even after Danelo was wide on a 35-yard field goal try four minutes into the final period. Moments later, cornerback Perry Smith intercepted a Reed aerial, returned it 11 yards and on the next play, Willard Harrell hit Odom with a 24-yard touchdown pass on a halfback option. Danelo's conversion tied the score 10-10.

With 6:18 remaining, Jauron intercepted his third pass and it looked like it would have won the game as he sidestepped 41 yards for a touchdown. But a holding penalty against linebacker Paul Naumoff nullified it.

While Hadl couldn't move Green Bay in the closing minutes, Reed managed to guide the Lions from their own 20 to their 45 before hitting Ray Jarvis on a 48-yard pass-run play with 0:54 left to the Packers seven. That set up Mann's winning boot.

"Reed played like a true champion," Forzano said.

Reed took over at quarterback three games earlier in San Francisco after knee injuries claimed Greg Landry and Bill Munson.

49ers' Run Arsenal Guns Down Chicago

By RICHARD H. SMITH

Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — What was supposed to be a big gun in the San Francisco 49ers' offensive arsenal, their running attack, has fired a good shot for the first time this National Football League season.

Del Williams touched it off by going 100 yards on 10 tries Sunday in the 49ers' 31-3 victory over the Chicago Bears, and San Francisco netted 233 yards on the ground, averaging 5.5 yards a rush.

In seven previous games, the 49ers averaged just under 100 yards, and the best individual effort was 72 yards by Williams.

"Our running game really went to work," said Coach Dick Nolan, "and our offensive line was opening some big holes. Delvin had a great day, and we may see more of Kermit Johnson." Johnson, a seventh-round draft choice from UCLA, got his first chance at running back in the last two minutes and gained 25 yards on four tries.

"I was getting great holes," Williams said. "Given the blocking we had today, I feel any back could make 100 yards."

An unhappy Chicago Coach Jack Pardee said, "There is no reason why anyone should be able to run that well outside. We have a young team and when you change around a bit you have problems. You have to turn the screws in. We have to get shoulder pads and helmets on the runner instead of finger-nails."

The Bears, 2-6, whose offense has produced only seven touchdowns in eight games, got a 33-yard field goal from Bob Thomas to offset a 23-yarder by the 49ers' Steve Mike-Mayer earlier in the second quarter. The Bears trailed 10-3 at the half.

Rookie Walt Payton, the Bears' No. 1 draft from Jackson State, made 105 yards on 23 carries, his first game over 100 yards. He also caught three passes for 11 yards and returned five kickoffs a total of 135 yards.

In the second half, the Chicago offense produced only 54 yards and made two costly fumbles. Passer Gary Huff was hit by Cedrick Hardman, and 49er Tommy Hart took the hobble on the bounce and carried 10 yards for a score.

On the Bears' next series, punter Bob Parsons fumbled to give San Francisco possession on Chicago's 37 and set up the 49ers' last score. Sammy Johnson scored from one foot out after Terry Beasley took a 21-yard pass from Steve Spurrier.

Spurrier threw an 18-yard pass to Gene Washington for the 49ers' first half touchdown. Spurrier completed 11 of 21 for 124 yards, with two interceptions, and was sacked three times by rookie Roger Stillwell, former Stanford star.

"I planned to throw more, but the Bears came pretty good in passing situations, and our running game was going good," Spurrier said.

Lack Of Neatness In NFL Vikings, Cards Overcome Mistakes To Win

From Associated Press

Any football coach worth his whistle knows that the only place the game pays off is in the win-loss column. So what if it wasn't neat? It's whether you win or lose, not how you play the game that counts.

That's why Minnesota didn't worry about six fumbles, two interceptions and 50 yards in penalties. What counts is that the Vikings beat New Orleans 20-7 Sunday, extending their National Football League winning streak to nine consecutive games.

And St. Louis doesn't care that its tying touchdown with 20 seconds left against Washington needed a huddle by the officials before it was approved. Seven points is seven points, and that TD forced the overtime that saw the Cardinals keno the Redskins 20-17 on Jim Bakken's 37-yard field goal. The game's nine turnovers? So what?

Neatness counts in the fourth grade but in the NFL, all that matters is putting more points on the scoreboard than the other guys.

Baltimore, for example, neatly demolished the New York Jets 52-19 for Sunday's one-sided award but Houston got the same effect, nipping Miami 20-19 on a touchdown by Ronnie Coleman with 71 seconds left.

Elsewhere, it was Pittsburgh 28, Kansas City 3; Los Angeles 16, Atlanta 7; Detroit 13, Green Bay 10; San Francisco 31, Chicago 3; Philadelphia 13, New York Giants 10; Dallas 24, New England 31; Oakland 26, Cleveland 17, and Denver 27, San Diego 17.

Buffalo plays at Cincinnati tonight, completing the NFL's ninth week of action.

"We made an awful lot of mistakes," noticed Minnesota Coach Bud Grant. "I don't know why, I don't think it was the caliber of the opposition."

The 2-7 Saints didn't turn the ball over once but couldn't take advantage of Minnesota's sloppy play.

Despite his two interceptions, Fran Tarkenton pitched three touchdown passes to keep the Vikings' winning streak going.

Jim Hart's second TD pass of the game to Mel Gray with 20 seconds left tied the game and then Bakken's sure foot won it after seven minutes of overtime for St. Louis. The victory moved the Cards into first place in the NFC East, one game ahead of Washington and Dallas.

Gray caught the tying TD at the goal line and then was stripped of the ball by cornerback Pat Fischer. At first, the play was ruled incomplete but after a lengthy huddle, the officials reversed themselves and allowed the touchdown.

Bert Jones hurled three touchdown passes including a club record 90-yarder to Roger Carr, leading Baltimore to its romp over New York. Jones passed for 277 yards before leaving the game with a rib injury.

Coleman broke five tackles and went seven yards for Houston's winning TD against Miami.

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

As usual, Alabama is in the forefront of the postseason bowl spotlight. And as a result of the Crimson Tide's decision to play in the Sugar Bowl against Penn State, either Nebraska or Oklahoma will be shut out of the five major bowls.

The surprising beneficiary of all the weekend's wheeling and dealing, which saw 20 of the 22 major berths unexpectedly filled, could be the newest of them all, the five-year-old Fiesta Bowl, which might have a Top Ten match-up of unbeaten and eighth-ranked Arizona State — provided the Sun Devils defeat Arizona for the Western Athletic Conference title — against the loser of Saturday's Big Eight Conference showdown between second-ranked Nebraska and No. 6 Oklahoma.

The Alabama-Penn State Sugar Bowl pairing was reported by The Associated Press Sunday night and was to be officially announced in New Orleans at 1 p.m., EST, today. With one game left for both teams, fifth-ranked Alabama has a 9-1 record following a 27-6 triumph over Southern Mississippi, to 8-2 for 11th-ranked Penn State, idle over the weekend.

The only vacant bowl berths are one in the Tangerine Bowl against 16th-ranked Miami of Ohio and another in the Peach Bowl against North Carolina State. With some pairings still to be announced officially, The AP has come up with the following bowl line-up:

—Rose Bowl: Big Ten champion (Ohio State or Michigan) vs. Pacific-8 champion (UCLA, California or Stanford).

—Orange Bowl: Nebraska-Oklahoma winner vs. Ohio State-Michigan loser.

—Sugar Bowl: Alabama vs. Penn State.

—Cotton Bowl: Southwest Conference champion (Texas A&M, Texas or Arkansas) vs. Georgia.

—Gator Bowl: Florida vs. Maryland.

—Liberty Bowl: Southern California vs. Arkansas, if the Razorbacks don't win the Southwest Conference title and thereby go to the Cotton Bowl, or Texas A&M. —Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl: Colorado vs.

Texas A&M or Texas.

—Fiesta Bowl: Western Athletic Conference champion (Arizona State or Arizona) vs. Nebraska-Oklahoma loser.

—Sun Bowl: Pitt vs. Kansas-Missouri winner.

—Tangerine Bowl: Miami of Ohio vs. opponent to be selected.

—Peach Bowl: North Carolina State vs. opponent to be selected.

The rash of bowl invitations and the cries from the powerful Big Eight Conference that Alabama is ducking a match with a Big Eight opponent overshadowed a weekend in which nine of the Top Ten teams posted victories while the other, ninth-ranked Notre Dame, dropped out of the bowl picture by losing to Pitt 34-20 as Tony Dorsett romped for 303 yards and scored twice.

After Saturday's 52-0 rout of Iowa State, Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne told Sugar Bowl executive secretary John Barr, "Tell that son of a buck (Bear Bryant) not to duck us."

Osborne was alluding to oft-repeated charges that Bryant, who hasn't won in his last eight bowl trips, decides where he wants Alabama to play and also hand-picks the opponent.

Bryant has repeatedly said he wanted to play in the first Sugar Bowl in New Orleans' new Superdome, but also said he would rather play for the national championship.

It would take a far-fetched, unlikely series of developments for Alabama to win the national championship by defeating Penn State.

Big Eight Commissioner Charles M. Neinas, confirming the Sugar Bowl had rejected the Nebraska-Oklahoma loser, said, "The only explanation I received was 'local considerations.' I asked for a further explanation and I didn't get one."

Asked why the Sugar Bowl invited Penn State rather than the Nebraska-Oklahoma loser, Clifford H. Kern Jr., president of the sponsoring New Orleans Mid-Winter Sports Association, said, "If I answer that question I'll be confirming something I don't want to confirm."

In Tuscaloosa, Ala., assistant athletic director Charley Thornton confirmed Alabama

had received a bid to the Sugar Bowl, adding: "It's no secret we'd rather go to the Sugar Bowl this year, but it's not true we ducked the Orange Bowl. We never told the Orange Bowl we wouldn't go there. The Orange Bowl passed us by."

Nick Crane, chairman of the Orange Bowl's team selection committee, said Alabama wasn't invited "because both Big Ten teams (Ohio State and Michigan) are ranked higher than Alabama and our tradition is to take the highest-rated teams on the pick 'em date."

On the field, No. 1-ranked Ohio State pounded Minnesota 38-6 and fourth-rated Michigan downed Illinois 21-15, setting up next week's annual showdown. Nebraska thought it might it to make the Orange Bowl before its meeting with Oklahoma but the Sooners, after blowing a 20-0 halftime lead, rallied to nip No. 18 Missouri 28-27 on Joe Washington's 71-yard fourth-down touchdown dash and twopoint conversion run with 4:20 remaining.

The three Southwest Conference challengers all remained in contention — third-ranked Texas A&M with a 33-14 victory over Rice; No. 7 Texas, which turned back winless Texas Christian 27-11 despite the loss of star quarterback Marty Akins with an early knee injury, and Arkansas, which thumped Southern Methodist 35-7.

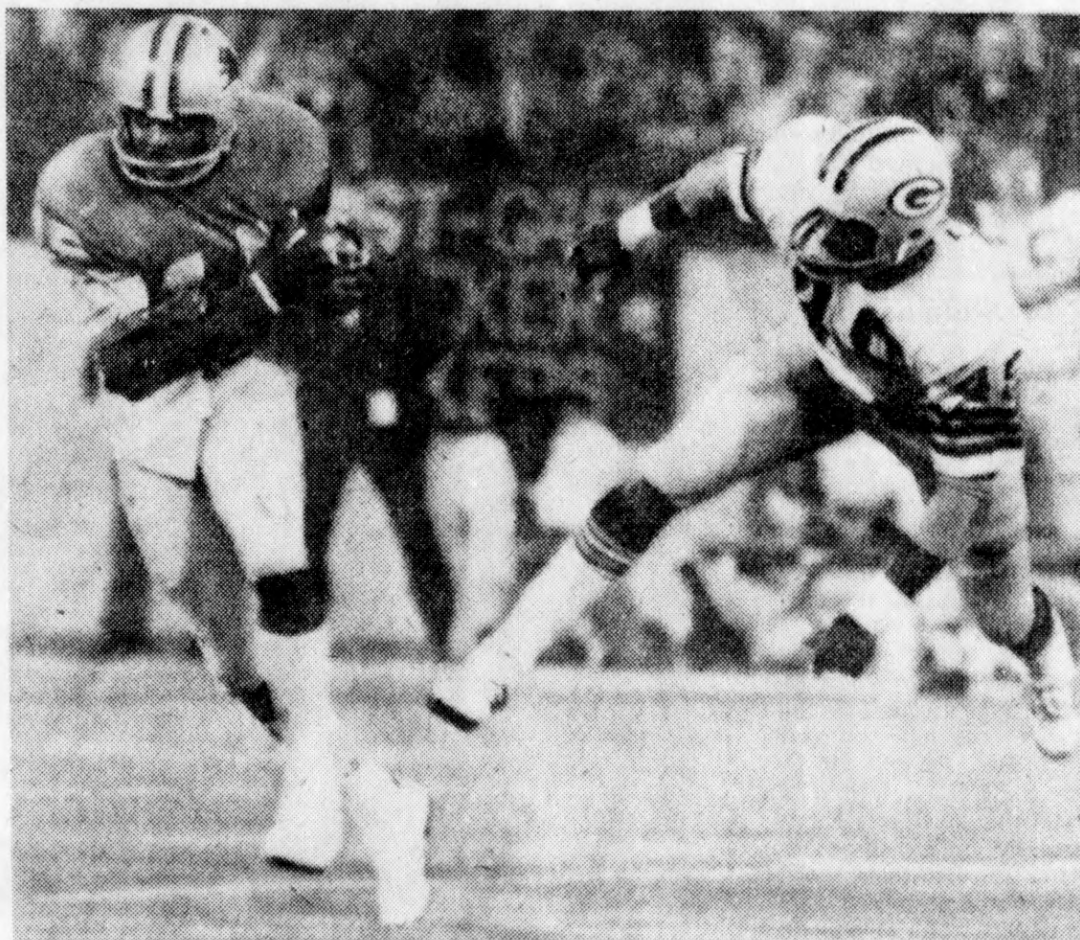

The host team in the Fiesta Bowl will be decided Nov. 29 when Arizona State, which routed Pacific 55-14, meets No. 12 Arizona, which trimmed Colorado State 31-9. Tenth-ranked Colorado shaded No. 17 Kansas 24-21.

Southern Cal, ranked 13th, lost its third in a row since Coach John McKay announced he was leaving for the pros at the end of the season, bowing to Washington 8-7 on Greg Martin's fourth-quarter 12-yard touchdown run.

No. 19 UCLA remained in the Pacific-8 driver's seat by whipping Oregon State 31-9 as John Sciarra passed for 247 yards. UCLA can clinch the Pac-8 crown by defeating Southern Cal on Nov. 28. No. 15 California, a 31-14 nonleague winner over Air Force, and Stanford, which outlasted Oregon 33-30, also are in the running but next week's loser will be eliminated.

Florida, No. 14, walloped Kentucky 48-7. Miami of Ohio, ranked No. 16, set a record with its 16th consecutive Mid-American Conference triumph, a 27-8 whipping of Kent State. No. 20 Georgia beat Auburn 28-13.

North Carolina State, trailing Duke 21-7 after three periods, rallied to salvage a 21-21 standoff, enough to earn a bid to the Peach Bowl. Maryland virtually nailed down the Atlantic Coast Conference title by defeating Clemson 22-20.

Late FG Keeps Playoff Hopes Alive

Mann Bails Out Lions

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The Detroit Lions have managed to get out on bail for another week.

The Green Bay Packers, meanwhile, can't seem to arrest their losing ways.

It might all seem kind of criminal to Packer fans, but Lions supporters can't kick.

Errol Mann can, however, and that's why Detroit took a 13-10 National Football League victory Sunday in a tight battle of National Conference Central Division rivals.

Mann booted a 23-yard field goal with 13 seconds left to prevent a possible overtime game and send the Lions to their third straight triumph since Joe Reed took over at quarterback. It raised Detroit's record to 6-3 and bolstered its wild card playoff hopes while the Packers saw their almost impossible dream of a .500 season end as they fell to 1-8.

This marks the first time since 1970 that the Lions swept both season games from Green Bay.

"To win in this league your defense has to bail you out,"

said Detroit coach Rick Forzano. "In every game someone has to bail you out. We're not the Pittsburgh Steelers. We're struggling and fighting. I never worry about how we win as long as we win, baby."

True, it wasn't an artistic success for Detroit, whose triumphs have come against teams that have won a total of only eight games. But it wasn't any success at all for new coach Bart Starr's Packers.

"We weren't very efficient in what we were doing, but everyone is trying hard to win," Starr said calmly.

His quarterback, John Hadl, said: "We're suffering through a tough year. We feel we could have won any of the last four games. This organization is going to win again. It's going to take two or three years, but Bart Starr is doing a hell of a job since he was left with a lot of inexperienced people."

Detroit moved 67 yards in nine plays to score on its first possession as Reed hit tight end Charlie Sanders with a 9-yard touchdown toss. It looked like it would be easy.

But Dexter Bussey lost a fumble to linebacker Fred Carr at the Green Bay six to ruin another possible Detroit TD soon afterwards and not much went Detroit's way thereafter.

"I think the momentum changed when we gave them encouragement," Forzano said. "All of a sudden the game goes the other way...they (Packers) had an excellent game plan. They tried to make us make mistakes and capitalize on them and they did that very well."

Steve Odom returned the second half opening kickoff 49 yards and an added face mask penalty gave Green Bay the ball on the Lions 42. The Packers went on to score on a 28-yard field goal by Joe Danelo to narrow Detroit's lead to 7-3.

Safety Dick Jauron intercepted a Hadl pass and returned it 38 yards to set up a possible Mann field goal, but the veteran kicker — who once belonged to the Packers — missed on a 30-yard attempt.

However, Jauron gave him another chance by picking off another Hadl toss late in the third quarter which led to a 28-yard field goal by Mann.

The Pack wasn't ready to fold, even after Danelo was wide on a 33-yard field goal try four minutes into the final period. Moments later, cornerback Perry Smith intercepted a Reed aerial, returned it 11 yards and on the next play, Willard Harrell hit Odom with a 24-yard touchdown pass on a halfback option. Danelo's conversion tied the score 10-10.

With 6:16 remaining, Jauron intercepted his third pass and it looked like it would have won the game as he sidestepped 41 yards for a touchdown. But a holding penalty against linebacker Paul Naumoff nullified it.

While Hadl couldn't move Green Bay in the closing minutes, Reed managed to guide the Lions from their own 20 to their 45 before hitting Ray Jarvis on a 48-yard pass-run play with 0:54 left to the Packer seven. That set up Mann's winning boot.

"Reed played like a true champion," Forzano said.

Reed took over at quarterback three games earlier in San Francisco after knee injuries claimed Greg Landry and Bill Munson.

Detroit's game next Sunday is against the much improved Chiefs in Kansas City, while the Packers are at home against the New York Giants.

The Bears, 2-6, whose offense has produced only seven touchdowns in eight games, got a 33-yard field goal from Bob Thomas to offset a 23-yarder by the 49ers' Steve Mike-Mayer earlier in the second quarter. The Bears trailed 10-3 at the half.

Rookie Walt Payton, the Bears' No. 1 draft from Jackson State, made 105 yards on 23 carries, his first game over 100 yards. He also caught three passes for 11 yards and returned five kickoffs a total of 138 yards.

In the second half, the Chicago offense produced only 54 yards and made two costly fumbles. Passer Gary Huff was hit by Cedrick Hardman, and 49er Tommy Hart took the bobble on the bounce and carried 10 yards for a score.

On the Bears' next series, punter Bob Parsons fumbled to give San Francisco possession on Chicago's 37 and set up the 49ers' last score. Sammy Johnson scored from one foot out after Terry Beasley took a 21-yard pass from Steve Spurrier.

Spurrier threw an 18-yard pass to Gene Washington for the 49ers' first half touchdown. Spurrier completed 11 of 21 for 124 yards, with two interceptions, and was sacked three times by rookie Roger Stillowell, former Stanford star.

Loser Of Big Ten's Showdown Going To Orange Bowl

From Associated Press

Ohio State or Michigan? Rose Bowl or Orange Bowl? That's what it's all about this week in the annual Big Ten title showdown between top-ranked Ohio State and No. 4 Michigan.

Unlike the last three years where Michigan tied Ohio State for the Big Ten title but had to sit home while the Buckeyes, for one reason or another, were selected to represent the conference in the Rose Bowl, neither team will stay home. The loser of Saturday's game will go to the Orange Bowl.

Michigan, which has two ties in its over-all record, must win to get the roses. If the two teams tie, Ohio State will get the Rose Bowl bid because of a better overall record.

Ohio State, the nation's No. 1 team, kept its slate clean with a 38-8 victory over Minnesota. Michigan defeated Illinois 21-15 to keep pace. Michigan State swamped Northwestern 47-14, Purdue edged Iowa 19-18 and Indiana and Wisconsin played to a 9-9 tie.

While Ohio State and Michigan battle for the top prize at Ann Arbor Saturday, other Big Ten teams will close the regular season with Illinois at Northwestern, Michigan State at Iowa, Purdue at Indiana and Wisconsin at Minnesota.

Ohio State or Michigan? A couple of Big Ten coaches who have recently played both teams are leaning, ever so slightly, towards Ohio State.

"It'll be a heckuva game," said Illinois' Bob Blackman who was burned by Ohio State 40-3 a week earlier than the six point loss to Michigan. "Comparative scores meaning nothing because of injuries. If both of them played 10 times, I would say Ohio State would win five. Michigan four and the last one would be a toss up."

Minnesota's Cal Stoll said, "Quarterback could be the difference. Corry (Ohio State's Cornelius Greene) is just 'super.' The first thing you have to do is stop the buffalo (fullback Pete Johnson). If you do that, Greene can kill you. Ohio State just has so many ways to beat you."

Ohio State used its patented formula for victory last Saturday. Archie Griffin carried 23 times for 124 yards including a 10-yard touchdown run, stretching his regular season record of 100-plus yards to a 31st straight game. Pete Johnson scored his 22nd touchdown of the season, a Big Ten record and Corry Greene scored twice on runs of 14 and 31 yards and passed for 131 yards.

Minnesota's Tony Dunny, the Big Ten's leading passer, didn't complete a pass until the third quarter and was intercepted three times by the Buckeye defense.

The rest of the Big Ten? Wisconsin took over sole possession of third place with its tie against Indiana. The Badgers are 3-3-1, a step ahead of Illinois, Iowa, Purdue and Michigan State who are locked in fourth place with 3-4 records.

Wisconsin's defense, led by end Pat Collins and cornerback Ken Simmons, turned back three final-quarter Indiana drives to preserve the deadlock. Indiana's Frank Stavroff barely missed a 52-yard field goal attempt with 13 seconds to play.

Scott Dierking scored three touchdowns, the last one with five seconds to play, to give Purdue a hard-earned victory over Iowa. Iowa had taken an 18-7 lead before quarterbacks Mark Vitall and Craig Nagel put on an aerial attack late in the game.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — "There's no such thing as a bad game when you've won," said Coach Bo Schembechler Saturday after his Michigan Wolverines had defeated Illinois 21-15 despite a rash of fumbles. "Michigan fumbled six times, gave up the ball on four occasions, two of which Illinois turned into fourth quarter touchdowns to make the score respectable."

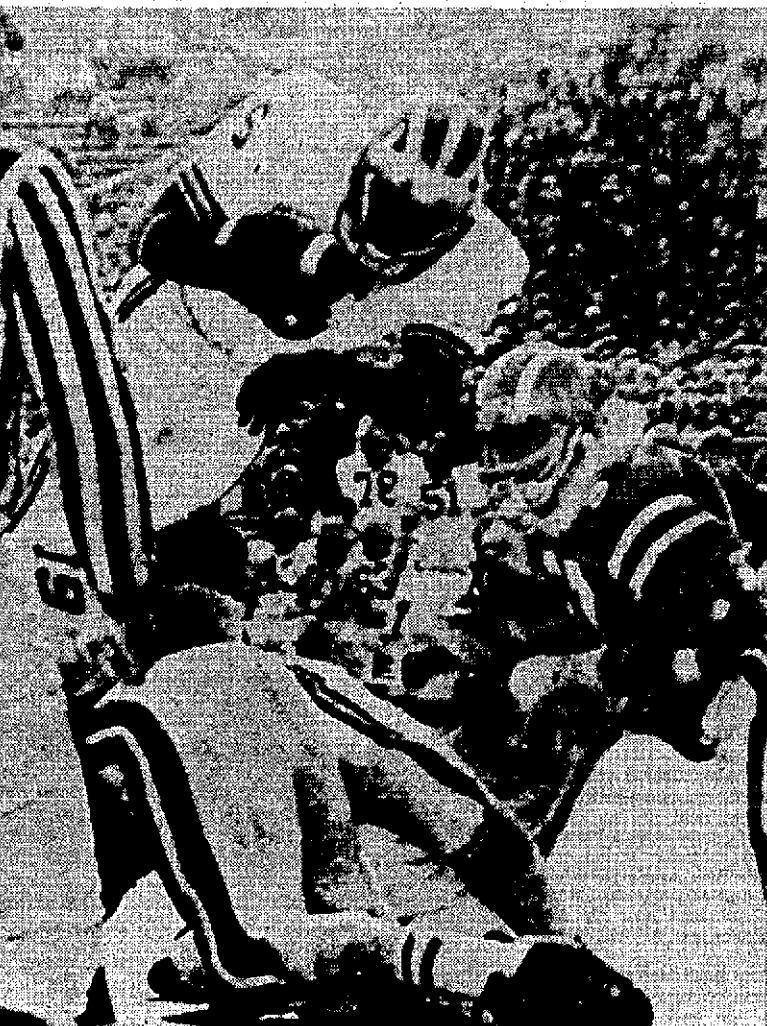

"There's no excuse for a fumble, never," said Schembechler. "Unless of course, the player has a heart attack on his way downfield. Knowing how that feels, I'd drop the ball. Otherwise, there's no excuse for a fumble. Those are my best men who dropped those balls."

The fumbles really weren't that costly. Michigan had built a 21-0 lead on two first quarter touchdowns by Gordon Bell and

'New' Spartans Run Past Northwestern Baggett Sparks Second-Half Rally

By MALCOLM JOHNSON

Associated Press Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — If Michigan State wants to end the season on an upbeat note, it couldn't do much better than imitate its second half Saturday against Northwestern.

The Spartans quit looking like the team they'd been all year at halftime, and exploded for 41 points in the final two periods and a 47-14 win over the Wildcats. And the prospect of a 7-4 season — possible with a win at Iowa — left coach Denny Stolz dreaming of what might have been.

"It's interesting to note that three teams we've beaten — Miami (of Ohio), North Carolina State and Notre Dame — are probably going to get bowl bids," Stolz said. "I've never ruled us out of the bowl picture."

Michigan State couldn't have appeared more unlike a bowl-bound team than in the first half. The offense once again showed little spark and Northwestern, led by fullback

Greg Boykin, rumbled to a 14-6 lead.

Boykin, who rushed for 127 yards to a Northwestern all-time career record of 2,015 yards and 1,048 on the year, charged for 53 yards in one touchdown drive and set up another TD with a 28 yard sprint to the MSU four.

Michigan State, meanwhile, put together a 59-yard drive for a four-yard touchdown sweep by fullback Ted Bell, but muffed the extra point to trail 14-6 at halftime.

"At halftime, our defense quit underestimating the Northwestern offense," Stolz said. "Boykin is an extremely good back."

But MSU had some good backs of its own in the second half, notably quarterback Charlie Baggett, playing his final home game after a disappointingly lack-luster season. Demonstrating some of his old skills that led some to tab him as an All-American possibility, the senior signal-caller dashed for 120 yards for the game — sparking two touchdown drives and, passed for 121 more, including TD bombs of 59 and 39 yards.

The four touchdowns put the game away, but the Spartan reserves added two more in the waning moments as Northwestern fell apart. MSU set a school record of 26 first downs by rushing and piled up 522 total yards. While the Spartan offense was monopolizing the action, the defense shut down the Northwestern attack, despite injuries which had many of the defenders on the bench.

"I had to use a program in the second half to know who was playing on defense," Stolz said. "Some of those kids have moved up from the fourth string since we began in August."

Coach John Pont of Northwestern, other than observing, "we didn't block or tackle in the second half," had little explanation for the sudden reversal of fortune.

"I don't think I have an answer for you," he said. "We weren't getting much movement off our offensive line. When they got the football, they were getting into our linebacking areas a little too quickly. You could see the tide turning."

Northwestern is now 3-7 on the year and 2-5 in the Big Ten and hosts Illinois in the season's final Saturday. MSU is 3-4 in the Big Ten.

another in the third quarter by Rick Leach. All three came on short yardage.

The first two were set up by a recovered fumble and a poor punt into the wind and the third after a pass interception by Dwight Hicks. Fumbles by Rob Lytle and Bell were turned into touchdowns by Illinois but the Illini never had a chance to win.

After scoring their second touchdown on a two-yard run by Jim Phillips with 1:14 left in the game, Illinois never saw the ball again.

The previous week Illinois lost to Ohio State 40-3 and Illinois coach Bob Blackman said "The game lasted too long" after Illinois had held an early 3-0 lead.

"This time the game didn't last long enough," said Blackman.

"We really felt we had the momentum during the last portion of the game and felt we had the confidence to move the ball," said Blackman. "It really hurts because we felt we could have won."

Michigan won the toss and elected to take the wind which was blowing out of the south at 20-25 miles.

"We chose to kickoff because of field position," said Schembechler, whose decision turned out to be wise. "All five touchdowns were in the north end of the field. That should tell you how much a factor the wind was."

Blackman, who played Ohio State and Michigan on successive weekends, gave Ohio State a slight edge when the two teams meet next Saturday for the Big Ten title and Rose Bowl bid.

Disregarding the comparative scores turned in by his Illini, Blackman said "I think it's going to be one heck of a game. If both of them played each other ten times, I would say Ohio State would win five, Michigan four and the last one would probably be a toss-up."

Dorsett Helps Pitt Beat Irish, Get Sun Bowl Bid

By GARY MIHOCES

AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The year before Tony Dorsett enrolled at Pitt, the Panthers' top rusher had 514 yards in an entire 11-game season.

Dorsett fell 211 yards shy of matching that in one afternoon

Saturday when he amassed 303 ground yards to help Sun Bowl bound Pitt beat Notre Dame 34-20.

"I snapped out, I just went crazy out there," Dorsett said with an excited giggle after the game.

Looking for another handle on Dorsett's deed? Well, if you subtract his 71-yard touchdown run and an earlier 57-yard dash, he still would have rushed for 175 yards.

He also piled up 94 more yards more than any back ever against Notre Dame, breaking the old standard of 209 yards he set himself as a freshman.

In addition, he jumped five notches up the collegiate rushing ladder for this season. His 1,419 yards now rank second only to Southern Cal's Ricky Bell this year.

"I can't imagine a back ever playing that well in the history of college football in a key game," Pitt Coach Johnny Majors said after Dorsett ran Pitt into a Dec. 26 appearance in the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Tex.

"We tried to make the normal adjustments, but one guy kind of dominated the game," said Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine, whose ninth-ranked Irish were eliminated from top bowl contention.

Dorsett, who also carried a short pass 49 yards for a touchdown, averaged better than 13 yards on 23 carries.

"He's tremendous. What else can I say?" said Penn State Coach Joe Paterno, who watched from the press box while his idle team awaited next week's showdown with Pitt.

Dorsett also surpassed his own Pitt one-game mark of 268 yards set this season at Army. Even Paterno felt the excitement.

"Go Tony, run, run," Paterno said at one point.

'New' Spartans Run Past Northwestern Baggett Sparks Second-Half Rally

By MALCOLM JOHNSON

Associated Press Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — If Michigan State wants to end the season on an upbeat note, it couldn't do much better than imitate its second half Saturday against Northwestern.

The Spartans quit looking like the team they'd been all year at halftime, and exploded for 41 points in the final two periods and a 47-14 win over the Wildcats. And the prospect of a 7-4 season — possible with a win at Iowa — left coach Denny Stolz dreaming of what might have been.

It's interesting to note that three teams we've beaten — Miami (of Ohio), North Carolina State and Notre Dame — are probably going to get bowl bids," Stolz said. "I've never ruled us out of the bowl picture."

Michigan State couldn't have appeared more unlike a bowl-bound team than in the first half. The offense once again showed little spark and Northwestern, led by fullback

Greg Boykin, rumbled to a 14-6 lead.

Boykin, who rushed for 127 yards to a Northwestern all-time career record of 2,015 yards and 1,048 on the year, charged for 53 yards in one touchdown drive and set up another TD with a 28 yard sprint to the MSU four.

Michigan State, meanwhile, put together a 59-yard drive for a four-yard touchdown sweep by fullback Ted Bell, but muffed the extra point to trail 14-6 at halftime.

"At halftime, our defense quit underestimating the Northwestern offense," Stolz said. "Boykin is an extremely good back."

But MSU had some good backs of its own in the second half, notably quarterback Charlie Baggett, playing his final home game after a disappointingly lack-luster season.

Demonstrating some of his old skills that led some to tab him as an All-American possibility, the senior signal-caller dashed for 120 yards to the game — sparking two touchdown drives and passed for 121 more, including TD bombs of 59 and 39 yards.

The four touchdowns put the game away, but the Spartan reserves added two more in the waning moments as Northwestern fell apart. MSU set a school record of 26 first downs by rushing and piled up 522 total yards.

While the Spartan offense was monopolizing the action, the defense shut down the Northwestern attack, despite injuries which had many of the defenders on the bench.

"I had to use a program in the second half to know who was playing on defense," Stolz said. "Some of those kids have moved up from the fourth string since we began in August."

Coach John Pont of Northwestern, other than observing, "we didn't block or tackle in the second half," had little explanation for the sudden reversal of fortune.

"I don't think I have an answer for you," he said. "We weren't getting much movement off our offensive line. When they got the football, they were getting into our linebacking areas a little too quickly. You could see the tide turning."

Northwestern is now 3-7 on the year and 2-5 in the Big Ten and hosts Illinois in the season's final Saturday. MSU is 3-4 in the Big Ten.

LMC Girls 3rd In State Volleyball Tournament

JACKSON — Lake Michigan College's second-year girls volleyball team took third in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association state tournament over the weekend.

Coach Liz Miller's Indians finished behind Schoolcraft and Jackson in the nine-team tournament.

LMC was seeded fourth in the event after 18 games of qualifying Friday. The Indians then defeated Oakland 15-0 and 15-4 Saturday, before losing to No. 1 seeded Schoolcraft 11-15, 4-15.

The loss dropped LMC to the consolation bracket, where it claimed the overall third spot by topping Henry Ford 11-15, 10-14 and 15-11. Southwestern Michigan College was seeded sixth after Friday's action but couldn't grab one of the top spots Saturday.

Coach Miller said Jill Clavys and Ginny Jasper were the top LMC servers in the tournament. Linda Ray, Chris Knuth and Janet Kinley were the leading spikers and offensive players. Ann Caruthers paced the "setters" and Sue Carbohy sparked a strong LMC bench.

Atlanta Holds Off Late New York Rally

The Atlanta Hawks had a game in their pockets and almost threw it away.

Luckily for them, the New York Knicks threw it away first — the ball, that is.

The Knicks wiped out most of a mammoth 17-point deficit in the final seven minutes Sunday night and had the chance to win, but blew three easy close shots in the last two seconds.

As a result, the Hawks escaped with a nerve-jabbing 97-96 National Basketball Association victory.

"The play went the way we planned ... the shot just didn't drop," said Knicks Coach Red Holzman.

Shots by John Gianelli and Phil Jackson hung tantalizingly on the rim, then dropped off to kill the undaunted Knicks once and for all.

"They had three shots and I still can't figure out how the ball didn't go in," said Atlanta's Connie Hawkins. "But it should have never been that close."

In the other NBA games, the Los Angeles Lakers smashed the Chicago Bulls 110-93 and the Seattle SuperSonics trimmed the Golden State Warriors 112-98. In the only American Basketball Association game, the Indiana Pacers turned back the Spirits of St. Louis 136-114.

Los Hudson's 21 points led six Hawks in double figures, as Atlanta led by more than 10 points most of the game, stretching it to 88-71 with 7:20 remaining. Then Spencer Haywood, who finished with 24 points, led the Knicks' comeback, narrowing the margin to 85-84 on a three-point play.

Atlanta's Tim Henderson, who had 12 points for the night, hit two free throws with 17 seconds left, but Haywood's 25-footer quickly made it 97-96. After a time out, Henderson was tied up by Haywood as he tried to get the ball over the 49-second line. Haywood got the tip, and New York called time out with two seconds left, setting up the drama of the last two seconds.

Lucas Allen scored 28 points and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar pulled down 15 rebounds and blocked eight shots to lead Los Angeles over Chicago. Allen made 12 of his 15 field goal attempts and Gail Goodrich pitched in 21 points in the balanced Los Angeles attack.

Traverse City Routs Kalamazoo Central Hudson Looks Ahead After Record

By HARRY ATKINS
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — They grow their football players big and tough in northern Michigan. But can they handle those well-drilled touchdown machines that hold sway in the southern half of the state?

That question will be answered next Saturday when the state's eight finest prep football teams battle for state titles in the first grid playoffs in modern times.

But, on first glance, it would appear the south will have the edge in three of the four battles — especially in Class C where mighty Hudson aims for another history-setting record, its 73rd victory in a row.

"We're definitely not going to feel this is the end," Hudson Coach Tom Saylor said after his Tigers set a new national winning record at 72 straight with a solid 24-14 victory over Kalamazoo Hackett. "We want to be the first Class C champs ever to win it by playing for it."

To accomplish that goal, Hudson will have to get past a potent Ishpeming team that knocked off previously unbeaten Portland, 32-6.

"A lot of people downgrade Upper Peninsula football," Ishpeming Coach Mike Mileski said in the dressing room, "but we showed that we have a hard-nosed football program up there."

Mileski said he planned no surprises for the Hudson game.

"Playing Hudson will be a real challenge," he said. "It will be a real thrill to go against a team like that."

Another Upper Peninsula team, Crystal Falls Forest Park, literally blew into the finals like one of those U.P. November storms. The Trojans roared to a one-sided 67-0 rout of outmatched Poser in the surprise of almost everyone — including Trojan Coach Dick Mettlich.

"They were the one of the poorest teams we played all year," the puzzled Mettlich said. "I don't know, maybe they just had a bad day. But when you score 67 points like that (in the first half), the other team can't be that tough."

The Trojans will get a tough customer in the Class D finals, however, when they meet Flint Holy Rosary.

Holy Rosary's Wolverines carried a 33-14 victory over North Adams and Coach Mickey Hamilton was almost — but not quite — smiling again.

"We lost our first game of the season, then we got our guts together and came back," Hamilton said.

In the Wolverines' defense, it should be noted they play mostly schools larger than Holy Rosary.

The north's best hope for a title lies in Class A where Traverse City earned a berth in the finals with a 35-6 victory over Kalamazoo Central.

"This is the finest football team I've ever had," said Trojan Coach Jim Ooley, who has had several splendid clubs, "and we're going to do all we can to win that state title."

Traverse City will meet Livonia Franklin in the Class A title game. Franklin advanced on a 12-9 victory over Detroit Southwestern.

The Class B title game will pit Saginaw MacArthur against Dearborn Divine Child. MacArthur won a wild 44-38 affair from Flint Ainsworth while Divine Child clipped previously unbeaten Sturgis, 20-3.

"Our guys weren't really up for this game," said Divine Child assistant Wally Thurman. "We blew the whole wad on 'em last week preparing for Brother Rice. But we've got too much pride to quit."

Red Wings Blanked By New York Flyers' Defense Is Tough

From Associated Press
One of the stronger National Hockey League rivalries these days is the one between the Montreal Canadiens and the Philadelphia Flyers. There is no love lost between either coach, Montreal's Scotty Bowman and Philadelphia's Fred Shero, and that feeling continued Sunday night.

The Flyers won this one, 3-1, with Rick MacLeish breaking a 1-1 tie in the second period. When it was over, Shero wanted to talk about his defense and Bowman didn't want to talk about much of anything.

Montreal came out second best Sunday night. MacLeish sent an eight-foot shot past Ken Dryden at 16:31 of the middle period, then Gary Dornhoefer sent his second of the night into an empty net for insurance in the last minute of play.

In the other NHL games Sunday night, the Boston Bruins beat the Kansas City Scouts 4-2, the New York Rangers blanked the Detroit Red Wings 3-0, and the Buffalo Sabres topped the California Seals, 4-1.

Philadelphia owns a victory and a tie in their two games with Montreal this season. Last year, the clubs split four games.

Guy Lafleur gave Montreal a 1-0 lead with a 35-foot shot at 5:02 of the first period. Bob Kelly, breaking out of the penalty box, took a pass from Orest Kindrachuk and tied it at 11:05 of the session.

First-period goals by John Bucyk, Ken Hodge and Terry O'Reilly started Boston on the way to its fourth consecutive victory.

Wayne Cashman converted a Jean Ratelle rebound for the other Boston score. Buster Harvey and Guy Charron hit for Kansas City.

New York goalie John Davidson recorded his first career shutout behind goals by Pete Sternkowski, Steve Vickers and Walt Tkaczuk, dimming a brilliant 36-save performance by former Rangers netminder Ed Giacomin and stopping Detroit's three-game winning streak.

Buffalo continued its domination of California on two second-period goals by Rene Robert. The Seals haven't beaten the Sabres in 10 games, going back to Nov. 18, 1973.

Niles Tanker State Champ

ANN ARBOR — Kathy Williams of Niles was Southwestern Michigan's only state champ in the girls swimming and diving championships held here Friday and Saturday.

In the 100-yard breaststroke, Williams came from behind to touch-out Vicki Brown from Livonia Stephenson and take the title. Her winning time was 1:13.0.

Williams also placed 17th in the preliminaries of the 200-yard individual medley. The top 12 swimmers made it into the finals. Teammate Audrey Flood came in 10th in the 100-yard butterfly in 1:04.0. She also took 13th in the 200-yard freestyle. Niles' 200-yard medley relay team of Williams, Flood, Karen Kelly and Cindy Cary finished in 16th spot in 2:01.0. East Lansing won the event in a very fast 1:54.0.

St. Joseph's only representative was diver Pam Bloom and she placed 29th among the 68 entrants.

Kim Olson of South Haven took fourth spot in the 100-yard freestyle with a 55.16 clocking. She also took 10th place in the 200-yard freestyle in 2:01.2. Rumis' diver Laura Dubuisson ended up in 25th spot in the preliminaries.

South Haven's 400-yard freestyle relay team of Olson, Dawn Olson, Sheila Faux and Denise Johansen was 25th in the prelims.

The Saratoga sisters, Karrie and Sherrie, of Buchanan were both knocked out in the prelims of their respective races. Karrie swam in the 50 and 100-yard freestyles and Sherrie participated in the 200 and 300-yard freestyles. In the latter race, Sherrie was 13th in 5:43.8.

Squires, Utah Next To Go?

ABA-NBA Merger Talks Keeping Them Afloat

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Owners of the financially troubled Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association are looking for $400,000 to finish the season, with the possibility of merger with the National Basketball Association the bait to be used in a bid to save the franchise.

Although about 20 of the 100 stockholders who showed up for a Sunday meeting on the club's future were willing to foot their share of the bill, they weren't ready to put up the whole amount majority owner Van Cunningham said was needed to ride out the storm.

After a 3 1/2-hour session behind closed doors, each man present agreed to contact those absent to attend a 5 p.m. session today at which a firm decision will be made whether to continue operations or fold. "We're looking for another season, not living from week to week," said Cunningham. "We will decide Monday whether to stop or finish the season. We are optimistic that we are now on solid ground."

His main reason for optimism was believed to be the feeling a merger of the ABA and NBA is coming and the Squires would be part of that new league if they can weather the current storm.

"The league position is that any team has to be strong. We and Utah have to prove we're here to stay," said Cunningham, who added that investors feel there will be a merger "and we have been assured that if we survive, we'll be in the merger."

The Utah Stars are in financial trouble too, with a payroll payment due today and the money unavailable. A team spokesman said Sunday that owner Bill Daniels was working to raise the money.

"I don't think you'll hear a thing until Monday, and then you'll know whether we have a team or won't have one," said the spokesman, Grant Harrison.

Although informed observers said they thought the payroll would be met this time, they noted the same situation could develop in two weeks when another payment is due. Daniels has been unsuccessful so far in efforts to sell the franchise.

The Squires have admitted they don't have the money to meet payroll payments scheduled today, and general manager Jack Ankerson said he would ask team members to practice as usual pending the results of the meeting later today.

The Squires and Stars aren't the only teams in trouble in the ABA, where two franchises — the Baltimore Claws and the San Diego Sails — have thrown in the towel already this fall.

Owners of the Spirits of St. Louis say they lost between $1.5 million and $2 million last year with an average home attendance of 4,000 and are averaging just under 3,000 this year.

Ex-Bear Star Now Bronco Tight End Dilley WMU Line Standout

BY PAUL MORGAN
Staff Sports Writer

KALAMAZOO — Dennis Dilley has been both ends of the football spectrum.

In 1971, Dilley was a member of the St. Joseph football team that went 9-0, scored 222 points, gave up just 62 and was ranked 10th in the Class A poll.

This year, it's been a different story: Dilley was the starting tight end for a Western Michigan University team that has had its problems all season, having lost its first 10 football games of this year.

But a lot of the joy the junior undoubtedly felt in 1971 came to the surface again Saturday when the Broncos beat Eastern Michigan University 24-14 in Waldo Stadium for their first win this year.

Back in August, Dilley and Mark Harrison of Battle Creek were vying for the job of starting tight end. Dilley got the job when he proved that he was a good blocker, and in Western's offense, that's what a tight end does 90 per cent of the time. "Dennis' biggest asset is his desire to improve," said Terry Lewis, coach of the tight ends and tackles at Western. "His blocking is better than average but he still has room for improvement."

"He puts out on every down," added Lewis.

Against the Hurons, Dilley's, as well as the rest of the offensive line's blocking, was at its best. Fullback Dan Matthews gained 233 yards on 43 carries, and he gave a lot of credit to his line.

"The line did an excellent job of blocking," Matthews grinned. "We were only running about six plays but there was always a hole."

Eastern put together a 17-play drive that covered 75 yards and ate up more than seven minutes of the clock for the Hurons' first score the initial time they had the ball. But the Broncos didn't fold.

They took the ensuing kickoff 75 yards on 15 plays, eating up 6:37 to tie the game. In the lengthy drive, nary a pass was even attempted.

"That first drive showed that we could do it," said Dilley. "We knew that if they scored, we could come right back and score ourselves."

Assessing his own game, Dilley commented that "I did pretty good, but I've had better games."

One player who had a different opinion of Dilley's performance was Eastern's defensive end Brian Karol, the man Dilley butted heads with for most of the afternoon. Karol played the St. Joe native a compliment of calling him one of the better tight ends he had faced this year.

Although he is used mostly as a blocker, Dilley did catch three passes for 46 yards and one touchdown this season. The TD came against Miami last week.

If the Broncos can show the same improvement next season that they showed against Eastern, Dennis Dilley may again see the happy side of college football.

From Associated Press

Michigan State and defending champion Minnesota gained splits in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association (WCHA) with second night victories to set up a critical early-season series at East Lansing, Mich., next weekend.

"We're happy with a split," said Michigan State Coach Arno Bessone after the Spartans, 5-1 in WCHA play, topped Michigan Tech 4-2 Saturday night. "We're coming off two weeks on the road and won three of four and that's not too bad."

Minnesota, which lost its first game of the season in a 3-2 overtime setback at Denver Friday night, whipped the Pioneers 5-1 to improve its league record to 3-1.

In other games, Minnesota-Duluth and Colorado College completed sweeps while Michigan bounced Notre Dame 9-4 to gain a split in its weekend series. Duluth stopped winless Wisconsin 4-2 and Colorado College took North Dakota 5-4 in overtime.

"Tech's goalie kept them in the game Friday night," said Bessone. "We let them come to us too much in the first game, but we turned it around — forechecked well — and took it to them."

Michigan State's Steve Culp scored the final two goals to snap a 2-2 tie.

Jim Johnson and Daryl Rice had scored earlier to give the Spartans a 2-0 lead, but Tech tied the game on goals by freshman Lou Drazenovich and George Lyle.

The Spartans' high-scoring Tom Ross picked up two assists in the victory.

"Physically we're okay," continued Bessone. "And that's good because Minnesota is bringing another tough, tough team in here Friday."

Goalie Tom Mohr made 39 saves and five players scored goals in Minnesota's victory while Greg Woods managed the lone score for Denver, which dropped to 2-4 in the league.

Duluth, 4-2 in the league and presently alone in second place, scored three times in less than three minutes late in the game to hand Wisconsin its fourth straight league setback. Freshman John Harrington's second goal of the game with five minutes left ignited the Duluth explosion.

Angie Moretto scored three goals and Kris Manery added two to lead Michigan to its victory over Notre Dame, which got two goals from Alex Pirus.

Jim Warner's goal 1:10 into overtime lifted Colorado College to its victory over North Dakota, which blew a 4-2 lead.

Ex-Bear Star Now Bronco Tight End Dilley WMU Line Standout

BY PAUL MORGAN
Staff Sports Writer

KALAMAZOO — Dennis Dilley has been both ends of the football spectrum.

In 1971, Dilley was a member of the St. Joseph football team that went 9-0, scored 222 points, gave up just 62 and was ranked 10th in the Class A poll.

This year, it's been a different story: Dilley was the starting tight end for a Western Michigan University team that has had its problems all season, having lost its first 10 football games of this year.

But a lot of the joy the junior undoubtedly felt in 1971 came to the surface again Saturday when the Broncos beat Eastern Michigan University 24-14 in Waldo Stadium for their first win this year.

Back in August, Dilley and Mark Harrison of Battle Creek were vying for the job of starting tight end. Dilley got the job when he proved that he was a good blocker, and in Western's offense, that's what a tight end does 90 per cent of the time.

"Dennis' biggest asset is his desire to improve," said Terry Lewis, coach of the tight ends and tackles at Western. "His blocking is better than average but he still has room for improvement."

"He puts out on every down," added Lewis.

Against the Hurons, Dilley's, as well as the rest of the offensive line's blocking, was at its best.

Fullback Dan Matthews gained 233 yards on 43 carries and he gave a lot of credit to his line.

"The line did an excellent job of blocking," Matthews grinned. "We were only running about six plays but there was always a hole."

Eastern put together a 17-play drive that covered 75 yards and ate up more than seven minutes of the clock for the Hurons' first score the initial time they had the ball. But the Broncos didn't fold.

They took the ensuing kickoff 75 yards on 15 plays, eating up 6:37 to tie the game. In the lengthy drive, nary a pass was even attempted.

"That first drive showed that we could do it," said Dilley. "We knew that if they scored; we could come right back and score ourselves."

Assessing his own game, Dilley commented that "I did pretty good, but I've had better games."

One player who had a different opinion of Dilley's performance was Eastern's defensive end Brian Karol, the man Dilley butted heads with for most of the afternoon. Karol played the St. Joe native a compliment of calling him one of the better tight ends he had faced this year.

Although he is used mostly as a blocker, Dilley did catch three passes for 46 yards and one touchdown this season. The TD came against Miami last week.

If the Broncos can show the same improvement next season that they showed against Eastern, Dennis Dilley may again see the happy side of college football.

MSU, Minnesota Ice Splits Set Up Early Showdown

From Associated Press

Michigan State and defending champion Minnesota gained splits in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association (WCHA) with second night victories to set up a critical early-season series at East Lansing, Mich., next weekend.

"We're happy with a split," said Michigan State Coach Arno Bessone after the Spartans, 5-1 in WCHA play, topped Michigan Tech 4-2 Saturday night. "We're coming off two weeks on the road and won three of four and that's not too bad."

Minnesota, which lost its first game of the season in a 3-2 overtime setback at Denver Friday night, whipped the Pioneers 5-1 to improve its league record to 3-1.

In other games, Minnesota-Duluth and Colorado College completed sweeps while Michigan bounced Notre Dame 9-6 to gain a split in its weekend series. Duluth stopped winless Wisconsin 4-2 and Colorado College took North Dakota 5-4 in overtime.

Michigan State's Steve Culp scored the final two goals to snap a 2-2 tie.

The Spartans' high-scoring Tom Ross picked up two assists the victory.

"Physically we're okay," continued Bessone. "And that's good because Minnesota is bringing another tough, tough team in here Friday."

Goalie Tom Mohr made 39 saves and five players scored goals in Minnesota's victory while Greg Woods managed the lone score for Denver, which dropped to 2-4 in the league.

Angie Moretto scored three goals and Kris Manery added two to lead Michigan to its victory over Notre Dame, which got two goals from Alex Pirus.

Jim Warner's goal 1:10 into overtime lifted Colorado College to its victory over North Dakota, which blew a 4-2 lead.

Wildcats End Best Season With Win

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quarterback Steve Mariucci ran for one touchdown and passed for another to help Northern Michigan end its most successful season ever with a 27-23 victory over Western Illinois in nonconference college football play Saturday.

Now the Wildcats will have to wait to see if they're asked to join the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division II playoffs. The Wildcats ended the season with a 10-1 record.

Going into the game, Northern was ranked fourth in The Associated Press poll of the top eight teams will qualify for the playoffs.

Northern's playoff chances may be dimmed because the team has seven players who are ineligible for post-season competition under NCAA regulations, which require a year's residency at a school. All seven are defensive players and three are starters.

Northern had three touchdowns in the final 10 minutes of play to beat Western Illinois. Mariucci got the first on a six-yard run. Stu Betts ran two yards for a score, then Mariucci passed 38 yards to Maurice Mitchell of Bangor for the winning touchdown with 1:26 left.

Mariucci got Northern's first score in the second period on a two-yard run. Western Illinois finished with a 5-4-1 mark.

In other college football action involving Michigan teams Saturday, Wayne State sneaked by Evansville 24-21; Hillsdale slammed Saginaw Valley 37-10; Western Michigan beat Eastern Michigan 24-14; Central Michigan dumped Northern Illinois 69-7; Michigan edged Illinois 21-15; and Michigan State overwhelmed Northwestern 47-14.

Quarterback Ed Skowneski ran for 119 yards, passed for 60 more and scored three TDs to lead Wayne State to a 24-21 nonconference victory over Evansville.

The game put WSU's final season tally at 8-3 for first place in the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Evansville went ahead 21-17 with little more than a minute to play in the game on a 16-yard pass from Mark Peters to Virgil Buford. With the clock running out, Skowneski launched a drive from his own 40-yard line and went down the field in six plays with two back-to-back passes to Dean Morrison and a 13-yarder to split end Morris Blackwell. With 14 seconds to go, Skowneski ran around the right side for a TD from the four. Evansville's record is 7-3 overall.

Dave Haugh blocked a punt early in the third quarter to set up the go-ahead touchdown that gave Hillsdale a 37-10 victory over Saginaw Valley in GLIAC action.

The two schools fought to a 10-10 tie in the first half. On the fourth play of the third quarter, Haugh drove in from the right side and blocked a punt by Joe Baker.

Hillsdale recovered on the 12-yard line and halfback Steve Rodick went in for the score four plays later. The next time Hillsdale got the ball, halfback Herman McCall ran 65 yards for a TD. Rodick scored two touchdowns and ran for 167 yards in 25 carries.

Hillsdale finished the season with a 7-4 record and a 3-2 mark in the GLIAC for fourth place. Saginaw Valley ended at 3-7 overall and 1-5 in league play.

Western Michigan's Dan Matthews rushed for 233 yards on 43 carries to help bring the Broncos their first victory after 14-straight losses starting last season. He ends his career at Western with 2,000 yards rushing, 18 yards short of the all-time Bronco record.

Moore Sparks Loop Past Indian Cagers

CHICAGO — Clyde Moore lit a fire on two fronts here Saturday night.

Moore scored 23 points to spark Loop Junior College to a 93-83 victory over Lake Michigan College in the basketball opener for both teams.

But Moore is a three-year starter on the team and LMC coach Art Crump intends to protest the game. Junior college players usually have just two years of eligibility.

The game was nip-and-tuck affair throughout much of the first half with finally Loop moving to a 42-35 halftime edge.

Lake Michigan closed to within two points three times, the last at 70-68 with less than nine minutes to play.

But each time the Indians closed the gap. Loop used clutch free throw shooting to open the lead. Loop hit on an incredible 31 of 34 at the free throw line to overcome LMC's 36-31 advantage from the floor. The Indians hit on just 11 of 24.

Craig Smith scored 20, Roger Brown 15 and Norman Sanders 10 in addition to Moore's total for Loop.

Reserve forward Darryl Kelley and reserve guard Vernon Reynolds led LMC. Kelley scored 14 and Reynolds 11. John Taylor and James Childs each added 10.

Patience Pays Off For Miami Of Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Dick Crum, Miami of Ohio's low-key football coach, wasn't reaching for any panic button just because his team trailed 2-0 at halftime.

"We didn't change a single thing," said Crum.

Patience paid off for the 16th-ranked Redskins. They ripped by Kent State 27-8 for a record 16th conference triumph Saturday and are Tangerine Bowl-bound as the unbeaten Mid-American champions.

Miami closed out its third straight MAC crown with a 6-0-0 record, easily beating second-place Central Michigan's 4-1-1 mark.

The Chippewas clinched second, burying Northern Illinois 69-7.

On non-conference games, Ball State (9-2) mauled Illinois State 46-7. Western Michigan won its first game after 10 losses, 22-14 over Eastern Michigan. Bowling Green (8-2-0) thumped Southern Illinois 48-6 and Ohio University (4-5-1) fell to Cincinnati 6-5.

Toledo did not play Saturday. Rob Carpenter rolled up three touchdowns and 153 yards, but it was Miami's defense that caught Crum's eye. "Our defense did the job when we couldn't get on the scoreboard," he said.

Walt Hodges also delivered a three-touchdown, 185-yard performance for Central Michigan. "To finish second in our first year in the league isn't bad," said Roy Kramer, the Chippewas' coach.

Jerry Ippoliti, his Northern Illinois team knocked down to eighth place, said of Central Michigan, "They've got to be the best all-around team I've seen in some time."

Dan Shepherd's two field goals, for a school record 14, enabled Cincinnati (6-4) to shade Ohio.

Art Yaroch produced three touchdowns and scored 20 points for Ball State, finishing with its best record in a decade.

Dan Matthews' 233 yards rushing powered Western Michigan past Eastern Michigan, the lone expansion member still ineligible in the MAC football race. Matthews' performance gave him 2,000 career yards, second highest in school history.

Jim Grause rushed for 120 yards, Dave Preston 106 and Dan Saleet 100 and Bowling Green piled up 562 total yards at Southern Illinois.

winning score.

Pittsburgh won its seventh straight game and took the AFC Central lead for the first time this season by one-half game over Cincinnati, which plays tonight.

Quarterback Terry Bradshaw's 42-yard TD pitch to Lynn Bradshaw gave the Steelers their first points of the game only seven seconds before halftime.

Roger Staubach threw three TD passes but Dallas barely hung on to beat New England. The victory tied the Cowboys with Washington, one game back of St. Louis in the NFC East.

James Harris passed for 242 yards, 151 to Ron Jessie, as Los Angeles defeated Atlanta. Jessie accounted for the game's only TD on a nine-yard pass from Harris after Tom Dempsey had kicked three field goals for LA. Ken Stabler hurled four touchdown passes, leading Oakland past winless Cleveland.

The Browns, who dropped their ninth straight, were tied 17-17 with the AFC West Division leading Raiders until late in the third quarter. Then Stabler eased Oakland to its victory.

Beaten three times on field goals in the final seconds, Philadelphia turned the tables, knocking off the Giants on a 30-yarder by Horst Muhlmann with 28 seconds left to play.

Steve Ramsey passed for a pair of touchdowns as Denver extended winless San Diego's losing streak to nine games.

The Chargers came from behind, wiping out a 17-3 Bronco lead to tie the score. But then Denver staged a goal-line stand, stopping San Diego one yard short of the TD that would have put the Chargers in front.

FOUR MILLION BARRELS DAILY

Foreign Crude Oil Use Is Climbing

HOUSTON (AP) — Project Independence aside, domestic refineries are processing more foreign crude oil than ever before in history.

Fewer petroleum products are being imported than pre-embargo days, but, for the past 18 weeks, every third barrel of crude oil processed at a U.S. refinery has been imported. Just five years ago, the ratio was one out of every nine barrels.

For 18 consecutive weeks, domestic refiners have mixed more than four million barrels a day of imported crude with domestic crude, including a record 4,720,000 barrels a day for the week ending Sept. 18.

Prior to the embargo, the four million barrel barrier had been broken only once. During 1974, it was exceeded eight times but never for more than three consecutive weeks.

During the embargo, crude imports ranged from a record high of 3,774,000 barrels a day to a low of 2,118,000 a day. It took three months to push the level to another high of 3,877,000 a day after the embargo was lifted.

Crude imports are expected to average a record 4,131,000 barrels a day this year. A high of 4,852,000 has been projected for 1976. The 1970 average was 1,324,000 barrels a day.

Industry sources say the requirements for foreign crude will continue to climb despite the 55-mile speed limit, Project Independence — President Ford's plan to achieve energy independence — and other conservation efforts.

Demand for petroleum products still is below that of the pre-embargo days but domestic production of crude oil is in its fifth consecutive year of decline and the end of the trend is not in sight.

Domestic output of crude peaked at 9,180,000 barrels a day in 1970. An anticipated 8,365,000 average this year is expected to drop to 8,141,000 in 1976.

Such trends would mean that, in just six years, domestic production will have declined 1,039,000 barrels a day or 11.3 per cent while crude imports will have increased by 3,528,000 barrels a day or 266.4 per cent.

There are some encouraging signs.

With higher prices, the nation's stripper wells, those that produce less than 10 barrels a day, ended a long period of decline when 1974 production was increased by 26 million barrels.

Higher prices also have increased explorations for new domestic reserves. Current drilling operations at their highest level since early 1962.

Such trends have prompted the supply and demand committee of the Independent Petroleum Association of America to forecast that the 1976 decline in domestic crude production will be approximately 234,000 barrels a day compared with 400,000 in 1975.

Meanwhile, demand for petroleum products is gradually climbing back toward pre-embargo levels.

The embargo held 1973's record demand to 17,308,000 barrels a day and dropped 1974 to 16,629,000 a day. The 1975 estimate is 16,538,000, but the projection for 1976 is 17,213,000 barrels a day, just short of the pre-embargo record.

The decline in demand permitted refiners to gradually replenish refined products inventories. As inventories continued to climb, cutbacks in refinery operations were in order.

Refined products imports — gasoline, motor oil refined overseas — also were cut. Compared with a record 3,117,000 barrels a day early in the embargo, the current average is less than 1,800,000 a day.

At the start of the embargo, domestic refining capacity was 13,521,000 barrels a day and it was being operated at 101.5 per cent of capacity.

By the end of 1974, the capacity to process crude oil had been boosted to 14,795,000 barrels a day but only 88.8 per cent was in use. The current level of operations is 84.7 per cent for a record capacity of 15,001,000 barrels a day.

No Public Scrutiny

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Senate has defeated an attempt to open collective bargaining activities of public bodies to public scrutiny. By a vote of 17-8, the Senate rejected an amendment to an "open meetings" bill that would have opened contract negotiations to the public. The chamber delayed a final vote on the bill, however, until next week. The measure requires nearly all the business of public bodies, from the state legislature to local school boards, be conducted in open meetings.

troleum Association of America to forecast that the 1976 decline in domestic crude production will be approximately 224,000 barrels a day compared with 400,000 in 1975.

Meanwhile, demand for petroleum products is gradually climbing back toward pre-embargo levels.

The embargo held 1973's record demand to 17,308,000 barrels a day and dropped 1974 to 16,629,000 a day. The 1975 estimate is 16,536,000, but the projection for 1976 is 17,213,000 barrels a day, just short of the pre-embargo record.

The decline in demand permitted refiners to gradually replenish refined products inventories. As inventories continued to climb, cutbacks in refinery operations were in order.

Refined products imports — gasoline, motor oil refined overseas — also were cut. Compared with a record 3,117,000 barrels a day early in the embargo, the current average is less than 1,800,000 a day.

At the start of the embargo, domestic refining capacity was 13,521,000 barrels a day and it was being operated at 101.5 per cent of capacity.

By the end of 1974, the capacity to process crude oil had been boosted to 14,795,000 barrels a day but only 88.8 per cent was in use. The current level of operations is 84.7 per cent for a record capacity of 15,091,000 barrels a day.

Fire Hits Dwelling In Benton

Fire Friday caused extensive damage to a one-story, two-bedroom house, occupied by the Eddie Anderson family, 1747 Sweet street, Benton township.

Township firemen said the blaze was reported at 9:17 a.m. and began in a bedroom. Cause is unknown, it was reported.

Benton Harbor firemen at 7:18 p.m. Friday, extinguished a leaf blaze in Hall park and reported there was no damage to structures.

No Public Scrutiny

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Senate has defeated an attempt to open collective bargaining activities of public bodies to public scrutiny. By a vote of 17-8, the Senate rejected an amendment to an "open meetings" bill that would have opened contract negotiations to the public. The chamber delayed a final vote on the bill, however, until next week. The measure requires nearly all the business of public bodies, from the state legislature to local school boards, be conducted in open meetings.

Malaysia Forming 'Home Guard' To Fight Subversion

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — The Malaysian government has launched a grassroots campaign to enroll its citizens in a fight against Communist subversion. The aim is to monitor every dwelling in this nation of 12 million people.

Called "rukun tetangga" — Malay for community self-reliance — the campaign got underway in August under the direct supervision of Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak's office.

Razak says it "has great significance in the context of community and national development in which the people themselves will play the main role in safeguarding peace and security."

No able-bodied male between 18 and 55 may get out of the emergency measure.

At the village level every 10 homes form a unit, under a "residence head." Every member of a household older than 14 is responsible for the activities of his family. The family will be held jointly responsible if one member strays from the straight and narrow.

Ten residence heads report to a "village sector head" who in turn represents their areas at the "village peace and development center." Whole communities are to be held responsible for the misdeeds of individual families, informed sources said.

The organizational structure varies slightly in cities but the idea is the same — involve people at the grass roots in guarding their neighborhoods and keeping track of strangers.

About 20 units have been formed so far. Hundreds are expected to be on duty within a year.

Local sultans, but not their relatives; those with diplomatic immunity, and the blind and mentally disabled are excused. The regulations don't exclude women but they are not expected to be enrolled, an official said.

Men who try to avoid duty face fines the equivalent of $4,000 or three years in prison or both.

The first rukun tetangga was organized in Kuala Lumpur's

Kampung Kasipillay, a 3½-square-mile district with about 7,000 residents, mostly Indians and Chinese and a few Malays, of whom 1,500 are qualified for duty.

Dr. M. Jayaraman, head of the unit, said his men uncovered no Communist rebels but that petty thefts decreased by 90 per cent and there have been no major crimes since round-the-clock patrolling started.

The men are scheduled to be on duty not more than twice a month, once for a day tour and once at night. Each tour lasts four hours. Those who draw night assignments are to get the next day off from their jobs with pay whether in private enterprise or government bodies.

They wear red arm bands with the white letters R.K. and carry nightsticks, flashlights and whistles. None is armed.

While on patrol, the men are deemed police officers with the rank and powers of constable.

Rukun tetangga was put together in the face of a revived Communist insurgency which a few weeks ago added urban guerrilla warfare to its older jungle ambush tactics. While essentially a security operation, the plan is also supposed to help unify Malaysia's racially mixed population and ease communal tensions, particularly between Malay and Chinese.

The prime minister calls it "a positive effort to inculcate the spirit of responsibility, to foster good will and to guarantee the unity of the people."

Many of the controls now being imposed for security reasons by Razak's government were used by the British in fighting Communist guerrillas between 1948 and 1960. Rukun tetangga slightly resembles "home guard" defense forces devised by the British, when they were here running the colony of Malaya.

The clandestine Communist radio, "Voice of the Malay Revolution," which broadcasts from China, has compared rukun tetangga to Japanese population control methods during World War II.

Analysts say the Communists lost their prime "cause" when peninsula Malaya, Singapore and two British territories in Borneo became independent Malaysia in 1957. The insurgents had demanded independence and the country became independent, but with the Communists left out.

They appear to have adopted racial discrimination as a replacement rallying cry in an effort to drive a wedge between Malays and Chinese, particularly after communal rioting in May 1969 left more than 200 dead in the streets of Kuala Lumpur.

A spokesman for the rukun tetangga program agreed that earlier attempts to integrate the population attracted "more lip service than anything else."

"Goodwill committees" formed in 1969 to promote multi-racial cooperation faded away and other voluntary bodies had little impact, he said.

Rukun tetangga will compel involvement of Malaysians from different walks of life "whether they like it or not," the spokesman added.

Razak said, "The participation of every citizen and resident irrespective of rank or status, whether he is a (Cabinet) minister or an executive, a laborer or a businessman in this scheme is a way to prove his loyalty to this nation — the nation that provides him with livelihood and protection."

LMC Seeks Opinion On Programs

Interviewers for Lake Michigan College are calling on selected households throughout Berrien county and Covert township this week and next to learn current desires of area residents regarding the educational programs of the college.

LMC, engaged in routine re-examination of its goals, is carefully sampling the opinions of those living in the areas it serves, according to LMC officials.

The survey is being conducted by specially trained personnel from the Center for Studies and Services in Education, the educational research division of Andrews University.

"Such surveys are of assistance to the college in the task of keeping its curriculum in tune with changing social and economic conditions," according to Dr. Richard Clarke, chairman of the Faculty Task Force on College Goals and Objectives.

Interviewers will have in their possession appropriate letters and credentials to fully identify them as members of the official interviewing team.

Dowagiac Will Vote Thursday On School Bonds

By LARRY MacINTYRE

Staff Writer

DOWAGIAC — Voters in the Dowagiac school district will go to the polls Thursday to decide the fate of a $3.6 million school bond construction program proposed by the school board to relieve overcrowded schools.

There will be two bond issue propositions on the ballot. The first one is for $3.2 million for additions to three schools; and the second is for $400,000 for an outdoor athletic complex.

School officials have said the board will not enact the second proposition unless the first one also passes.

Supt. Lionel Stacey proposed that, if both pass and bonds are issued, about 3.5 mills would be added to the school district levy in December, 1976.

Stacey estimated the total levy for 1976 at a minimum of 20.191 mills. The 1975 levy is 25.601 mills.

He said construction on the projects could begin in the spring of 1976, and the additions could be ready for occupancy in September, 1977.

If passed by voters, the $3.2 million construction program would include:

— A seven classroom addition to the Sister Lakes elementary school, remodeling of the library, and additional kitchen facilities.

— Addition of a library at the Justus Gage elementary school.

— The addition of 16 classrooms at Union high school, a science laboratory, a special education classroom, two locker rooms, and possibly agricultural and automotive shops.

The second proposition, for $400,000, would be used to construct an outdoor athletic complex west of the high school on city-owned land.

About $125,000 of the $3.2 million would be set aside for future site acquisition.

"Our high school site is extremely limited, and with an approval of proposition one, it is very essential to have more property for the ever expanding high school," Stacey said.

He said that at present the high school, junior high and Sister Lakes elementary school are all operating over their effective student capacity.

Because of the crowded conditions at the junior high, ninth graders must spend half their day in the high school and the other half at the junior high.

"The high school enrollment will be up by another 100 students next year, and already all classrooms are used every period. Frankly, we don't know what we're going to do with them," Stacey said.

He said high school students are already denied some classes because there is no room for them, and the situation will be worse next year.

"It will force us to put more and more kids in study hall to take care of our overpopulation. Right now we have kids in study hall and in classes they didn't want," Stacey said.

At the Sister Lakes school, Stacey said every classroom is also in use including a makeshift room in the basement and a portable classroom outside.

He said next year there will be 91 first graders at the Sister Lakes school to put into two second grade classrooms.

"You can't put 45 second graders in a classroom and do a decent educational job with them," Stacey said.

The Sister Lakes building is designed for a capacity of 375 students and presently houses 526, according to David Strlekar, principal.

Stacey said that the construction program would solve the following problems: Ninth graders would have a home; high school students would have a broader class selection; the pressure would be off overcrowding at Sister Lakes; Justus Gage would have a library-media center; and use of portable buildings at the junior high, Sister Lakes and Justus Gage would be eliminated.

PROTEST BOMBERS
NAHA, Japan (AP) — Okinawa's prefectural assembly unanimously adopted a resolution today opposing the stationing of U.S. F-4 bombers on the island again.

Watervliet Man Reelected Head Of Blossomtime

Don Young, president of Don Young Insurance Agency, Inc., Watervliet, has been reelected president of Blossomtime, Inc., for 1976. The corporation is sponsor of Michigan's oldest and largest festival, the week-long Blossomtime Festival, in May an annual salute to southwestern Michigan's "Flavorbest" Fruit Industry.

Young, who has been active in Blossomtime since 1970, was elected at a meeting of the board of directors held last week. In accepting the position, he commented, "I feel privileged to be asked to serve as president of Blossomtime for the second year. I look forward to the Bicentennial year and know that plans are being made to produce a most successful Blossomtime festival. I'm confident we will have the cooperation of the entire southwestern Michigan community in reaching that goal."

Vice president of the Blossomtime board of directors in 1974, Young has been a member of that board for four years. He was also chairman of the central queens' committee in 1974, and has served on that key committee for several years. He launched his Blossomtime career by serving as chairman of the Watervliet queens' committee for two years, in 1970 and 1971.

Young, lives at 233 Division in Watervliet with his wife Lois and their four children, Suzanne, Jeff, Kim and Lorie. He is a member of the life underwriters' association and is a past president of the Independent Insurance Agents' association. He served as president of the Watervliet athletic boosters for 1973-74 and president of the Watervliet Little League in 1968 and 1969.

He has been president of the Watervliet combined appeal and has been a member of the Watervliet library board for seven years.

Other Blossomtime officers elected at the meeting of the board of directors include William Starbuck, first vice president; Paul Mayhew, second vice president; Gerlie (Mrs. William) Johnson, secretary; and Robert Braamse, treasurer. Starbuck, area manager for Holland Motor Express, has served as Grand Floral Parade chairman for the past three years. Mayhew, Edwardsburg & Berrien Springs funeral director, was central queens chairman in 1975. Gerlie Johnson, proprietor of Bill's Tap in Baroda, has been head of the Blossomtime fashion show since 1972. Braamse, president of the Merchants Credit Bureau, is also a former president of Blossomtime, having held that James Barleklow, president of Blossomland Containers; Ralph Borchert, retired, Ward Groves, sales manager Levalley Klam Olds-Cadillac, Inc.; Gordon Hostet, Peoples Coat and Oil; Patrick McMullen, retired; and Braamse were reelected for three year terms on the board of directors.

Those serving two year terms are Edward McTavish, Clark Equipment company; Paul Mayhew and Gerlie Johnson. Those director serving 1 year terms are Rick Geipel, Benton Harbor Holiday Inn; Richard Dudas, proprietor of Sodus and Bridgman IGA's; and Lynn Scott of the Whirlpool Corporation.

Others serving on the 19-member Blossomtime board are Randall "Red" Burch, president of Burch Printers; H. Paul Florin, funeral director; George Glade, contractor; Donald Humphrey of Humphrey Insurance; and Edward Sandera, undersheriff-Berrien County Sheriffs Department.

The Blossomtime festival will be held May 2 through May 8 next year.

South Haven Given Bicentennial Grant

SOUTH HAVEN — The South Haven Bicentennial committee has been awarded a $2,000 matching grant by the Michigan Bicentennial commission to support creation of a Lake Michigan maritime museum.

The proposed museum would be located along the Black river near the Jensen Fishery in South Haven, according to local committee spokesman Viktor Anderson.

Earlier this month, the South Haven committee received another $2,000 grant for hiring a coordinator of local activities. The committee announced last week that Mrs. Florence Long has been appointed to the part-time position.

CROWDED CLASSROOMS: There are 32 students in Mrs. Esther Stanley's ninth grade English class, above, at Dowagiac junior high school. School officials say room is typical of the school's classrooms which range in size from 350 to 450 square feet.

Designed for maximum 25 students, rooms are now holding 30 to 35 students and are almost entirely filled up with desks, according to school officials. (Staff photos)

building. David Strlekar, building principal, said building was designed for 375 students in grades K-6, and has present enrollment of 528.

WRECKAGE LOCATED 535 FEET DEEP

Sunken Ship Believe Fitzgerald

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — U.S. Coast Guard officials have begun preliminary analysis of some wreckage believed to be from the sunken ore carrier Edmund Fitzgerald.

A Coast Guard ship using sophisticated sonar scanning equipment detected the wreckage Sunday in Lake Superior. Officials said they were "pretty certain" it was from the Fitzgerald.

The ore carrier sank last Monday night during a severe storm on the eastern tip of the lake. There were no survivors among its crew of 29.

Memorial services for the crew members were to be held this afternoon in Toledo, the home port of the Fitzgerald.

The Coast Guard buoy tender Woodrush used the sonar equipment to search for the sunken vessel over the weekend.

"There are other wrecks in the area, but we're pretty certain it's the Fitzgerald," Coast Guard spokesman Jim Burrell said in Cleveland.

The wreckage was located at a point 42 miles northwest of here and 13 miles west of Coppermine Point on the Canadian shore — about two miles from where the Fitzgerald was last heard.

Experts spent Sunday interpreting the sonar scans to determine whether the wreckage is in fact that of the Fitzgerald, another spokesman said.

The Coast Guard released a statement late in the day saying the Woodrush search located the wreckage at a depth of 535 feet. The wreckage will be subject to extensive analysis by Coast Guard technicians, the statement added.

The analysis results will be made available to the Coast Guard Marine Board of Investigation. The board will then determine what further steps will be used to identify the object, the statement said.

A special Coast Guard board of inquiry into the sinking had been scheduled to convene today in Cleveland, but was postponed until Tuesday.

Coast Guard officials said there is a constant oil seepage in the area where the wreckage was found.

Burrell said the equipment aboard the Woodrush definitely detected a shipwreck, but that other types of detection devices might be brought in to verify that it is the Fitzgerald.

One Coast Guard official said television cameras or a mini-submarine might be used in the search later.

Burrell said it could take at least a month to get to the wreckage and locate the bodies of the crewman.

He added that the water temperature at the surface where the wreckage was found is 45 degrees and about 33 at a depth of 534 feet. He said bodies could stay submerged for up to a month in that temperature because the cold tends to slow down the decay processes that bring bodies to the surface.

Earlier in the week, a Navy P-3 aircraft using magnetic air detection equipment spotted a metal object in the general area where the Woodrush did its work over the weekend.

Meanwhile, the counsel for the Seafarer's International Union local in Cleveland said he is filing a suit questioning whether the Fitzgerald had adequate life-saving equipment aboard.

Ned L. Mann said he would file a personal injury suit today in U.S. District Court on behalf of Mrs. James Pratt, wife of the Fitzgerald's second mate, Pratt lived in Lakewood, Ohio.

Mann said the suit also will question the propriety of the Coast Guard board of inquiry. He said if there were negligence in the rescue operations, it would be improper for the Coast Guard to investigate itself.

A spokesman of Oglebay Norton Co. the ship's operators, has said the ship was inspected and fully approved by the Coast Guard last spring.

Mann said Vic Hansen, general counsel for the Seafarer's Union's Great Lakes Division, will attend the board of inquiry to urge having an independent agency investigate the sinking and the rescue operation.

Kalamazoo Police Capture Escaped Murder Suspect

BY DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

KALAMAZOO — An accused murderer who escaped from the Kalamazoo state hospital Thursday was captured by Kalamazoo city police Saturday at a house in the 1700 block of Krom street, officers said.

Police said Carlo Cordell Vaughn, 20, Kalamazoo, was wrestled to the ground and subdued by three officers as he attempted to run out the back door of the house. Vaughn was not armed, police said. Police said they had received a call about 6 p.m. from a person who had read a newspaper account of the escape, and saw a man answering Vaughn's description in front of the house.

Police said they were investigating whether the occupants of the house knew Vaughn and harbored him.

Vaughn escaped from the hospital Thursday night while being transferred from one building to another. He was being held there pending a hearing in Van Buren circuit court to determine his competency to stand trial on a charge of murder in connection with the March 6 slaying of Sarah Towne, 27, Kalamazoo.

Miss Towne's knife-slashed body was discovered in an open field south of Lawton.

Cabbie Foils Holdup

DETROIT (AP) — A city cab driver gave a would-be holdup man a free ride Sunday — right to the steps of a precinct police station. Police said a 30-year-old man got into Charles Smith's cab and after they took off handed Smith a note through the slot in the cab's shield demanding that the driver stop and hand over his cash. Instead, Smith, 45, drove to a police precinct about a mile away. He flashed his spotlight and blew his horn to get the attention of the police, who arrested the passenger. The rider was to be arraigned today on a charge of attempted holdup.

Dowagiac Will Vote Thursday On School Bonds

By LARRY MacINTYRE
Staff Writer

DOWAGIAC — Voters in the Dowagiac school district will go to the polls Thursday to decide the fate of a $3.6 million school bond construction program proposed by the school board to relieve overcrowded schools.

There will be two bond issue propositions on the ballot. The first one is for $3.2 million for additions to three schools, and the second is for $400,000 for an outdoor athletic complex.

School officials have said the board will not enact the second proposition unless the first one also passes.

Supt. Lionel Stacey propositioned that if both pass and bonds are issued, about 3.5 mills would be added to the school district levy in December, 1976.

Stacey estimated the total levy for 1976 at a minimum of 29.191 mills. The 1975 levy is 25.691 mills.

He said construction on the projects could begin in the spring of 1976, and the additions could be ready for occupancy in September, 1977.

If passed by voters, the $3.2 million construction program would include:

— A seven classroom addition to the Sister Lakes elementary school, remodeling of the library, and additional kitchen facilities.

— Addition of a library at the Justus Gage elementary school.

— The addition of 16 classrooms at Union high school, a science laboratory, a special education classroom, two locker rooms, and possibly agricultural and automotive shops.

If the additions to the high school are made, ninth graders would attend classes all day at the high school, relieving overcrowding at the junior high school.

The second proposition, for $400,000, would be used to construct an outdoor athletic complex west of the high school on city-owned land.

About $125,000 of the $3.2 million would be set aside for future site acquisition.

"Our high school site is extremely limited, and with an approval of proposition one, it is very essential to have more property for the ever expanding high school," Stacey.

He said that at present the high school, junior high and Sister Lakes elementary school are all operating over their effective student capacity.

Because of the crowded conditions at the junior high, ninth graders must spend half their day in the high school and the other half at the junior high.

"The high school enrollment will be up by another 100 students next year, and already all classrooms are used every period. Frankly, we don't know what we're going to do with them," Stacey said.

He said high school students are already denied some classes because there is no room for them, and the situation will be worse next year.

"It will force us to put more and more kids in study hall to take care of our overpopulation. Right now we have kids in study hall and in classes they didn't want," Stacey said.

At the Sister Lakes school, Stacey said every classroom is also in use including a makeshift room in the basement and a portable classroom outside.

He said next year there will be 91 first graders at the Sister Lakes school to put into two second grade classrooms.

"You can't put 45 second graders in a classroom and do a decent educational job with them," Stacey said.

The Sister Lakes building is designed for a capacity of 375 students and presently houses 526, according to David Strlekar, principal.

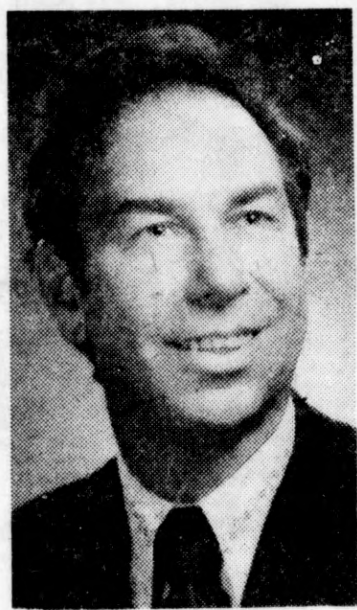

Stacey said that the construction program would solve the following problems: Ninth graders would have a home; high school students would have a broader class selection; the pressure would be off overcrowding at Sister Lakes; Justus Gage would have a library-media center; and use of portable buildings at the junior high, Sister Lakes and Justus Gage would be eliminated.

Watervliet Man Reelected Head Of Blossomtime

Don Young, president of Don Young Insurance Agency, Inc., Watervliet, has been reelected president of Blossomtime, Inc., for 1976. The corporation is sponsor of Michigan's oldest and largest festival, the week-long Blossom Festival, in May an annual salute to southwestern Michigan's "Flavorbest" Fruit Industry.

Young, who has been active in Blossomtime since 1970, was elected at a meeting of the board of directors held last week. In accepting the position, he commented, "I feel privileged to be asked to serve as president of Blossomtime for the second year. I look forward to the Bicentennial year and know that plans are being made to produce a most successful Blossomtime festival. I'm confident we will have the cooperation of the entire southwestern Michigan community in reaching that goal."

GRAVE PROTEST

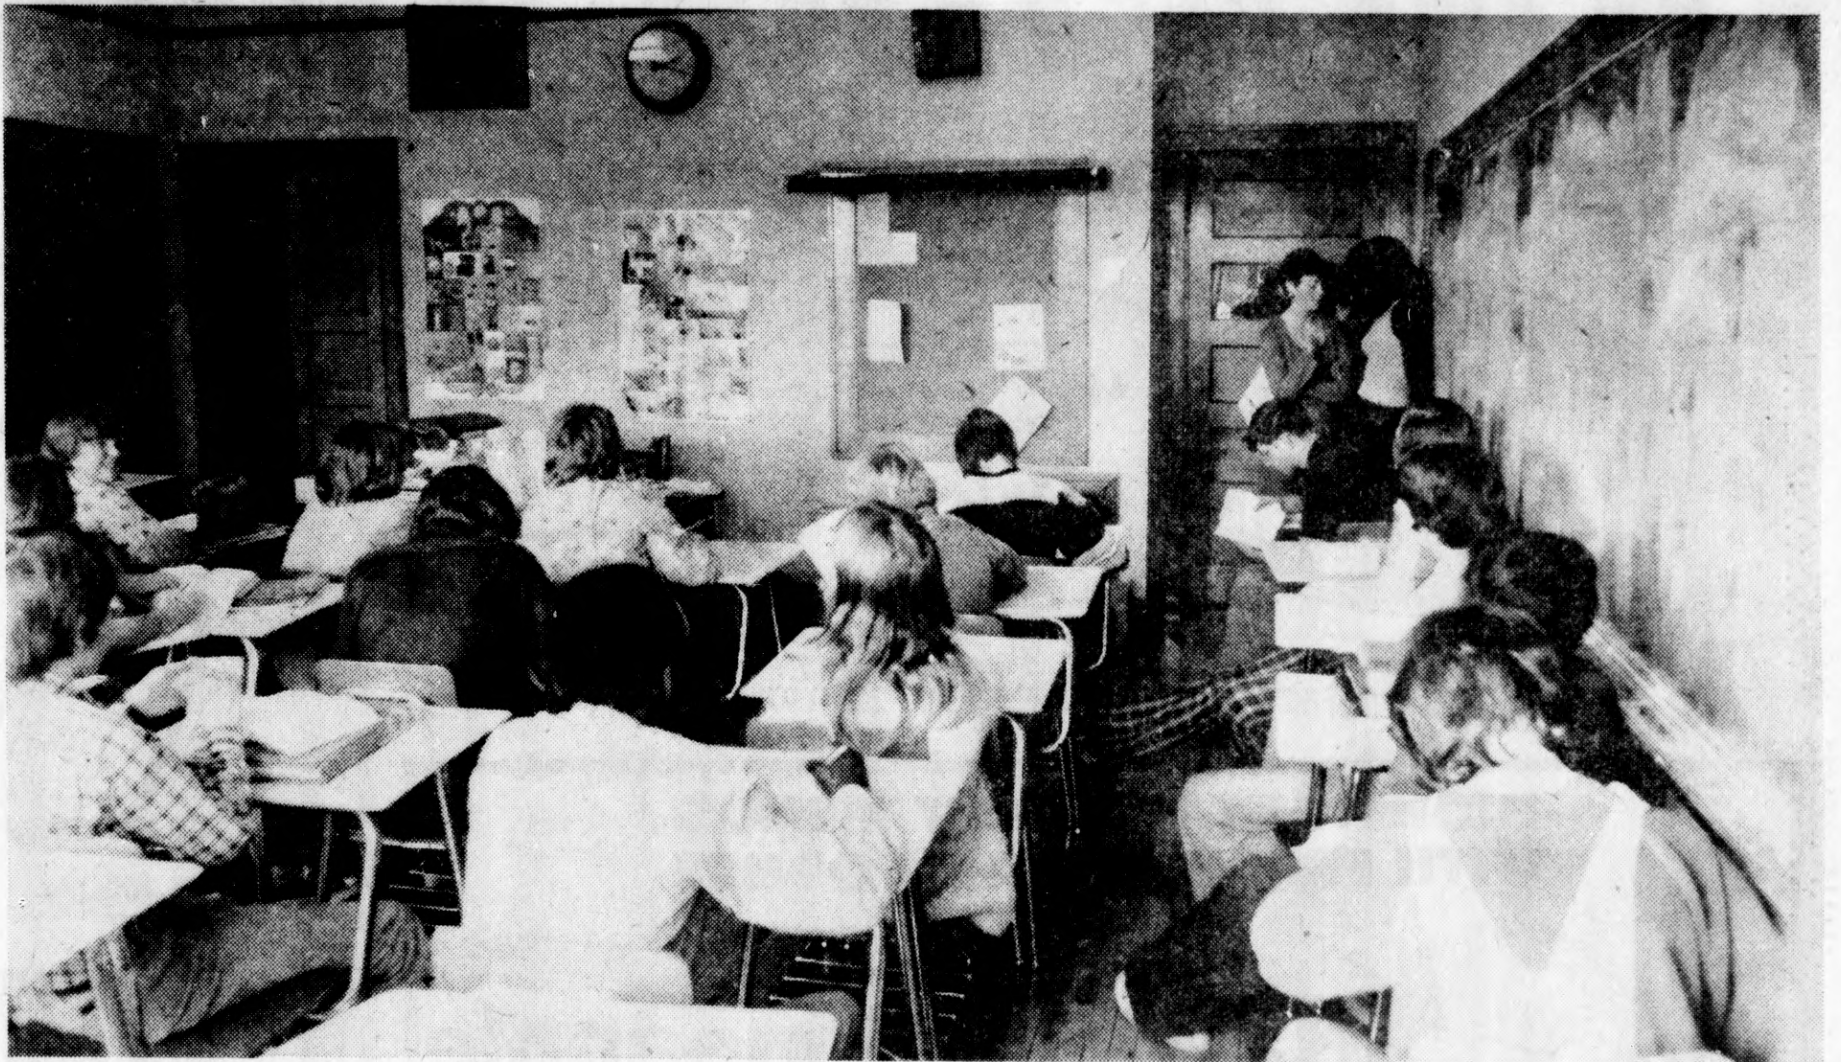

TAIPEI (AP) — Chinese Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung has decided his wife will be buried next to him but the plan has encountered opposition because it gives her "so important a posthumous position," a Taipei newspaper reported today.

South Haven Given Bicentennial Grant

SOUTH HAVEN — The South Haven Bicentennial committee has been awarded a $2,500 matching grant by the Michigan Bicentennial commission to support creation of a Lake Michigan maritime museum.

The proposed museum would be located along the Black river near the Jensen Fishery in South Haven, according to local committee spokesman Viktor Anderson.

Earlier this month, the South Haven committee received another $2,500 grant for hiring a coordinator of local activities. The committee announced last week that Mrs. Florence Long has been appointed to the part-time position.

CROWDED CLASSROOMS: There are 32 students in Mrs. Esther Stanley's ninth grade English class, above, at Dowagiac junior high school. School officials say room is typical of the school's classrooms which range in size from 350 to 450 square feet:

Designed for maximum 25 students, rooms are now holding 30 to 35 students and are almost entirely filled up with desks, according to school officials. (Staff photos)

CLASS IN BASEMENT: Sister Lakes elementary school has more classes than classrooms. Mrs. Nancy Crowl's first grade class, above, meets in makeshift class, above, located in basement of building. David Strlekar, building principal, said building was designed for 375 students in grades K-6, and has present enrollment of 526.

WRECKAGE LOCATED 535 FEET DEEP

Sunken Ship Believe Fitzgerald

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — U.S. Coast Guard officials have begun preliminary analysis of some wreckage believed to be from the sunken ore carrier Edmund Fitzgerald.

A Coast Guard ship using sophisticated sonar scanning equipment detected the wreckage Sunday in Lake Superior. Officials said they were "pretty certain" it was from the Fitzgerald.

The ore carrier sank last Monday night during a severe storm on the eastern tip of the lake. There were no survivors among its crew of 29.

Memorial services for the crew members were to be held this afternoon in Toledo, the home port of the Fitzgerald.

The Coast Guard buoy tender Woodrush used the sonar equipment to search for the sunken vessel over the weekend.

"There are other wrecks in the area, but we're pretty certain that it's the Fitzgerald," Coast Guard spokesman Jim Burrell said in Cleveland.

The wreckage was located at a point 42 miles northwest of here and 13 miles west of Coppermine Point on the Canadian shore — about two miles from where the Fitzgerald was last heard.

Experts spent Sunday interpreting the sonar scans to determine whether the wreckage is in fact that of the Fitzgerald, another spokesman said.

The Coast Guard released a statement late in the day saying the Woodrush search located the wreckage at a depth of 535 feet. The wreckage will be subject to extensive analysis by Coast Guard technicians, the statement added.

The analysis results will be made available to the Coast Guard Marine Board of Investigation. The board will then determine what further steps will be used to identify the object, the statement said.

A special Coast Guard board of inquiry into the sinking had been scheduled to convene today in Cleveland, but was postponed until Tuesday.

Coast Guard officials said there is a constant oil seepage in the area where the wreckage was found.

Burrell said the equipment aboard the Woodrush definitely detected a shipwreck, but that other types of detection devices might be brought in to verify that it is the Fitzgerald.

One Coast Guard official said television cameras or a mini-submarine might be used in the search later.

Burrell said it could take at least a month to get to the wreckage and locate the bodies of the crewman.

He added that the water temperature at the surface where the wreckage was found is 45 degrees and about 33 at a depth of 534 feet. He said bodies could stay submerged for up to a month in that temperature because the cold tends to slow down the decay processes that bring bodies to the surface.

Police said they were investigating whether the occupants of the house knew Vaughn and harbored him.

More Want To Join The CIA

SEATTLE (AP) — Tom Culhane says business for his "company" is good despite all the bad publicity it has been getting lately. Culhane is a recruiter for the Central Intelligence Agency.

"Oh my, they (recruits) are there," says Culhane, who was in Seattle recently to interview University of Washington students who want to join the CIA. "The recent Senate hearings have helped, shall we say, publicize the CIA."

Last year, 800 people a month were writing to the CIA seeking a job, he said. Now, the number is up to 1,700 a month, thanks to the politicians, he says.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Stocks Keep Eye On NYC

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, still waiting out the outcome of efforts to resolve New York City's fiscal problems.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down about a point, largely because of dividend-payment adjustments in the prices of three stocks which are components of the average.

Gainers, on the other hand, held about a 5-3 edge on losers at the New York Stock Exchange.

Legislators in Washington and the New York State capital in Albany were set to resume work today on proposed elements of a plan to deal with the New York fiscal situation.

And President Ford was not due to return from an economic summit meeting in Paris until after today.

Early prices on the Big Board included Braniff International, up 1/4 at 7 1/2; Avnet, ahead 1/4 at 9 1/4; RCA, 1/4 higher at 18 1/4; and Control Data, down 1/4 at 19 1/4.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 2.44 to 853.67 to stretch its gain for the week to 17.87 points.

But losers nipped out gainers in the over-all count on the NYSE, and the Exchange's composite index was off .04 at 48.16.

Big Board volume was a moderate 16.48 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index edged up .02 to 85.68.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Retirement No Time For Growth Stocks

By SAM SHULSKY
Q. We are approaching 70 and keep large amounts of cash in Treasury bonds as you suggested but are worried about several blocks of stock which are worth less than one-half of what we paid for them.

A. I don't understand why this list of speculative stocks was carried over into retirement. Everyone is entitled to make some mistakes but if there is ever a time to face up to investment mistakes it is on Retirement Day, when you switch from putting money into your "future" to getting retirement income from whatever funds you've collected.

You can't hope to get income from $3 and $4 stocks which display a long string of annual deficits. Furthermore, if there were losses to be taken, they should have been taken during your last years of employment so that you could have gotten the most good out of the tax deductions.

However — better late than never. Get out of them now. Your envelope is bringing you a list of income-type stocks. Consider some solid, long-dividend paying shares of strong utilities, rails, manufacturing companies, oils.

Q. A widow, 66, has money in time certificates at 4 1/2 per cent interest and $10,000 in E bonds. She would like to get a higher return but is fearful of taking the money from the bank where she feels it is safer than in the AAA bonds you mention.

A. I'm not going to be drawn into a discussion of whether an FDIC-insured savings account is "safer" than a triple A corporate bond. No one has lost any money in FDIC-protected savings accounts and within the last half century or so, no triple A bonds have defaulted.

It is true, of course, that money put into even AAA bond is subject to market fluctuation, which is another way of saying the investment will rise or fall in market value with the decline or rise in interest rates; $10,000 in the bank, of course, remains $10,000.

Triple A bonds today can be bought to yield 9 per cent, plus. Savings certificates can yield 7 1/2 per cent or even a trifle higher. She must now try to set a price on worry. Is it worth 1 per cent, or 1 1/2 per cent?

One thing, however, is obvious: If she is interested in income, what is she doing with $10,000 in E bonds which pay out nothing? Either cash in $600 worth every year and spend the proceeds, or switch the entire sum to H bonds, or cash in the entire amount and buy bonds or more longer-term, savings certificates. Her tax bracket must determine which course is best for her.

Q. Several years ago you warned me against cashing an insurance policy in favor of a combination insurance-mutual fund program. Needless to say, I am happy about that now. A new insurance salesman is now urging me to cash in all my policies, put the proceeds into municipal bonds and Treasury notes and switch my insurance to another company I've never heard of. The rates are much less.

A. The program you now have is with one of the nation's largest companies. The one proposed is with a company I've never heard of and can't find.

If I have to make a flat statement on insurance — on which I am not an expert — I would say: go slow on cashing in policies you set up years ago. In many cases these older policies have provisions which can't be obtained now. Furthermore, they have the benefit of having been started at a younger age.

I can't make out whether he is selling you term insurance or not. If it is, you must make certain you can renew that protection as long as you will need it.

I repeat: My inclination is to say no. Swapping policies is a tricky business. I would by all means allow your present insurance agent to put in his rebuttal.

Shulsky welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Legislature Tackles NY Fiscal Plan

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Faced with Gov. Hugh Carey's call for massive tax increases, the New York Legislature today on a plan to restore the state's shaky finances.

Carey said he needs legislative approval of his comprehensive plan dealing with the related fiscal problems of the city and the state to obtain federal help to save New York City from bankruptcy.

Carey is asking for state and city tax increases and restrictions on public employee wages and pensions.

The proposals include a one-year freeze on state salaries, effective April 1; mandatory pension contributions by New York City's 250,000 employees; massive state tax increases, and cuts in Medicaid and other spending.

Carey says the measures are necessary to close a $1.7 billion budget deficit this fiscal year and next, but Republican legislators insist the budget gap is only about half the Carey estimate. They say they will resist some of the tax increases.

Because discussions between the two sides have been limited so far, it may be late in the week, at the earliest, before the legislature resolves the tax issues.

The legislators recessed the special session early Saturday after approving bills to save the City of Yonkers from default, shore up the state Housing Finance Agency and declare a partial debt moratorium on New York City's obligations.

Self-Help Gifts Are Approved For Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Friends Service Committee was notified over the weekend that the State Department has granted the Quaker agency permission to send self-help supplies to Vietnam war victims.

Rep. G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss., of the House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia, said the department has agreed to grant church agencies licenses for "broad categories" of assistance to Vietnam as a "good-will gesture" in response to Hanoi's release last month of nine American prisoners.

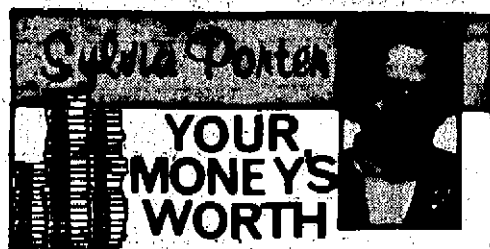

Garage Is Destroyed By Niles Area Fire

NILES — Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a garage and damaged the adjoining house on Bond street south of here early this morning, according to Niles township firemen.

Al Simons, fire chief, said the garage at the Richard Rosenthal residence, 1804 Bond street, was engulfed in flames by the time firemen arrived about 12:45 a.m. Simon said the Rosenthal family was in bed when the fire broke out, but escaped unharmed.

Simon said the fire quickly spread to an upstairs bedroom and the entrance-way to the first floor kitchen before it was brought under control. He said smoke and water damage was extensive throughout the two-story frame house.

Firemen remained on the scene for about two hours, Simon said. He said neither the cause nor a damage estimate have been determined.

New electronic banking devices which could largely wipe out your need for cash and checks are now being adopted by banks, savings institutions and credit unions the nation over.

EFTS, CBCT, RSU, POS, ATM — these acronyms stand for a whole array of computerized terminals that operate like telephone or mail chutes through which you communicate directly with your financial institution. Under the system, you're connected by electronic impulses to your deposit and revolving credit accounts instead of by checks, passbooks and conventional credit cards. EFTS is the heading under which the other devices fall — and it stands for electronic funds transfer system.

CBCT stands for consumer-bank communication terminal and is the same as an RSU or remove service unit. The two major types of CBCT-RSUs are POS or point-of-sale terminals and ATM or automatic teller machines.

Perhaps you already have noticed ATMs. Many are now common sights on the exterior walls of banks or savings institutions and soon others may be located in office buildings or train stations. In essence, they are small computers that perform the same tasks a teller does. The machines will accept deposits, give you cash, allow you to pay a mortgage bill or a

Niles Man Arrested In Buchanan

BUCHANAN — John Stewart, 23, Niles, was arrested by Buchanan police here early yesterday morning on a charge of possession of marijuana.

Police said the arrest came after two plastic bags containing about eight ounces of suspected marijuana were found in a pickup truck being operated by Stewart. Police said the truck had been stopped on Fulton street for a traffic violation about 2:20 a.m.

revolving credit account from your savings or checking account, enable you to transfer funds from your savings to your checking account or vice versa.

You, the customer, operate the ATM yourself. You insert a plastic key card similar to a credit card and then punch the buttons on the computer that signify the operation you want to perform. Some ATMs also have a telephone attached to the terminal, so you can call the bank directly if you need more information.

Like ATMs, the POS (point-of-sale terminals) can perform the same variety of services. These devices, though, are located in stores, auto-repair or appliance shops, and they are operated by the merchant. POS also can be programmed to verify and guarantee customers' checks or solely to perform this task. With a POS, the merchant communicates with the customer's bank through a telephone attached to the computer. The computer confirms or denies that the funds in the customer's account are adequate to cover his or her purchase. In addition, the merchant can make sure that he will be paid by asking the bank to earmark the needed funds in the customer's account.

The check verification and guarantee system is designed to protect stores against non-payers and fraud. Department stores lose an average of 20 to 30 cents per check; grocery stores lose an average 10 cents per check. The verification system isn't free, however. Store owners in Tennessee participating in one program pay 15 cents for each verification, 25 cents for each guarantee, $30 a month to lease each terminal — plus an installation charge and monthly phone line charges to the phone company.

But despite the costs, banking institutions in many states have introduced this system, and the more complicated EFTS devices are in operation or in the planning stage in at least 17 states.

For financial institutions, the technological developments are expected to save a minimum of $10 billion a year in costs to process the huge totals of checks handled and to slash expenses associated with establishing branch offices of banks. To illustrate, an EFTS terminal that performs many bank branch functions costs about $45,000; a modest downtown bank branch of a Midwestern bank costs about $425,000 to buy and build.

For you, the customer, the systems promise a broad selection of conveniences and maybe cuts in bank service charges. And, with the EFTS, you'll be able to transfer money from a savings to a checking account the instant you need the cash.

Sounds great, real "progress," doesn't it?

But for us, the customers, there are serious drawbacks which so far neither regulatory bodies nor elected officials have heeded. A slowdown is in order.

The study will be performed by the Federal Insurance Administration by Johnson & Anderson, Inc., Consulting Engineers, of Pontiac, Michigan.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Stocks Keep Eye On NYC

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, still waiting out the outcome of efforts to resolve New York City's fiscal problems.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down about a point, largely because of dividend-payment adjustments in the prices of three stocks which are components of the average.

Gainers, on the other hand, held about a 5-3 edge on losers at the New York Stock Exchange.

Legislators in Washington and the New York State capital in Albany were set to resume work today on proposed elements of a plan to deal with the New York fiscal situation.

And President Ford was not due to return from an economic summit meeting in Paris until later today.

Early prices on the Big Board included Braniff International, up 1/8 at 7 1/2; Avnet, ahead 1/8 at 9 1/4; RCA, 1/8 higher at 19 1/2; and Control Data, down 1/8 at 19 1/2.

On F 15 the Dow Jones industrial average rose 2.44 to 853.67 to stretch its gain for the week to 17.87 points.

But losers nosed out gainers in the over-all count on the NYSE, and the Exchange's composite index was off .04 at 48.16.

Big Board volume was a moderate 16.46 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index edged up .02 to 85.68.

Hagar Man Is Burned By Wire

A Hagar township man received apparently minor burns Sunday when he touched a live electric wire connected to a motor while he was working at Michigan Standard Alloys, Inc., 1256 Milton street, Benton Harbor police said.

Treated and released from Memorial hospital, St. Joseph, was Roger Oiler, 26, of 910 Maple lane, a foreman at the plant.

A co-worker, Larry Jamison, 19, of 957 High street, police reported, shut off electricity to the motor. The accident occurred about 3 p.m., police indicated.

Al Simons, fire chief, said the garage at the Richard Rosenthal residence, 1904 Bond street, was engulfed in flames by the time firemen arrived about 12:45 a.m. Simon said the Rosenthal family was in bed when the fire broke out, but escaped unharmed.

Simon said the fire quickly spread to an upstairs bedroom and the entrance-way to the first floor kitchen before it was brought under control. He said smoke and water damage was extensive throughout the two-story frame house.

Firemen remained on the scene for about two hours, Simon said. He said neither the cause nor a damage estimate have been determined.

New electronic banking devices which could largely wipe out your need for cash and checks are now being adopted by banks, savings institutions and credit unions the nation over.

EFTS, CBCT, RSU, POS, ATM — these acronyms stand for a whole array of computerized terminals that operate like telephone or mail chutes through which you communicate directly with your financial institution. Under the system, you're connected by electronic impulses to your deposit and revolving credit accounts instead of by checks, passbooks and conventional credit cards. EFTS is the heading under which the other devices fall — and it stands for electronic funds transfer system.

CBCT stands for consumer-bank communication terminal and is the same as an RSU or remove service unit. The two major types of CBCT-RSUs are POS or point-of-sale terminals and ATM or automatic teller machines.

Perhaps you already have noticed ATMs. Many are now common sights on the exterior walls of banks or savings institutions and soon others may be located in office buildings or train stations. In essence, they are small computers that perform the same tasks a teller does. The machines will accept deposits, give you cash, allow you to pay a mortgage bill or a

BUCHANAN — John Stewart, 23, Niles, was arrested by Buchanan police here early yesterday morning on a charge of possession of marijuana.

Police said the arrest came after two plastic bags containing about eight ounces of suspected marijuana were found in a pickup truck being operated by Stewart. Police said the truck had been stopped on Fulton street for a traffic violation about 2:30 a.m.

revolving credit account from your savings or checking account, enable you to transfer funds from your savings to your checking account or vice versa. You, the customer, operate the ATM yourself. You insert a plastic key card similar to a credit card and then punch the buttons on the computer that signify the operation you want to perform. Some ATMs also have a telephone attached to the terminal, so you can call the bank directly if you need more information.

Like ATMs, the POS (point-of-sale terminals) can perform the same variety of services. These devices, though, are located in stores, auto-repair or appliance shops, and they are operated by the merchant. POS also can be programmed to verify and guarantee customers' checks or solely to perform this task. With a POS, the merchant communicates with the customer's bank through a telephone attached to the computer. The computer confirms or denies that the funds in the customer's account are adequate to cover his or her purchase. In addition, the merchant can make sure that he will be paid by asking the bank to earmark the needed funds in the customer's account.

The check verification and guarantee system is designed to protect stores against non-payers and fraud. Department stores lose an average of 20 to 30 cents per check; grocery stores lose an average 10 cents per check. The verification system isn't free, however. Store owners in Tennessee participating in one program pay 15 cents for each verification, 25 cents for each guarantee, $30 a month to lease each terminal — plus an installation charge and monthly phone line charges to the phone company.

But despite the costs, banking institutions in many states have introduced this system, and the more complicated EFTS' devices are in operation or in the planning stage in at least 17 states.

For financial institutions, the technological developments are expected to save a minimum of $10 billion a year in costs to process the huge totals of checks handled and to slash expenses associated with establishing branch offices of banks. To illustrate, an EFTS terminal that performs many bank branch functions costs about $45,000; a modest downtown bank branch of a Midwestern bank costs about $425,000 to buy and build.

For you, the customer, the systems promise a broad selection of conveniences and maybe cuts in bank service charges. And with the EFTS, you'll be able to transfer money from a savings to a checking account the instant you need the cash.

Sounds great, real "progress," doesn't it?

But for us, the customers, there are serious drawbacks which so far neither regulatory bodies nor elected officials have heeded. A slowdown is in order.

LEGAL NOTICES

The Federal Insurance Administration of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development announced today that under authority of the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended, (P.L. 90-448) and the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973, (P.L. 93-234) it will fund a detailed study of the flood hazard areas in the following communities:

VILLAGE OF MICHIANA AND VILLAGE OF GRAND BEACH, BERRIEN COUNTY, MI.

The study will be performed for the Federal Insurance Administration by Johnson & Anderson, Inc., Consulting Engineers, of Pontiac, Michigan.

The purpose of this study is to examine and evaluate the flood hazard areas in the community which are developed or which are likely to be developed and to determine flood elevations for those areas. Flood elevations will be used by the community to carry out the flood plain management objectives of the National Flood Insurance Program. They will also be used as the basis for determining the appropriate flood insurance premium rates applicable for new buildings and their contents, as well as determining the rates to be used for the second layer of insurance on existing buildings and contents.

This announcement is intended to notify all interested persons of the commencement of this study so that they may have an opportunity at a public meeting, soon to be announced, to bring any relevant facts and technical data concerning local flood hazards to the attention of the Chief Executive Officer of the community for forwarding to the appropriate representatives of the Federal Insurance Administration.

JOHN P. ROCHE
A Word Edgewise

Jewels On Tennis Racket Hurt His Hand

Q: I hear that Elton John is going to be in a celebrity tennis tournament. Is he really any good? — D.S., Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

A: We are told that he's not bad at all. However, he won't be using the ruby and rhinestone encrusted racket he had made up especially for the tennis festivities at the posh Leews Monte Carlo Hotel on the French Riviera this month. The jewels hurt his hand so much he had them removed.

Q: I'm still waiting to hear if Sarah Miles made up with her husband. What's happening? — P.T., Erie, Pa.

A: Although British playwright Robert Bolt visited Sarah last summer in California, it apparently didn't help. He was granted a divorce from the actress, recently, in a London court on the grounds of a two-year separation. The same day, and in the same court, actor Michael Crawford was divorced from wife Gabrielle after ten years of marriage and two children.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Which singing star's

PEOPLE

By Robin Adams Sloan

reconciliation with an equally talented wife is still on very shaky ground? Robert Goulet and Carol Lawrence are the twosome striving to make it work.

Q: Correct me if I'm wrong

but aren't Candy Bergen and Doris Day's son, Terry Melcher, a twosome? — T.V., Vandenberg, Calif.

A: We're afraid you're wrong. That romance has long since faded. In fact Candy may have exhausted the supply of eligible (and not so eligible) men in Hollywood and is going to move to New York very soon to see if she can't find a good man there.

Q: Why is Barbra Streisand such a recluse? Is she scared of the public? — C.T., Seattle, Wash.

A: Barbra says she isn't a recluse though she tries to live a private life. She says, "I always go myself to the supermarket. I go to the public beach. If people say, 'Gee, you look like Barbra Streisand,' then I say, 'I know, I've been told that a lot, but I'm smaller.'" But Barbra, like most stars, is afraid of crowds when they try to mob her, and she detests being approached while she is eating out in public.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: What famous child of what famous person is mulling coming out of the closet and declaring for Gay Liberation?

We simply can't name names at this point but you can believe us, if it happens, it will rock the old Republic to its foundations.

Renewable Oil Source

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Trees may soon replace oil in the production of plastics and synthetic rubber and fibers. Two Michigan State University researchers say lignin, a carbon compound thrown away when trees are processed, could be a source of the chemical feedstock used to make those products. Martin Hawley, a chemical engineering professor, and Jes Asmussen, an electrical engineering professor, say lignin contains the same basic components as oil. With a little new technology and a lot of patience, lignin can be processed into the same chemicals that now come from oil and natural gas, they say. They have built a microwave device at MSU they say will perform the difficult processing.

The Publication People Pay To Read!

PAID SUBSCRIBERS

You may have noticed that diseases are not the only things that come in epidemics — so do books. I have, for example, a full bonkcase of good studies of Southeast Asia and the Vietnam war, and I could have filled two more with the junk that I read and sent off to the town dump. Right now there are probably at least 25 works on the C.I.A. in process. But first prize in the book epidemic competition undoubtedly goes to Watergate and related issues; volumes on the sins of Richard Nixon & Co. could fill a library.

After reading Teddy White's superb "Breath of Faith," I swore a silent oath to go off Watergate. But, mea culpa, I have sinned: somebody send me George V. Higgins' "The Friends of Richard Nixon" (Atlantic-Little, Brown), and the first chapter was like that proverbial first drink. Indeed, the analogy is more than appropriate — that first little drink led to a binge: I couldn't put the book down until I finished it.

Higgins brought to his chronicle some remarkable credentials. A former newspaperman, he was also a state and Federal prosecutor in Massachusetts and has written several novels about the seamy side of law enforcement. He has the special argot of the criminal, the cop, the bondsman, the prosecutor, and police-blotter journalists down pat. In "The Friends of Eddie Coyle," he wrote a novel showing his mastery of this genre; in "The Friends of Richard Nixon," he has produced a semi-novel of the same high order.

His premise is simple: to treat Watergate properly you have to realize that it was a criminal conspiracy which any Mafia "capo" would consider a bad joke. But nonetheless it was a criminal conspiracy, not just old-fashioned fun and games in the great American tradition of dirty politics. Using the Nixon tapes and other materials of record, Higgins attempts to plumb the minds of the various principals as the whole thing began to unravel. This stream-of-consciousness technique leads on occasion to some non-stop sentences worthy of Sir Walter Scott, but by and large it comes off very well.

There are a number of lines which gave me the best laughs I've had in years, for which I gather Higgins has picked up some flak from reviewers for not being serious about the fate of the Republic. But in fact this is a very serious book about the vagaries of the American system of justice. Confessedly, some bias in favor of Higgins arises from his emphasis on the paradoxes about Watergate I explored here at "that point in time."

Take this, for instance: discussing "Maximum John" Sirica's conduct in the trial of the burglars, "the man" says, "that really wasn't much of a trial, you now. It was more like an Inquisition. If you gave, say, Daniel Ellsberg that kind of trial, the whole faculty of the Yale Law School would be down carrying signs in front of the White House." Higgins (like me) resents this kind of moral double-bookkeeping, whoever employs it.

Elsewhere he flays the comic opera that "Uncle Sam" Ervin presided over, the Senate Investigating Committee, noting (correctly) that the only Senator who wasn't playing to the gallery was Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii, but that the preposterous rules (which made filibustering by lawyers and committee members into an art form) frustrated Inouye's penetrating questions. True to his prosecutor's training, Higgins is horrified that the committee put John Dean on first and got his testimony on record, thus making it much easier for Haldeman and Ehrlichman to know what they were up against. This would never have happened in grand jury proceedings.

In essence, he makes the case for the professionals, like Earl Silbert, the original Watergate prosecutor, against the amateurs — like Ervin and his inept chief counsel, Sam Dash — who wanted to turn a legal prosecution for conspiracy to obstruct justice into a morality play, the point, as "the man" would say, is to get the (expletives deleted) safely in the slammer, not give sermons on civics. My one substantive argument with Higgins concerns his implicit assumption that had Watergate blown before Nov., 1972, it would have influenced the outcome of the presidential election; as I noted then, the voters consciously chose thieves over theocrats, figuring we know how to cope with thieves. The outcome justified this faith. But that's a trivial complaint about a fine book.

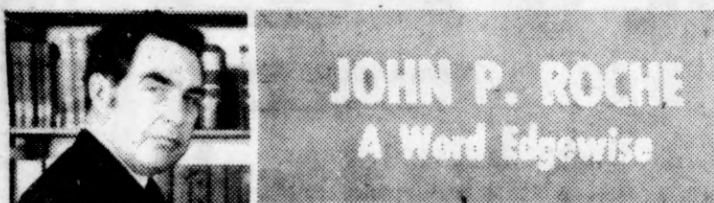

ELTON: Jewels hurt his hand.

SARAH: Bob's visit didn't work.

BOB: Working with Carol.

JOHN P. ROCHE
A Word Edgewise

You may have noticed that diseases are not the only things that come in epidemics — so do books. I have, for example, a full bookcase of good studies of Southeast Asia and the Vietnam war, and I could have filled two more with the junk that I read and sent off to the town dump. Right now there are probably at least 25 works on the C.I.A. in process. But first prize in the book epidemic competition undoubtedly goes to Watergate and related issues; volumes on the sins of Richard Nixon & Co. could fill a library.

After reading Teddy White's superb "Breach of Faith," I swore a silent oath to go off Watergate. But, mea culpa, I have sinned: somebody send me George V. Higgins' "The Friends of Richard Nixon" (Atlantic-Little, Brown), and the first chapter was like that proverbial first drink. Indeed, the analogy is more than appropriate — that first little drink led to a binge: I couldn't put the book down until I finished it.

Higgins brought to his chronicle some remarkable credentials. A former newspaperman, he was also a state and Federal prosecutor in Massachusetts and has written several novels about the seamier side of law enforcement. He has the special argot of the criminal, the cop, the bondsman, the prosecutor, and police-blotter journalists down pat. In "The Friends of Eddie Coyle," he wrote a novel showing his mastery of this genre; in "The Friends of Richard Nixon," he has produced a semi-novel of the same high order.

His premise is simple: to treat Watergate properly you have to realize that it was a criminal conspiracy which any Mafia "capo" would consider a bad joke. But nonetheless it was a criminal conspiracy, not just old-fashioned fun and games in the great American tradition of dirty politics. Using the Nixon tapes and other materials of record, Higgins attempts to plumb the minds of the various principals as the whole thing began to unravel. This stream-of-consciousness technique leads on occasion to some non-stop sentences worthy of Sir Walter Scott, but by and large it comes off very well.

There are a number of lines which gave me the best laughs I've had in years, for which I gather Higgins has picked up some flak from reviewers for not being serious about the fate of the Republic. But in fact this is a very serious book about the vagaries of the American system of justice. Confessedly, some bias in favor of Higgins arises from his emphasis on the paradoxes about Watergate I explored here at "that point in time."

Take this, for instance: discussing "Maximum John" Sirica's conduct in the trial of the burglars, "the man" says, "that really wasn't much of a trial, you now. It was more like an Inquisition. If you gave, say, Daniel Ellsberg that kind of trial, the whole faculty of the Yale Law School would be down carrying signs in front of the White House." Higgins (like me) resents this kind of moral double-bookkeeping, whoever employs it.

Elsewhere he plays the comic opera that "Uncle Sam" Ervin presided over, the Senate Investigating Committee, noting (correctly) that the only Senator who wasn't playing to the gallery was Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii, but that the preposterous rules (which made filibustering by lawyers and committee members into an art form) frustrated Inouye's penetrating questions. True to his prosecutor's training, Higgins is horrified that the committee put John Dean on first and got his testimony on record, thus making it much easier for Haldeman and Ehrlichman to know what they were up against. This would never have happened in grand jury proceedings.

In essence, he makes the case for the professionals, like Earl Silbert, the original Watergate prosecutor, against the amateurs — like Ervin and his inept chief counsel, Sam Dash — who wanted to turn a legal prosecution for conspiracy to obstruct justice into a morality play, the point, as "the man" would say, is to get the (expletives deleted) safely in the slammer, not give sermons on civics. My one substantive argument with Higgins concerns his implicit assumption that had Watergate blown before Nov., 1972, it would have influenced the outcome of the presidential election; as I noted then, the voters consciously chose thieves over theocrats, figuring we know how to cope with thieves. The outcome justified this faith. But that's a trivial complaint about a fine book.

Jewels On Tennis Racket Hurt His Hand

Q: I hear that Elton John is going to be in a celebrity tennis tournament. Is he really any good? — D.S., Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

A: We are told that he's not bad at all. However, he won't be using the ruby and rhinestone encrusted racket he had made up especially for the tennis festivities at the posh Loews Monte Carlo Hotel on the French Riviera this month. The jewels hurt his hand so much he had them removed.

Q: I'm still waiting to hear if Sarah Miles made up with her husband. What's happening? — P.T., Erie, Pa.

A: Although British playwright Robert Bolt visited Sarah last summer in California, it apparently didn't help. He was granted a divorce from the actress, recently, in a London court on the grounds of a two-year separation. The same day, and in the same court, actor Michael Crawford was divorced from wife Gabrielle after ten years of marriage and two children.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Which singing star's

PEOPLE

By Robin Adams Sloan

reconciliation with an equally talented wife is still on very shaky ground? Robert Goulet and Carol Lawrence are the twosome striving to make it work.

Q: Correct me if I'm wrong

but aren't Candy Bergen and Doris Day's son, Terry Melcher, a twosome? — T.V., Vandenberg, Calif.

A: We're afraid you're wrong. That romance has long since faded. In fact Candy may have exhausted the supply of eligible (and not so eligible) men in Hollywood and is going to move to New York very soon to see if she can't find a good man there.

Q: Why is Barbra Streisand such a recluse? Is she scared of the public? — C.T., Seattle, Wash.

A: Barbra says she isn't a recluse though she tries to live a private life. She says, "I always go myself to the supermarket. I go to the public beach. If people say, 'Gee, you look like Barbra Streisand,' then I say, 'I know; I've been told that a lot, but I'm smaller.'" But Barbra, like most stars, is afraid of crowds when they try to mob her, and she detests being approached while she is eating out in public.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: What famous child of what famous person is mulling coming out of the closet and declaring for Gay Liberation?

We simply can't name names at this point but you can believe us, if it happens, it will rock the old Republic to its foundations.

Renewable Oil Source

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Trees may soon replace oil in the production of plastics and synthetic rubber and fibers. Two Michigan State University researchers say lignin, a carbon compound thrown away when trees are processed, could be a source of the chemical feedstock used to make those products. Martin Hawley, a chemical engineering professor, and Jes Asmussen, an electrical engineering professor, say lignin contains the same basic components as oil. With a little new technology and a lot of patience, lignin can be processed into the same chemicals that now come from oil and natural gas, they say. They have built a microwave device at MSU they say will perform the difficult processing.
